McNamara Tells Huge U.S. Power

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert McNamara Saturday night said "forcible interference" with U.S. rights and obligations would necessarily lead to a conflict—which this country would win.

In a major speech, McNamara also rejected Russia's claim that it has developed an anti-missile missile. In the event of war, he said, U.S. missiles and bombers would be able to reach their targets.

L.a.C. Says: It Takes Courage

It took courage and integrity for the four county supervisors to refuse to call a special election on the issue of voting $400 million for "fallout shelters on school grounds." Burton Chace was one of the four who refused to go along with Supervisor Hahn's almost hysterical demands for such a program.

We say it calls for integrity to refuse to jump into such a vast expenditure for a program that may have such wide appeal. But there are so many conflicting views of what must be provided, it deserves a lot more scientific information than there has been given for public officials to jump at such a program.

The cost of a special election would be an estimated $375,000. The four supervisors refused to call this election for February. But they agreed that careful studies should be made to decide if the issue should be placed on the regular June primary election-at which time there would be little additional

It is apparent Burton Chace and his associates intend to get the views of leading scientists and nuclear experts as to the value of such a program. There is the question of air conditioning, accumulated food stores and medical attention for 1,000 to 2,000 children that might be placed in such an underground shelter for a week or two. There are divergent opinions on these points.

Although hours of radio and television time have been devoted to the subject and pages of newspaper and magazine articles have been run, they have not sold the public on their feasibility, according to public opinion polls. If such an issue were placed on the ballot now, it is probable a large portion of the voters would not go to the polls because they are not sure of the value. But those who are thoroughly frightened would vote and thereby place a $400 million burden on county taxpayers for a program that may not be practical.

What is needed, in our opinion, is that the President appoint a small committee of men in whom the people have confidence to report on what should be done. Such a group might be made up of former Presidents Eisenhower, Hoover and Truman. We would add Bernard Baruch. These men could call upon the best scientific brains in the country and make recommendations. We could feel confident these men would be objective and break through the clouds of hysteria and bureaucratic opportunism that have so confused the issue.

We well remember the great crisis during World War II when we faced a rubber shortage so vital to national defense. So many "experts" were giving divergent views nothing was accomplished. Then President Roosevelt appointed Bernard Baruch who on his "park bench" caimly held conferences with the experts and solved our synthetic rubber problem. It is such calm judgment by men we look up to in the bomb shelter confusion that is needed.

We know it is vital that the nation be prepared to protect its population in every way possible. It may be no such attack will ever be made. But we must be prepared for one if it comes. But it would be even more cruel to provide inadequate protection under illogical plans than to do nothing. What we need is the guidance of a small group of men in whom the people have confidence. Until we get this, we will have only confusion spread by opportunists who care more for headlines than they do facts,-L.A.C.

'Bad' Planes Certified OK, Union Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI)-The Machinists' Union Saturday charged that airline mechanics have been pressured to certify planes which they felt were unsafe to fly.

The union said the pressure was applied by management officials but did not name specific airlines or officials.

THE UNION said this presented a "serious threat to air safety and a disservice to the traveling public."

In some cases, the union said, mechanics were fired for refusing to certify a plane they considered unsafe.

The charge was made at a conference of union delegates representing 40,000 U.S. and Canadian airline mechan safety problems at the threeday conference here this

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

CHIMPANZEE IS placed in special container in simulated preparation for triple earth orbit of a Mercury-Atlas vehicle planned for this week. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration did not specify whether the chimpanzee shown is one of several candidates for the flight.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)-The United States plans to rocket a chimpanzee three times around the world in 4½ hours this week in the last scheduled trial before an American astronaut is lofted into orbit.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Saturday disclosed details of the flight, which could occur

If everything works right and the chunpanzee is re covered alive after his pulsating 17,400-mile-an-hour jour ney, a human space pilot will ride the next Project Mercury capsule into orbit.

The space agency wants to accomplish the manned mission before the end of the year. Russia orbited two cosmonauts in flights earlier this year and Mercury officials would like the history books to show that both the United States and Russia achieved manned orbits in 1961.

The chosen chimp will be placed in a pressure-tight metal container with an eye-level window. It will contain a life-support system similar to that in the astronaut's space suit. The spacecraft also will have a support system.

Reveal Refueling of B52 Patrols

WASHINGTON (UPI)-The Pentagon has assigned big jet tankers to Europe to support alert patrols by nucleararmed B52 bombers "over the Atlantic area."

The department said the operation was known as "Exercise Chrome Dome," but it refused to discuss specific routes or numbers of

Nikita Assails Japan Leader

TOKYO (UPI)-Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev sharply attacked Japanese foreign policy in a personal letter to Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda, it was disclosed Saturday.

The Soviet embassy released the text of the letter in which Khrushchev blamed resumption of atmospheric nuclear testing by Russia "on the NATO countries' policy of force." "I regret that Japan has failed to understand the Soviet position," Khrushchev's note said. ## Americas Ask Road Survey

By HARRY W. FRANTZ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Strong: Inter-American support has been mobilized for an early start on the final survey of the 435-mile Darien sector of the Pan American Highway: But the "go ahead" still awaits U. S. decisions on timing and financing.

The survey of the last big gap between the motor roads of North and South America will cost $3 million, of which the U.S. share would be $2 million.

Yet to be decided is whether the government will provide the funds promptly from foreign aid funds or follow the past method of authorization by Congress.

*OFFICIALS of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads favor an early start on the survey but lack the money.

A reconnaissance survey of the route, from Panama City to the Colombian frontier, was made three years ago. It disclosed the engineering feasibility of an overland road which would not require overwater ferries.

The next survey would chart the route precisely and blueprint the actual construction.

Panama and Colombia are anxious to get the project started. Other Latin American republics also would be prompt in contributing to the costs.

THE PROJECT is supported by the Pan American Highway Congress and the International Road Federation, which comprises the national highway associations in the American republics.

The Inter-American Conference at Punta del Esta, Uruguay, which endorsed President Kennedy's "alliance for progress' program, also recommended "that the American governments make their observations known and hasten their efforts to finance studies on the 'Darien Bottleneck'."

It said the studies would lead to "initiating negotiations for long-term financing of a permanent road to unite the Americas and allow commercial, cultural and tourist understanding among our nations."

The Darien subcommittee of the Pan American Highway Congress met in September at Mexico City and endorsed the survey which would lead to eventual closing of the gap between Chepo, Panama, and the Chaco region of Colombia.

L.B. Building Down 35% in October

Long Beach's October construction valued at $5,021,130 was down about 35 per cent from September activity, Building Supt. E. M. O'Connor reported.

Nonresidential construction accounted for most of the decline while residential building increased slightly.

Additions and alterations represented a $1.6 - million share of total activity. Close behind was construction of four motels with a total 276-guest capacity and valued together at $1,463,500.

Apartment building continued strong with 20 structures for 179 families and valued at $1,012,160.

The air, too warm for early November, was full of dust carried west from the baking Mojave by the fretful gusts of a Santa Ana wind,

The dust made the dry heat seem drier. Motorists workbound in the glut of Monday morning traffic scratched at the grit already under their collars.

On the north side of Mulholland Drive, which snakes along the ridge of the Santa Monica Mountains between West Los Angeles and the San Fernando Valley, a jay hopped through the branches of a scrub tree in a steep canyon a quarter of a mile west of Beverly Clen Boulevard.

IT WAS 8 a.m. and in the canyon somewhere behind a home at 3651 Stone Canyon Road a small flame jumped in the chalk-dry brush,

Take-A-Deep-Breath Day? And do you think you'll know when it is National Indigestion Week?

You'd know the answers If you read the 1962 edition of "Chases' Calendar of Annual Events" which was just published.

It has been published annually since 1959 and replaces previous publications each year by the U.S. Department of Commerce or the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

There are special days for father and mother, mother-in-law and father-inlaw, but only Bulgaria has grandmothers' day.

Incidentally, the Take-A-Deep Breath observance falls on New Year's Day, and National Indigestion Week is Nov. 23-30.

of the Russians.
"That, I assume, has happened," Anderson continued, because there has been a theft of plans, and people know that the only persons interested in stealing them might be the Russians."

ANDERSON'S statements were made June 2 at a closeddoor hearing by the judiciary subcommittee on paents at which Vice Adm. H. G. Rick over, father of the alomic submarine, was the key wit

In response to queries of reporter, Anderson, now in New Mexico, sent word through office aides that his June statement was based on press reports.

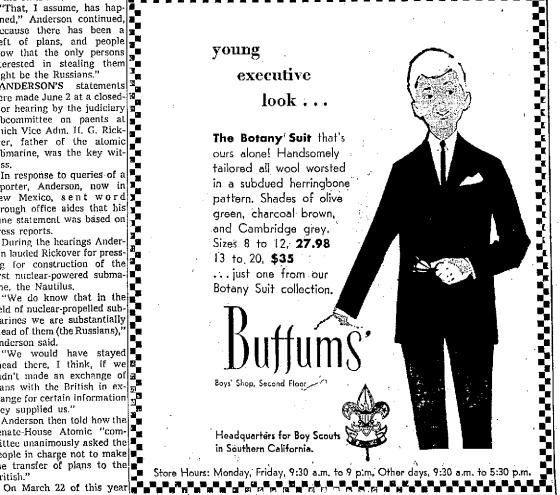

During the hearings Anderson lauded Rickover for press-ing for construction of the first nuclear-powered subma rine, the Nautilus.

"We do know that in the field of nuclear-propelled submarines we are substantially ahead of them (the Russians), Anderson said.

"We would have stayed ahead there, I think, if we hadn't made an exchange of plans with the British in exchange for certain information they supplied us."

Anderson then told how the Senate-House Atomic "committee unanimously asked the people in charge not to make the transfer of plans to the

THE education of Sen. Clair Engle about Long Beach suggests a continued informational effort to present an accurate image of this community to outsiders.

This, in essence, is what Sen. Engle said while here the other day to speak to the board of the 1966 Planet of Man Exposition:

"I have always understood that Long Beach is a city of retired people.

"Now see what has happened. Long Beach set a big fire to get a harbor area customs house. Now it's off and running on an international exposition project,

"These are not the sort of things you expect from a retirement community."

SEN. Engle is right—it's not a retirement community. It's a nice place to retire and a lot of people have done it. They're among our best citizens. But the idea that this is a retirement community — presupposing that a majority of the population are elderly and re-tired—is way off the beam.

Presently I'll offer some statistics to prove that, but you don't need statistics. Drive down any major residential area street between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m. any school day and you'll get the impression there's nobody around here but youngsters.

And not many elderly, retired people have school-age

JUST how do the age groups stack up in Long Beach's population complex?

Dr. Anton Thompson, director of research of the Long Beach Unified School system, has worked out the answers to that question, basing his studies on the official 1960 federal census. Reports of "miscellaneous population characteristics' of the community have just come through from the Census Bureau.

They show, for instance, that half of the people living in Long Beach are under 34 years of age.

That's the median age of the total population. The median age of males is 30.9 and that of females 37.

Of the 1960 total population of 344,168, some 12.6 per cent are in the age-bracket from 65 and up. (There are 7,279 people over 80 living here.)

WHAT about the youngsters? There are a lot of them. Dr. Thompson's breakdown shows 106,081 Long Beach residents 19 years of age and under. Under five years: 29,553.

Dr. Thompson grouped the population in brackets of five years, and the largest group is the "under-five year" category. Next in size is the group between 20 and 24, totaling 27,966.

...The local residents whose ages range from 20 to 40 years total 95,463.

All of this, of course, quickly disposes of the suggestion that nearly every body in Long Beach is elderly and retired.

THE population study includes these additional interesting figures:

White male, 164,044; white female, 165,355; total white, 329,399.

Nonwhite male 8.012 nonwhite female, 6,757; total nonwhite, 14,569.

Obviously This Is Not Pepper's Pot

IF YOU OBJECT to reading human reasoning into acts of animals, try looking at this from the viewpoint of the dog and cat. There's this dish of food set out for Pepper, an Australian Sheep dog owned by Mrs. John H. Neagle of 3055 Eucalyptus Ave. Pepper sniffed preparatory to eating when a neighborhood cat scowls onto the scene with an apparently unanswerable argument as to who should be first at chow. The reasoning is not only apparently unanswerable but Pepper is astounded at the logic of the cat's approach. And not only is he astounded, Pepper is completely floored. Now if that was tongue in the dish you could say the cat's got his tongue.--(Photos by Esther Neagle.)

A new weapon in the continuing fight against narcotics addicts is being tested by Superior Court Judge Maurice C. Sparling.

It's a new condition of probation for narcotics law violators-that they agree that their person, auto or home can be searched for drug contraband at any time during their probationary period.

Youth Has a Right to Impartial Study of Vital Questions

IN THESE nervous times many of us look for scapegoats to relieve our frustrations. The most convenient targets are governmental bodies, since they often deal with the sort of controversial matters that generate emotional tension. Public school officials are perhaps the most vulnerable of all because of the sensitive character of their youth-training responsi-

Fortunately Long Beach Unified School District has escaped most of the racking, divisive quarrels that have seriously impaired some systems. The great majority of the public has again and again demonstrated its confidence in the school officials, both in the election of board members and the approval of bond issues. Recently there has been scattered semicoherent criticism from extremists who certainly don't object to controversy-but who want only their side presented in the school's program.

THE DISTRICT'S officials have managed to keep these distracting pressures within limits by carefully applying for the last nine years an instructional policy on controversial issues which is really not open to attack by reasonable Americans. Developed by school superintendents of most of the larger cities in the United States and Canada, it has been modified slightly here as experience since the 1952 adoption date has suggested.

The policy is prefaced with the declaration that DREW PEARSON some subjects are above controversy: democracy and our established traditions on the one hand and communism and fascism on the other. The schools teach the validity of the former and the fallacies of the QUESTIONS that involve conflicting views by political parties, by management and labor, by city and country and by other large groups are explored objectively. The schools do not teach them but rather provide opportunities for their study.

In this connection school officials insist that the student has certain rights which must be recognized. Among them are free access to all relevant information, study under competent instruction in an atmosphere free from bias, and the right to form and express his own opinions.

Good administration and good teaching are essential to the application of these principles. Administrators must assign to such subjects teachers of superior ability; and given an assignment, the teacher must refrain from promoting partisan viewpoints.

PARENTS and taxpayers also have their rights, to be sure. One of them is to protest any instance, if they have evidence beyond rumor and suspicion, of prejudiced administration or teaching.

But no one has the right to ask that the schools exclude from the classroom the essentials of political, economic and social living, however explosive, which will confront the student once he becomes an adult

'Pirate Year' on River

Q. What was the "pirate year" on the Mississippi

A. This question probably refers to the year 1788, in which pirates were finally driven from the Mississippi after terrorizing river commerce for years. It has been called "L'Annee des Dix Bateaux" (Year of the 10 Boats) because in that year the river was cleared of pirates by the concerted efforts of the crews of 10 boats traveling upstream together from New Orleans for that purpose.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Long Pull Best

By BEN ZINSER AND GEORGE X, TRIMBLE, M.D. Exercise of muscles for endurance development appears preferable to exercise for strength only, new research shows.

Scientists at the State University of Iowa asked two groups to perform special exercises every day for

The subjects in one group trained for strength development of hand grip. They exerted maximum gripping strength for six seconds at a time.
Subjects in the other group trained for endurance development. They contracted hand muscles at onethird maximum strength till fatigue set in. As hand strength increased during the 29 weeks, these subjects adjusted, always keeping sustained hand-muscle contractions at one-third of maximum strength.

Findings: Those who exercised for strength only: Gained in strength but not in endurance.

Those who trained for endurance: Improved in strength AND endurance.

"MEDICINE AND YOU" has been asked to point out another danger involved when an untrained person attempts to administer the new closed-chest method of heart massage.

It's this: The victim's heart may not have stopped. The victim may have only fainted. But the untrained person may think that the person lying on the ground

If done improperly, the new resuscitation procedure may break a rib or rupture the victim's liver, possibly resulting in massive internal hemorrhage.

Here's the correct way to perform the new massage procedure:

Place the victim on the floor, sidewalk or solid ground. Don't attempt to revive the victim if he's lying in bed. Reason: Too much "give" under the patient; the procedure will prove ineffective.

Place the heel of one hand about two inches up from the bottom of the chest plate. Place the other hand atop the first.

Apply pressure through the heel of the hand at a rate of about 60 times a minute.

The procedure compresses the heart between the spine and breastbone rhythmically, massaging the heart.

The amount of pressure depends on the size of the victim. An adult may require the full weight of rescuer. If someone is available, mouth-to-mouth breathing should also be performed.

HOW CAN YOU recognize whether a young child is suffering from schizophrenia (split personality)? Check for the following points, suggests a report in the British Medical Journal:

- Impaired emotional relationships with people. Child may be aloof, have difficulty in mixing with oth-
- Unawareness of own personal identity. May confuse personal pronouns, display abnormal behavior toward self.
- Preoccupation with particular objects without regard to their accepted function.
- Sustained resistance to change in environment. · Abnormal perception. May show insensitivity to pain and temperature.
- Acute, excessive and seemingly illogical anx- iety. Speech may have been lost or never acquired.
- May parrot words spoken by others. • Distorted behavior pattern. Child may strike bizarre postures, display ritualistic mannerisms.

'Drop Out' Battle

By HARRY KARNS

School Research Associates Are you winning the "drop-out" debate at your

and get a job."
YOU—"Stay and get your diploma."
YOUR SON—"But I don't need it. Jim has a job at

$80 a week to start, and he didn't get his diploma." YOU-"Just the same, . . . '

YOUR ARGUMENTS sound vague and repetitious and yet, you know you're right. How do you prove it?
Today we have some ammunition that you may find

To discover what happens to drop-outs, the Bureau of Labor Statistics in recent years conducted an extensive study of high school graduates and students who quit before completing high school.

THE STUDY underscored five points which throw the hulk of the solid evidence on your side of the debate:

Graduates earn more than drop-outs. 2. Among boys, five times as many drop-outs as grads fall to the bottom of the wage scale.

3. Graduates get the best jobs.4. It takes drop-outs longer to find jobs.5. Unemployment is higher among drop-outs.

ALTHOUGH YOUR son's friend "Jim" with his starting wage of $80 is making good pay for a youngster, there's another side of that story. His starting pay is also very close to the top wage he'll get for life. And when business tightens up, he'll be one of the first to get his walking papers. Most drop-outs are only 16 and 17 years old when they decide to quit school. Of all age groups theirs suffors the highest rate of unemployment! Extreme youth, in good times or bad, is a disadvantage in the jobmarket.

The next time your son challenges you to the dropout debate, we suggest you use some of these facts on

That diploma looks much more important to him when he begins to see its value in terms of his future pay. (Want to help your child do good work in school? Baylor, unwilling to talk much on the subject, said he had not received any papers. Said Schaus: "Naturally we're still hopeful for the best. So is Elgin. If he is called up for his physical, and accepted, then we'll have to take definite action."

SCHAUS assembled his players after the clinic and told them to "just take each game as it comes and don't worry as long as we have Elgin. We'll cross our bridges when we get to them."

69-Yard TD by Beathard on First Play

The team that recently gave UCLA fits was overpowered by USC Saturday in a game that had everything from a touchdown on the Trojans' first play to the weirdest stolen ball trick in memory.

The Trojans put on their running shoes for the Coliseum collision with Stanford and came away with a 30-15 victory that heaped fuel on the smoldering college-

The Trojan offense accounted for 372 yards, which is more than twice as much as UCLA made two weeks ago against the same Stanford linemen.

"I won't even try to guess whether USC or UCLA will win," drawled Cactus Jack Curtice, who had borne up remarkably well for a coach who had just watched his team try for the NCAA fumbling record.

The Trojans and Bruins meet in two weeks for the Rose Bowl bid.

STANFORD FUMBLED SEVEN TIMES and lost the ball on six of them as Troy ran its season record to 4-3-1 and its AAWU record to 2-0-1. Stanford is 3-5.

It was the running of QB Pete Beathard and the plunging of fullback Ben Wilson that accounted for the bulk of the 310 yards rushing for Troy before a Homecoming crowd of 36,598. The Trojan passing game was kept in the locker room, but the three completions did add up to a new school record. End Hal Bedsole caught all three for 62 yards and boosted his total receptions for the season to 26. The record of 25 had belonged to Tom Nickoloff, set Willie Brown carried the ball only two times and totaled two yards, but coach John McKay pronounced him fit and ready for the season windup at Pittsburgh next week and against the Bruins Nov. 25. "His timing was a little bit off still today," said McKay. Brown showed no sign of the limp which has plagued him for a month.

Troy scored on its first play when Beathard went 69 yards around end, a maneuver that proved to be the death blow for Stanford's injury-thinned ballclub, ("We're only slightly worse off now in injuries than when we played UCLA," said Stanford publicist Don Liebendorfer. "These are the same linemen.")

THE WEIRD PLAY CAME IN the fourth period following USC's final TD. On the kickoff halfback Gary Craig, who fumbled three times, broke through the onrushing Troy boys and was grabbed around the shoulders by the last defender, Bill Nelsen, at the Stanford 40.

Craig and Nelsen did a couple of quick whirls and suddenly the Indian was trying to tackle the Trojan. During the whirling, Nelsen had taken the ball away from the Stanford lad. It was recorded as fumble No. 7 and it seemed appropriate that the Injuns end their bumbling afternoon with a flourish.

Stanford had fumbled only 12 times in seven previous games. "I've never seen one like that," said McKay

"I'm in sympathy with Jack (Curtice), said McKay of Stanford's dropsy. McKay has watched similar Trojan performances, but this time McKay's team bobbled the ball only twice and the guilty parties fell on it im-

"It seems like the easier it is for us to score, the tougher the game is for us," commented McKay.

BEATHARD GOT THE TROJANS off to a good start with his 69-yard run around end on the first USC scrimmage play. It looked so simple that the Troy players didn't try hard the rest of the day.

Beathard just put the ball under his arm and started to run. It was not an option play. He got good blocks all the way down the sideline.

On the conversion play, Beathard, the holder, fumbled the snapback and the kick didn't get head high. USC didn't make a conversion all day. Stanford fumbled four times in the first half and USC recovered all of them. There must be NCAA statistics to prove that a team can't do this and stay in contention.

but at the intermission the Injuns were only five points It was one of those fumbles that set the Trojans moving toward their second TD. From their own 40 late in the first period, Troy got a big boost from a foul penalty and Beathard passed and pitched to the TD in seven plays. Wilson went the final 10 yards, knocking over three men in a pile-driving run. Troy began to pull away at the outset of third period.

Again it was the power of Wilson, who must be the most feared runner in the West. The cardinal-shirted kids

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

MORE SUNDAY PEARLS:

. . . The boys of good, old Natick, Mass., are getting their dander rising again. Natick's west coast agent, Gene Morris of Long Beach, took offense at a recent comment here about the twin prides of Natick, Frank Varrichione and Dave Morgan. He bristled off a letter to the Natick Herald sports editor, who in turn bristled off this printed reply to the poor, old Merry-Go-Round:

"With west coast football in a sorry mess for over six seasons now, maybe it WOULDN'T be a bad idea to move the whole town of Natick out there, as suggested in your column. Surely, Brother Hollingworth, you do not expect ONE player, in each instance, Morgan and Varrichione, to lift the west coast teams out of the slough of despond, as it were? Anyway, we honestly hope, Hank, that Gene Morris' shaft that you are 'strictly a ringside fighter' is wide of the mark!"

It's wide all right, sir, I don't even fight at ringside!

Personnel, Not Shotgun, Wins for 49ers

Most discussed team of the 1961 pro football season has been the San Francisco 49ers . . . and their "Shotgun Offense."

First, the Shotgun was hailed as a wonder system and one that at long last would lead the 49ers to a cham-

But during the past three weeks, they've been writ-ing about the "collapse" of the 49ers and that the Shot-

RED HICKEY Desperation Measure gun is dead.

However, the 49ers have not collapsed . . . nor has the Shotgun lost its effectiveness against certain types of opposition.

If observers and fans alike would just settle back and study the results objectively, they would see that the 49ers are doing just about what was expected of them in pre-season estimates . . . no worse and not much better.

The 49ers figured to hit this point of the season when they visited the Coliscum today for their final meeting of the year with the Rams at about a .500 clip . . . 4-4. They currently stand 4-3-1, thanks to some good fortune against the Detroit Lions, whom they have defeated once and gained a "lucky" 20-20 tie in their other meeting last Sunday.

Despite what has been written about the Shotgun, the system itself is no longer a problem to defense if a team has adequate personnel. While the Shotgun did pick up a victory or two due to the element of surprise when Red Hickey lirst sprung it, the 49ers now win or lose games like all other teams-nn personnel and the breaks.

AS ONE TOP FOOTBALL MAN in the NFL says . . "A gimmick is good for only one game. The league is blessed with the greatest football brains in history and as soon as the coaches see something new or different, it doesn't take them long to figure out the answer.

'The Shotgun didn't fool anybody for more than one game. The 49ers' victories at the tailend of last year which earned them a tie for second place in the Western Division was a matter of healthy personnel and a combination of favorable circumstances.

"Even Hickey admits the Shotgun was dreamed up for just one game as a desperation measure to use against the Baltimore Colts, it worked because of its surprise element...plus a couple of fantastic plays that helped the 49ers post a 30-22 victory. The publicity value was so great, of course, that the Shotgun was retained."

Only the win and tie with Detroit could be called "surprises" of the 49er season to date. They had been figured to lose those two games in the pre-season run-

FOR INSTANCE, THEY OPENED the season with a 35-3 victory over the Washington Redskins. That was routine. Everybody beats the 'Skins.

In the second game, the Shotgun was muzzled by Green Bay, 30-10. That also was expected.

The Shotgun got its biggest publicity lift the next week when the 49ers humiliated the Lions in Detroit, 49-0. As Lion coach George Wilson pointed out last week, "it wasn't the system that beat us. It was just one of those days when the 49ers didn't make a single mistake ... while we couldn't do anything right."

The following week, the 49ers smeared the Rams, 35-0. That result also had been conceded in the pre-season

San Francisco then downed the tail-end Minnesota Vikings, 38-24, to run their win string to three in a row for a 4-1 seasonal record and moved into a tie for first place with Green Bay.

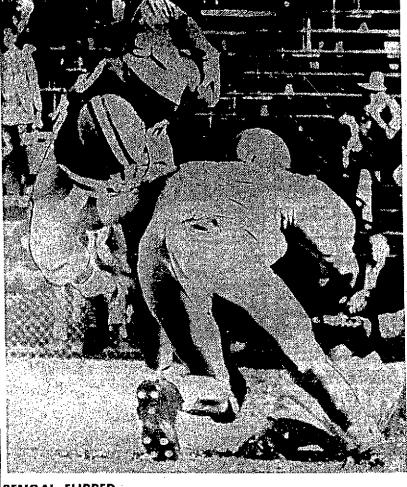

The "bubble" broke the following week when the Chicago Bears crushed them, 31-0, and the Pitt Steelers followed with a 20-10 triumph over the 49ers.

HOW ARE RIVALS DEFENSING the 49ers? Quite simple. For the past few years, the basic defense in football has started up front with a 4-3 alignment backed by two cornermen and two safetymen.

When the 49ers came up with the Shotgun, a modified spread formation, it spread the opposition's fourman lines, thus giving the San Francisco linemen better blocking angles and permitting the 49ers to run effecheen pri arily used formation from in the past for passing.

Rivals quickly countered by employing five-man lines with one man playing head-on with the center, This shored up the defensive lines and the "gimmick" was

The 49ers now must win through superior personnel or the ever-present breaks of the game. The shotgun is no longer a major factor!

More About Those Pheasants

Referring back to last Sunday's column and those 19,500 pheasant which we said the Fish and Game Department would release in Southern California, we'd like to give this additional information: All of those birds will not be released at one time.

The releases will be made in the areas listed last Sunday at times which the DFG prefers to keep secret. It's the same old story as in planting trout: Give the exact time and place where a plant will be made and the hunters will outnumber the birds 100 to one.

Some of the pheasants were released prior to the season's opening Saturday, and others were saved for planting so that the spread of what few birds the DFG has will be as uniform as possible.

The same situation will prevail at the Morena Co-Op, the only state-managed shooting area in the Southland. There is no charge for hunting at Morena, but it's firstcome, first-served. And remember hunters from the Los Angeles-Long Beach area who journey there will be competing with plenty of nimrods from San Diego, which is closer.

The co-op is situated near Morena Lake, 60 miles east of San Diego between Highways 80 and 94. The two checking stations will be open at 7 a. m. daily through Monday, Nov. 20, closing day of the co-op.

IF YOU ARE HOPING to kill a pheasant or two in the Southland this year, you'll have to be on your toesand running-because the hunting pressure is worse than ever. This may be the last year in which even such a small number as 19,500 birds will be scheduled for Southern California. The DFG wants to get cut of the pheasant business because of several reasons.

Many sportsmen, mostly those who fish, have been critical of the DFG policy of spending so much money for ringnecks for the benefit of such a few. The department has to buck this criticism just as it fights that of the ocean fishermen, who say that the DFG spends too much on

However, it must be remembered that the troutstamp program of the licensing hurcau carries its own finances. Ocean fishermen don't contribute a dime to the trout program unless they buy the stamps on their fish-

Back to ringnecks: If Southern California ever got enough rainfall to fill anything except its domestic reservoirs, there might be some sense in a pheasant program. But without water, there's no chance for natural propagation and therefore no carryovers from the preceding year. That makes it strictly an artificial program each November.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—Congratulations to Richard Yater, of Anaheim! He has been named president of the California Division of the Izaak Walton League, Two other Southland men will serve with him. They are Charles Williams, Garden Grove, treasurer, and Wayne Held, Anaheim, conservation chairman. The IWL, meeting at Anaheim last weekend, passed a resolution asking state and federal authorities to take action in cleaning up the littered camps at Havasu Lake.

Quail and dove seasons are under way in Baja California and Ensenada sources report excellent shooting south of that city. San Vicente, Santa Tomas and other areas southward to Johnson's Ranch are especially pro-

In connection with reports on shooting below the border, let me say that the best place for information on hunting, fishing, travel, etc., in Mexico is through the Mexican Federal Tourist Office at 3106 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, The telephone is DUnkirk 5-6438.

You may get all the data there about gun permits and hunting licenses. Helpful employes of the office will tell you just how to proceed in your plan to hunt in Mexico. However, they do not issue permits or licenses.

Whatever you do, do not go to the border with your guns and ammunition and expect quick clearance with-out proper permits and licenses.

WONDER WHERE the bikini went? Under a knee-flirter beach dress like this by Miss Pat.

INDEPENDENT - Press - Telegram

By MARY ELLIS L, P-T Fashion Editor

What's news in cruise wear?

The answer will be out this week when fashion editors from hither and yonsville converge on Los Angeles to report to the nation on the latest trends in resort wear.

The event: 11th annual Press Week sponsored by California Fashion Creators to show "sunsational" new fashions whipped up by the sun-country's leading shapemakers.

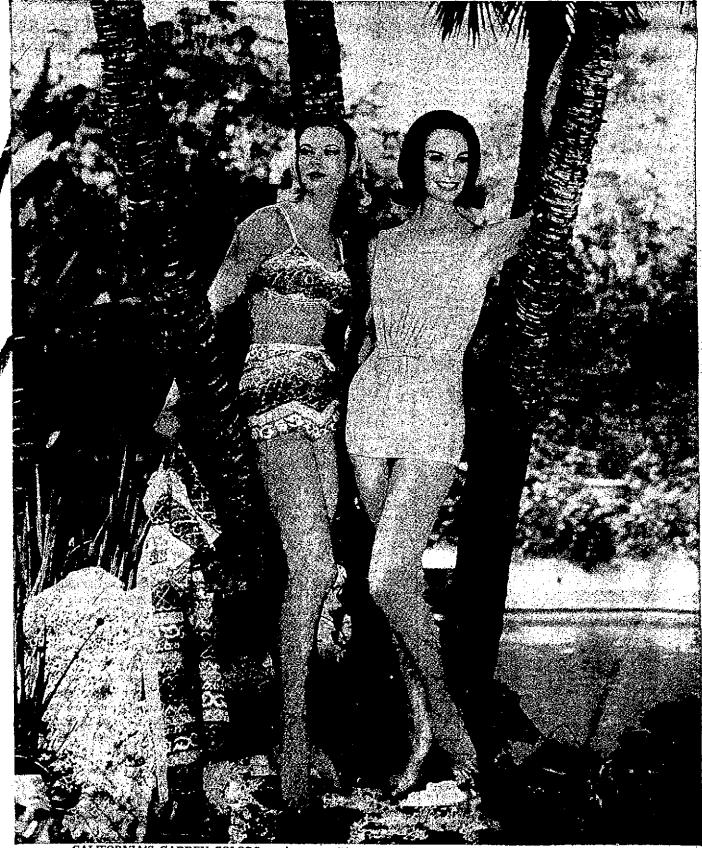

DAILY WIRE stories, beginning Tuesday, will tell what's happened to the bikini (we hear it's gone undercover) . . , whether the pants craze is slackening . . . also, whither goes the hemline and the waistline.

For, as California goes, so goes the nation. Trends shown in cruise wear by California designers usually go sailing right into spring-summer fashions.

So for a forecast of what's in the fashion wind for seasons to come, follow the women's pages of the I.P-T this week.

NEW STYLE TREND . . . the lowered waistline of Phil Rose's new "BB" pant, here emphasized by contrast color stitched-on sash.

A madcap for color-and a delightful miser for mak-ing the most out of the least expensive decorations for table settings — is Virginia Stanton, party editor for "House Beautiful."

For fall into Thanksgiving table decor she suggests a riotously bright collection of useable, edible decorations. She built a centerpiece of persimmons, avocados, pumpkins, gourds and dried barley heards. As the edibles ripen, use them and replace them. The dried items last from year to year (the only problem is storage!).

BUILD your own color scheme - but do use odd numbers in groupings of fruit or vegetables. Interesting old bottles make excellent candle holders to compliment such an arrangement. Use a plate, upside down, as "candlestick" base. Match base and candle to one of the bright spots of the arrangement. Pick up inexpensive, gaily designed tea towels for placemats or napkins, too, lous soprano from Australia, who has been making such a furore singing with the San Francisco Opera these past few weeks, was really launched when she won a $10,000 award given by the Mobil Oil Company in the "Quest for the Greatest Voice in Australia," She also won the Sun Aria Competition, a newspaper award. With this money she went to London to continue her studies. Another prize winner in Australia was the handsome, talented pianist, Richard Bonynge (pronounced Bonning), who had preceded her to London.

"Richard came to see me in England," related Miss Sutherland during our interview, "It was certainly good to see someone from home Anna from Don Giovanni." -and soon after we were Ist and manager and they have a fine son, Adam, aged 5 years, who lives in their villa on Lake Maggiore in Switzerland, "We make our permanent home there because it is near La Scala," Bonynge told me.

Joan Sutherland and I had another bond in common. While she was singing in New York City last winter she received a cablegram telling of the death of her mother. The day I made debut in England I received a cablegram telling of the death of my father. But we both said simultaneously: "the show must go on."

MISS SUTHERLAND auditioned for the Covent Garden Opera and they told her to come back in six the second day after I landed months. She did so, "Altogether, I think I sang 13 arias for them in the auditions, among them Donna

Then came a sudden call from Covent Garden that the Richard is her accompan- artist who was to sing and manager and they Amelia in "The Masked Ball" was ill. Could she get it ready in 12 hours?

"Well, I did it without rehearsal," recalled Miss Sutherland, "and after that performance I received a contract and have been singing regularly with the company ever since."

"Weren't you nervous?" I asked. "I was terrified," she rehut I said to mysponded, " self if I don't take this chance I may never get another!"

AFTER HER sensational success in Los Angeles she is going to San Francisco for a recital, then to Naples, Covent Garden, Barcelona, La Scala and the Metropolitan later this season where she will sing the title role in "Lucia di Lammermoor."

"I love the old Italian operas," she told me, "and some of them are being revived for me; among them operas by Bellini and Handel.''

So sweetly natural and unaffected is this startling vocal phenomenon that she admonished me not to praise her too much as "I might not he able to put on my hat." The furore of the audience at the Shrine Auditorium when she sang Lucia is a regular experience wherever she sings her husband told us. But Joan Sutherland would do no boasting and

specialist recommends hormone treatment for all women "from the menopause to the grave."

Dr. Herbert Kupperman, speaking to a group of doctors here, says such treatment, continued indefinitely, can "reverse some of the aging processes."

Specifically, he says, administration of female hormones in later life can diminish the likelihood of heart and artery disease. In addition, the hormones can slow down the aging of the skin and keep a woman looking more youthful.

Days of Forty-Niners LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE POSES CAMPUS PUZZLERS

An interesting follow-up to the recent Leadership Conference finds ten Long Beach State student committees looking for answers to problems posed at last month's

Although the majority of the topics are campuscentered, several have overtones which extend into the

Like, for instance, "How to Develop Loyalties to the Campus Above Individual Group Identities." If chairman Gary Little's outfit comes up with the answer to this puzzler, LBSC will take a big step forward. (Incidentally, we understand one of the goals is to have everyone snarl whenever the name of nearby CCAA rival Los Angeles State is mentioned.)

Maureen Kramer's committee's search for "More Complete and Effective Programs of Orientation for New and Transfer Students," if successful, will result in better briefing sessions for students making the switch from twoyear colleges to our campus. Seems JC transfers have been lost in the shuffle as more and more high school grads head directly for LBSC.

A group headed by Marilyn Fithian wants to know How We Can Create More Personal Relationships Between Faculty and Students." We hope they find out. Otherwise our zooming campus population and increasing difficulties in communication will make for an awful lot of strangers at Long Beach State.

ACE (Association for Childhood Education) meets Wednesday at 3:50 p. m. in LA4-108. Dr. Alan Timmons talks on "A New Concept in Visual Aids," and group pictures will be taken for the annual. All members are requested to attend; the meeting will last about 45 minutes.

A newsy little note from Circle K, Kiwanis-sponsored campus group, informs us that a women's service club, 'Sinawik," is being formed with about 25 charter members. The new organization will aid Circle K's in some of their projects . . . membership is up to 45 . . . sponsors are Long Beach, East Long Beach, and Uptown Kiwanis . . . Jim Krulic is president and Dean Clarence Bergland is faculty adviser. . . . Circle K objective is to provide leadership training in service to campus and community . among 61-62 projects are assisting with LBSC's Open House and planning a Christmas Party for orphans.

DON'T-FORGET-DEPARTMENT: Long Beach Film Society's showings of "The Bicycle Thief" and two unusual shorts at 5 and 7:30 p. m. today in the Little Theater. ... Wednesday, another program in the LBSC Film Series: "New York, N. Y.," "Living Stone" (Eskimo life), and the Academy Award-winning "Day of the Painter." Two showings also at 7 and 9 p. m. in lecture hall 151... and Thursday night, a very appropriate speaker for these troubled times: Dr. Ralph Lapp, nuclear physicist and expert on space, is the Evenings-on-Campus personality at 8 p. m. in the Little Theater. # Models Match Years

He was born in Michigan — but he docsn't wish 'n wish to return. Hale H. Young, today's Chef of the Week, has liked it here since 1923 when he took over a Ford, dealership in Long Beach. That was in the Model-T days when Ford boasted exactly five models.

There are 39 models in the 1962 line-one for each year of his dealership-and we doubt if Henry Ford, himself, would recognize a one of them.

Young left Michigan before it had become very much a part of him. He received most of his schooling in Ohio and New York before migrating with his family to the Northwest. After 10 years in Seattle, he came to Long Beach.

A NATURAL born optimist, Young has been a member of the Long Beach Optimist Club since Jan. 1, 1934. He belongs to Seaside Lodge of Masons, the El Bekal Shrine and is very active in Scotish Rite. With a daughter, two granddaughters and one great grandson living in the East, "the Youngs" do a bit of getting-around. In fact, they find the eastern seaboard a good jumping-off place for a tour of Europe, which they have done on which they have done on two occasions.

Around-the-house, our "chef" loves to putter—is a pretty good fixer-upper and eats and enjoys most everything that's put before him.

His recipe for spaghetti is one concocted originally hy an Army officer stationed in the Philippines.

We hear so much about the stress, the wear and tear of modern living. Psychosomatic medicine has become a household word, yet some very stressful times.

I WAS interested to read that as long ago as 1831 at least one physician was writing about the "wear and tear syndrome." One doctor, James Johnson, Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, and Physician Extraordinary to the King of England, was most disturbed about the wear and tear of those times

This distinguished physician was warning then of the dangers of stress, the value of periodic relaxation and a change of scenery and pace. His approach was psychosomatic. He wrote,

The operation of physical causes, numerous as they are, dwindles into complete insignificance when compared with that of anxiety, tribulation, discontent-and I may add, ennui of mind."

DR. JOHNSON felt that premature aging was one of the most devastating effects of prolonged tension.

So, today we have "modern" stress, and other generations had their own variety, which seemed modern to them.

There is a great backlog matrons in charge, of wisdom an has accumulated through past centuries and which is available to those who live in ANY generation-if they are not thrown off balance by what is considered to be "modern" at the moment.

It is stimulating and exciting and refreshing to be fascinated and enthusiastic about the modes and the wonders of the day in which we live, but it seems a terrific loss to ignore this backlog which has been built and maintained so wisely and painfully for so many years by so many people. Without this contact there is ersfield, 1962 grand Ruth, apt to be a loss of inner reserve, personal integrity, and a feeling of insecurity. Nothing could be more

OUR COVER

Uncle Sam's Navy and the city of Long Beach have enjoyed a long and neighborly association to the pleasure and benefit of both. Long Beach shares the nation's pride in the ships and the bluejacketed sailors who man them. In this vein, the city has provided the Navy with a snug harbor for its small boats and the men who come ashore in them-the new Navy Landing at the foot of Magnolia Avenue. Sailors swarming ashore from a liberty boat at the new landing are pictured on today's cover, a scene captured by the facile pen and brush of Clyde Winslow, Independent, Press-Telegram Staff Artist, who joins Southland Magazine in a salute to the United States Navy.

As the nation gives thanks for freedom and Americans sit down at laden tables to partake of the bounty that exists across the land, no Thanksgiving story is complete without a thought of the Pilgrims and their doughty ship, the Mayflower. Then came a modern day when a new Mayflower was fashioned and a new crossing made. The story of the Pilgrims' vessel and the modern ship is reviewed by Southland next week in "The Two Mayflowers."

Mrs. McFann, known to almost everyone as "Lottie," took over the operation of McFann Drilling Co. of Long Beach after her husband died in 1945. She became the only woman member of the American Association of Oil Well Drilling Contractors.

Things looked bad for her, at first.

"With my husband's passing I felt my whole world was gone. I was looking at a blank wall, as it were. However, I found, as Huxley says, That experience is not what happens to you, but what you do with what happens to

LOTTIE HAD always had a great interest in oil. As a child she had been raised around oil fields and after her marriage she and her husband had often parked by the rig to listen to its sound which she says is still "music" to her Lottie's talents had previously been in millinery design, and had she not met and married McFann, she might have gone on to success in this far different field.

As it was, hats were for-gotten, and to help finance her husband's purchase of his own rig, she set up business in a fireworks stand.

So fascinating was the world of drills to her that when her husband made trips to Texas and the Argentine for the company-that employed him before going into business for himself, she determined to learn what she could about the industry and took courses in petroleum engineering.

A WOMAN sitting in on electric logging, mud control and petroleum technology courses was a continuing source of amazement to many, but Lottie soon became accustomed to causing doubletakes, especially after she took over the control of the business.

Many an oil worker was surprised his first day on the job to find his boss, McFann, was a woman! But during the nearly 15 years she operated the business it was generally conceded she did the job as well as any man.

Her method of learning what she needed to know to get her rig through hard times as well as good ones was not only to attend courses, but also conventions.

How brushing with new Ipana helps you protect your gums as you protect your teeth

Don't just do half the job! Gum troubles are often caused by tartar that forms on teeth when soft film is not properly cleansed away. Den-tal statistics prove that it is gum troubles, not tooth decay, that cause most loss of teeth after age 14. So don't do just half the job. Protect your gums as you protect your teeth.

If you brush properly with new Ipana with hexachlorophene, you can help prevent gum trouble due to tar-tar before it starts. Ipana's film-removing agents help you brush away the soft film that naturally forms on teeth before it hardens into tartar that irritates and inflames gums.

Only your dentist or dental hygienist can remove tartar once it hard-ens. But proper brushing, according to Ipana directions, can help prevent tartar before it attacks gums.

A superior decay fighter, too! Laboratory tests prove that new Ipana kills more decay germs than any other leading tooth paste-even the leading fluoride tooth paste!

Every time you brush your teeth with new Ipana with hexachloro-phene, you destroy decay germs by the millions. Laboratory tests have shown that other tooth pastes leave behind many more decay germs be-cause they don't have Ipana's supe-rior germ-killing power.

Proper cleansing of teeth with Ipana helps protect your gums as you protect your teeth. Get new Ipana!

The Stakes: Survival.

In modern war, America has but 15 minutes for

By George C. Flowers

THE UNITED STATES gambles its life on 15 minutes-900 seconds.

Within that time it expects to detect an enemy attack and repulse the onslaught.

These are hard facts. Within 15 minutes, as intercontinental missiles are now constructed, a rocket with a nuclear warhead could rise into the nation's interception ranges and descend upon its target.

Billions of dollars and millions of hours have been spent to make this nation defensible in the war of tomorrow—from total destruction within a day. The people who man the defense lines say the job can be done—that the type of "sneak" at-tack that hit Pearl Harbor in 1941 cannot be re-

North American Air Defense (NORAD) is headquartered in Colorado Springs, Colo., but the 200,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen under its command man more than 700 defensive stations, from the North Pole regions to the subtropical waters of the Paritic Coach of the Pacific Ocean.

Men and women are on duty 24 hours a day, always there are interceptor and attack planes in the sky. Vast mechanical "brains" work around the clock—"brains" capable of evaluating sighted missiles, determining their course and target within a matter of seconds

THE FIRST LINE of continental defense is anchored in Thule, Greenland, where radar stations the size of a football field probe the icy polar skies. Another at Clear, Alaska, and a third at Fylindales Moor, Yorkshire, England, plug the holes in the airlanes.

The data continually picked up by these three stations is funneled into the combat center at NORAD headquarters in Colorado.

These three stations probe the sky between the United States and Russia continuously. Missiles passing through their radar rays reveal their positions and velocities in a matter of seconds. The mechanical computers of NORAD calculate not only the destination of the missiles, but their The computers ascertain the impact time and NORAD's defenses swing into action-with 15 minutes to go.

NORAD OFFICERS call BMEWS (Ballistic Early Warning Service) the "burglar alarm."

A second burglar alarm is the operation labelled DEWS (Distant Early Warning Service). This consists of a chain of radar stations strung out over thousands of miles across the top of the world. The stations, atop the continent, are flanked by stations in Greenland and Navy picket ships that patrol continually in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Navy "Warning Star" radar planes supplement the patrol.

DEWS is designed to provide a warning time of about two hours against bombers of 600-milean-hour speed. The warning time has, of course, deteriorated as the speed of Russian bombers gains.

The third line of continental defense operated by NORAD is called the "Mid-Canada" line, run-ning roughly about 600 miles behind the DEWS radar stations.

This system is designed to pick up tracks of invaders and plot course information to enable interceptors, manned or missile, to meet and de-stroy ultackers north of population centers.

ANOTHER LINE of defense, called the Pinetree, stretches along the continent on both sides of the U. S.-Canadian border. This is the northernmost portion of the close-in radar system that guards the nation.

Civil and Defense Mobilization, SAC and OCD maintain liaison officers at NORAD headquarters.

NORAD's radar nets catch fish continuously. Between 600 and 1,000 airplanes enter their area from foreign fields every day—a penetration of the radar net about once every 85 seconds. Air traffic within the continent produces about 200,-000 more planes to be scanned.

To help NORAD's identifiers, a close control is kept on flights from other continents. Each "intruder" is followed, his flight plan checked and truder" is followed, his flight plan checked and—in case of any misunderstanding—a "scramble" of interceptors takes to the air for visual identifica-

NORAD'S OFFICE of information says:

"The gauntlet an enemy bomber crew would have to navigate is a tough one. The attackers would first meet manned fighter interceptors supplied by Canada, the American Air Force and the Navy.

"Pilotless interceptor missiles would next be thrown into the fray, and then Nike stations would swing into action." Nike stations ring major population and industrial stations, strategic bases and vital installations—the last ring of defense.

Much of the defense planning would be done

This function was developed by NORAD to replace man's brains. High speed electronic computers absorb data from radar listening posts, process and display in seconds air-battle information—such as the numbers of attackers, and their locations, the number of interceptor weapons available and where.

are no strangers to city folk who live on outer edges of populated areas.

Furious fighters when cornered, bobcats often hunt for food at night in suburbs.

Cumning and resourceful, the coyote has the respect of all who know his ways.

Animals in Their Own Back Yard

By Aubrey B. Haines

OO NANY raccoons forced a Laurel Canyon man to abandon sleeping in his back yard . . . too many of the little animals wanted to pile into bed with him.

A Wonderland Avenue couple in the Santa Monica Mountains have placed aluminum bars across their view window to keep deer from breaking through into their living room at dusk.

A woman on Mulliolland Drive often watches a mother fox and her two babies gamboling on the lawn. Bobcats thrive in La Habra, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, Hollywood, Studio City, Sherman Oaks, Sun Valley, Glendale, Pasadena and Alta-dena. Mountain lions prowl the outer boundaries of Los Angeles.

The campus at Los Angeles City College as well as that at Occidental College is frequented by coyotes.

Rattlesnakes have never surrendered their property rights to Angelenos. During the past two years rattlers have died disputing those rights within a mile of the Civic Center.

Hundreds of wild peacocks range through Palos Verdes and the Baldwin Hills areas. Toward dawn, one can stand at Vine Street and Hollywood Boulevard and hear coyotes howling in the Hollywood Hills. News reports told of numerous singed and frightened animals seeking refuge from last week's fire in the Malibu-Topanga area.

RECENTLY, VETERANS in the Los Angeles Division of Animal Regulation were not surprised by a series of protests about a barking dog which kept flitting from tree to tree. The dog turned out to be crows, who are quicker than parrots at imitating the sounds they hear, including those of

Most wild animals are on the increase in Los Angeles city limits, except for the wolf, which has nearly vanished from this area.

However, the coyote-cunning and highly adaptable to his environment—continues to reproduce abundantly. If wild animals seem more prevalent than ever in the city the past three years, it is because Southern California is now in the third consecutive driest year in recorded history. As a result, lack of water and vegetation is forcing wild life down to residents' lawns and swimming pools.

Since the animals are all wild, they are po-tentially dangerous. When it comes to distinguishing the cats, man is frequently confused. Even some experts admit that the same animals are known by different names in different places. Hence classifications overlap in listing the mountain line below. tain lion, badger, cougar, puma, leopard, cata-mountain, bobcat, wildcat, lynx, and the feral cat.

THE FERAL CAT was once domesticated, or its ancestors were. However, it has reverted to a wild state. Such animals, though small, are potentially dangerous, There are also feral dogs. About 80 per cent of the reports of mountain lions turn out to be hysterical errors.

Once Los Angeles Animal Regulation men are convinced that a mountain lion is actually loose, they send for a hunter whom they call Longnose Smith, probably the best mountain lion hunter around here. Smith has a pack of hounds especially trained for tracking mountain lions. Black panthers are often reported on the loose in the city. However, actually none is in this area. As a rule the "panther" turns out to be a Japanese Akita dog. I arge and black, this animal has a head shaped remarkably like a cat's.

Some pranksters trim the fur of a large dog so as to leave a mane and make it resemble a lion. People who come upon such an animal unaware, however, do not think it funny. Not only does it frighten them, but it often results in the poor dog being shot for a lion.

Strangely, the deer causes the greatest animal problem here, according to State Fish and Game officers. Unfortunately there is no refuge to which vagrant deer can be transported.

DEER ARE MOST graceful creatures. Nothing seems as irresistible as a fawn. People are always encountering them and adopting them. This leads encountering them and adopting them. This leads to trouble, for there is a law against moving a fawn. Deer never become tame; they only become unafraid of man. They fight by rearing up and clawing vigorously with their forelegs.

Deer may remain cute and adorable for as long as two years. Then they will suddenly slash, blind, and cometimes will their adoring owners.

By far the most cunning, resourceful animal is the coyote. Compound 1080—a special poison—was introduced in recent years to kill the animal, but coyotes have learned to detect and avoid it.

Animal control men have profound respect for coyotes. Veterans believe that coyotes deliberately, lead dogs into traps set out for the coyotes. Looking like dogs, coyotes can at times bark like them.

10 billion meteors and fireballs bombard our atmosphere each day!

Visitors From Outer Space

By Frank L. Remington

IT WAS JUST past noon. Covered with a quilt, Mrs. Ann Hodges lay napping on the living room sofa of her Sylacauga, Ala., bungalow. Suddenly the whole house shook with a terrific crash. Mrs. Hodges jumped to her feet in terror. She felt a sharp pain in her hip. A cantaloupe-sized rock-like object fell from the quilt to the floor.

On that November afternoon in 1954; Mrs. Hodges became the first person ever to be hit by a meteorite—and live to tell about it. The rock from outer space ripped through the roof of her home, crashed into the radio, and ricocheted onto the couch, searing the housewife's hip and hands.
Actually some 10 billion meteors and fire-balls bombard our atmosphere each day, adding about five tons daily to the earth's weight. For-tunately, most of these celestial visitors are no bigger than a pinhead and burn to dust before reaching the ground,

ONLY A RELATIVELY few meteors are large enough to pass through the atmosphere. These are called meteorites—meteors that strike the earth. Most meteorites land in the ocean, a good place for them as far as mankind is concerned. Occasionally, though, a huge meteorite hits the ground with an explosion that makes the atom bomb seem like a wet firecracker by comparison. Undoubtedly many meteors have become meteorites since the dawn of history, but only about 1,500 sizeable ones have been found so far.

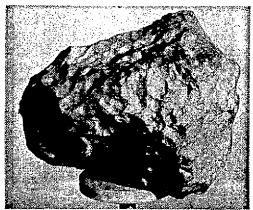

It has been only in the last two centuries that we have known what meteors are. In former times these fireballs were thought to be some type of weather phenomenon, such as lightning. In fact, the very word "meteor" comes from a Greek word meaning "something in the air."

When these small celestial bodies gravitate into the certile atmosphere they much though the

into the earth's atmosphere, they rush through the air at tremendous speeds and become intensely hot and brilliant, burning in the oxygen of the air. Thus, most of them burn to ash before they reach the earth. The typical meteor appears at a height of about 55 miles above the earth, burns itself out and fades into oblivion at about 45 miles.

ALTHOUGH MOST of the fiery visitors from the heavens burn themselves out in the sky, a sur-prising number of them do fall on the earth. Considering the regularity with which they reach the earth, it is remarkable that more than one person hasn't been hit.

There are several cases in which a meteorite narrowly missed hitting a human being. A stone

weighing 56 pounds missed an Englishman by a scant 10 yards in 1795, and in 1846 a small meteorite crashed into a room where children were sleeping, covering them with plaster dust. In 1938, a fireball which exploded over Lanao Island in the Philippines convinced the natives there that the world was coming to an end. In 1946, a meteorite fell into a swimming pool at Prost, a meteorite fell into a swimming pool at Prost, a meteoritic fragments. Luckily, there were no casualties. The two largest meteoritic falls in historic

The two largest meteoritic falls in historic times occurred in remote and unpopulated areas of Siberia. If either object had landed in a city it would have produced a major catastrophe. The first of these, in 1908, fell in the midst of a forest some 400 miles south of the Arctic Circle. The weight of this meteorite was probably around 40,000 tons, and it tore up the earth like a battlefield for three or four square miles. For a radius of 10 for three or four square miles. For a radius of 10 to 15 miles, the forest was charred as if it had been seared by a giant blowtorch, and for 10 or 20 miles more, the trees were stripped of their foliage and laid flat on the ground.

ANIMAL LIFE in the area was wiped out by the explosion, and inhabitants of nearby settle-ments claimed that 1,500 reindeer were killed, People 100 miles away were knocked off their feet, and some houses were wrecked. A railroad engineer 500 miles away stopped his train because he thought it had jumped the track. In Germany, the tremor was recorded as an earthquake, and scientists in England were puzzled by sudden fluctua-tions in atmospheric pressure.

Less world shaking was the more recent Si-berian meteoritic fall of 1947. In a mountainous region northeast of Vladivostok villagers saw a huge and brilliant fireball streak across the sky, leaving a trail of sparks and a black cloud. Al-though it was broad daylight, the fireball appeared to be as bright as the sun. When it landed, it chewed up the earth over a wide area. The impact chewed up the earth over a wide area. The impact was heard 100 miles away.

In the Arizona desert, a giant visitor from space blasted the huge hole known as the Barringer meteorite crater. The rim of this crater, about 20 miles from Winslow, rises 150 feet above the surrounding plain. The crater is four-fifths of a mile in diameter and nearly 600 feet deep. Its age has been estimated variously from 700 to 70, 000 years. 000 years.

SOME GEOLOGISTS think the meteorite which caused this scar was about 100 feet in diameter, or about the size of a 10-story building. When it struck the ground, it must have obliterated all life in the vicinity. It's been estimated that the blast dug out about 400,000,000 tons of rock. Great blocks of limestone were found more than a mile from the crater. Thousands of fragments of meteoritie piets lived have been described. itic nickel-iron have been recovered, some several Spectacular as the Barringer crater is, it is dwarfed by the Chubb crater in northern Quebec, Recently, scientists measured this giant pockmark, which has formed a lake, and found its maximum depth to be 1,325 feet and its diameter to average 11,500 feet.

Such craters suggest that the possibility of catastrophe from the sky is ever present. If a 100-ton meteorile could fall in Siberia in 1947, a body 10 times that size could crash into more populated territory at any time. Fortunately, the probability is small, especially considering the fact that a hundred of the largest cities on earth taken together occupy less than one-twentieth of I per cent of the world's surface,

THE CHANCES of an individual being struck by a nicteorite are remote, Prof. Lincoln LaPaz, head of the University of New Mexico's Institute of Meteoritics, estimates the odds at 3 in 10 that someone will be hit every 100 years.

Thousands of years ago a meteoritic giant slammed into what is now Arizona desort land and blasted, this crater—nearly a mile in diameter and about 600 feet deep into the earth, evidence of power.

Bachelor Explores Paradise

WHAT IS even more typically American than the hot dog?

A supermarket.

For that reason, Producer Ted Richmond and Director Jack Arnold loaded Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Bachelor in Paradise" company, including stars Bob Hope and Lana Turner, into limousines and buses to transport them to a suburban Los Angeles supermarket for location filming.

The stagehands arrived first, setting up electrical apparatus, connecting the sound and unloading equipment. Portable dressing rooms were hauled into the parking lot and make-up tables were set up.

THE STORE had closed for the day to permit filming without customer interruption but a jam of neighborhood residents, mostly housewives, started collecting around the supermarket as early as 6 a.m., three hours before filming began.

Store employes had worked all night "dressing" the set. Produce was polished and neatly arranged. Canned and boxed goods were stacked in pyramids along the aisles. Their work finished, they remained out of camera range to watch the filming. Extras and walk-on players soon arrived by the dozen and the clerks watched themselves replaced in aisles and at checkstands by professional actors.

For Bob and Lana the make - believe tour through the market was sheer joy. They would have been mobbed by fans if they ever tried supermarket shopping for real. In fact, Lana could be seen surreptitiously making note of items which she later ordered to be sent to her Malibu Beach home.

HOPE, playing the role of an author who has never seen a supermarket until he takes up residence in a suburban development, has trouble from the moment he enters. The script has him walk toward the "Out" door instead of the "In" just as a woman customer leaves the store. The door opens automatically in Bob's face and he almost gets clob-bered. Next he has trouble disengaging a shopping cart. Then a little girl volunteers as his guide, topples a pyramid of canned goods and blames it on Hope when the store manager arrives.

Bob and Lana bump carts at the meat counter as each grabs for the last frying chicken in stock. And that's where their romance begins.

"Bachelor in Paradise," with an all-star cast including Janis Paige, Jim Hutton, Paula Prentiss, Don Porter, Virginia Grey and Agnes Moorehead, reflects life in suburban America, in CinemaScope and color. Scenes were filmed in tract houses, drive-in restaurants, bowling alleys, at baschall games and, as we told you, a supermarket, the greatest item of contemporary Americana around.

In his quest for the "inside dope" on tract life and love, Adam gets on too friendly terms with Dolores Jynson (Janis Paige), a wife heading for divorce.

House Goes Double in Space

When the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Maxey added a family room, this comfortable scene resulted. Maxey did the remodeling, including building the large fireplace.

large family room, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Maxey, 15620 Belshire St., Norwalk, has almost doubled its original size of less than 700 square feet of floor space. Certain architectural changes also were made in the kitchen, which was remodeled and redecorated, when the new room was add-construction. Cost was kept at a minimum, but the quality of the workmanship is excellent.

Lumber used in the remodeled kitchen has an interesting history: it was salvaged from the old Excelsior High School when the latter was torn down. The wood is Honduras mahogany, a fine, substantial quality that is somewhat similar to walnut in color. Hours of refinishing were spent before the old wood reached its present state of smooth perfection.

THE ORIGINAL house had a tiny living room, small kitchen, two bedrooms, and a bath. The living room is still the same size newly decorated, however. The central kitchen, located at the right, is open both to the living room and the new family room, giving a feeling of space.

Children occupy the two

COOL

The kitchen is as bright as a new silver dollar. New built-in units are space savers. The built-in oven in one corner is in a unique setting of slim, wall-to-ceiling bricks. The "bricks," however, are actually pieces of scrap lumber designed and painted to resemble the real thing.

The kitchen cupboards look as if they were brand new and custom made. A "Z" design made from the mahogany decorates the front of each cupboard door. A homey touch is the tiny, especially constructed door in one wall that enables the family dog to enter and leave as it pleases.

The family room measures 16 by 32 feet. A handsome used brick fireplace lines one wall. A high divider forms the back of a walk-in bar that faces the room itself. A green planter adds color and decoration to the top of the divider. The bar itself is entered through a small gate about two and a half feet high.

A COUCH in the family room doubles its purpose as a bed. There is a dining area near the kitchen. A piano is handy for teen-age and adult parties. A TV is in one corner. Individual decorator's touches are everywhere. The guns in shadow boxes that are hung above the fireplace were made by Maxey well as the shadow boxes themselves, Mrs. Maxev made the oil paintings on the walls.

A comfortable leather chair is near the fireplace. Nearby is a table-high pipe stand, another Maxey original.

One of the most attractive areas in this home is the unusual service porch. Situated to the left of the high divider in the family room, and jutting to the left of the room itself, the area appears at first to be a sunny greenhouse. Pink hucd fibreglass on the roof gives a perpetual rosy glow to the small room. Washer and dryer line one wall. Pegboard cupboards are directly above, designed to hold all necessary laundry items. A planter is above the cupboards. A parakeet in a high cage nearby fits with the surroundings.

IN THE NOW seldom-used living room furnishings are attractive and comfortable, and just right for the room. There is a maple desk and chair; a small couch with a three-tiered end table, made by Maxey, nearby; a stereo with appropriate wall decorations on the wall overhead; and original oil paintings.

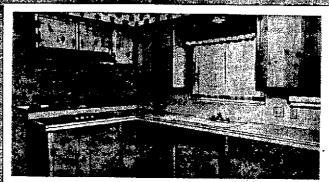

In no uncertain terms, friends questioned the Maxeys' decision to buy the house a few years ago. It was in such run-down condition that they had to cut their way to the front door. Walls were full of holes, sheds in the back yard were filled with trash, and the place was badly run down in other respects. The neat little home of today is a pride of the community, a fact even more remarkable because the Maxeys did it all themselves.

Among special features of this 1,098-square-foot, split-level home are large reception foyer, breakfast balcony viewing family room, living-dining terraces.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Split Level Provides Economy

By David L. Bowen

■ ROSPECTIVE homeowners hunting for a house design that yields maximum usable space at minimum cost have a vested interest in the split level design.

Because it manages to completely livable make nearly half the space wasted as basement under a ranch, anyone building a split gets a built-in bonus. In B-55 in the House of the Week series, this bonus is paid in the form of a luxurious reception foyer, a family room with lavatory, and a garage.

These features, gained at little extra cost, spell the difference between "just another house" and a home of distinction. The most remarkable thing about this home of distinction is that the area of the six rooms and bath on bedroom and living levels is only 1,098 square feet. If this were a ranch, that would be the entire house. Thanks to the space bonus of the split, architect Rudolph Matern gained 288 additional square feet of space for use as family room, reception foyer and grade level lava-tory. The single car garage is on this same level, but not included in the square foot-

OTHER FEATURES are a "freshen-up nook" near the main bath, a covered porch off the living room and terrace off the dining room, a balcony, breakfast room fireplace and dramatic entranceway.

Long planters, a bow window, slight overhang of the bedroom level and pierced brick screens give balance and interest to the front facade. The side porch contributes substantially to the appearance of generous width. Dimensions of the house itself are 43 feet 8 inches in width by 26 feet 3 inches in depth. Side porch adds 10 feet to the width.

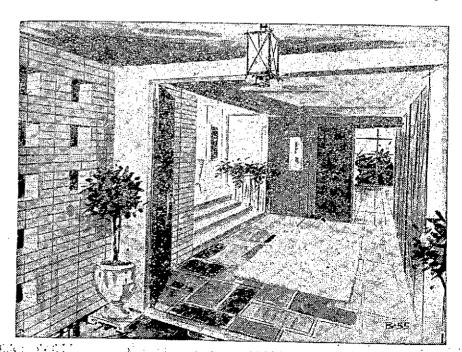

The imposing double-doored entrance foyer is room size and has a 7-foot bank of closets. Slate floor, planters and the brick wall extending from indoors to the outdoors add to the luxurious impression. A louvered door opens to family room through wood paneled wall at the rear of the foyer. In addition to serving as a glamorous reception hall for guests before they move up the wide car-peted steps to the formal living area, the fover acts as a central traffic hub among garage, basement and family

AN APPEARANCE of even greater length is added to the 20-foot living room by the sliding glass doors leading to the side porch. From the center of the living room a similar long sight line extends across the dining room to the terrace and beyond.

A kitchen breakfast halcony overlooks the family room to form another large open area, this one reserved for family activities. The stralocated tegically kitchen serves formal, informal and outdoor dining areas with equal dispatch.

All facilities for family activities are focused in the rear of the house for privacy,

but with good access to all other zones. The lavatory off the family room has an outside door nearby to increase its usefulness and to keep tracking from the outside to a minimum.

Three bedrooms with ample closets are concentrated in a quiet zone above. All can be entered from an efficiently short hall at the head of the stairs.

The freshen-up nook on the bedroom level-a vanity top with lavatory and splayed mirror walls-is an unusual extra feature for a small home. It's intended both for guest use and as a tempersaving overflow facility for the morning rush hour.

N MODERN home and apartment design, the builder usually is interested in giving the greatest illusion of space while keeping the total size as small as possible, thus holding down construction cost.

This often means an "open" plan, with no partition be-tween living and dining areas and frequently with the front entrance opening directly on the living room, with no foyer.

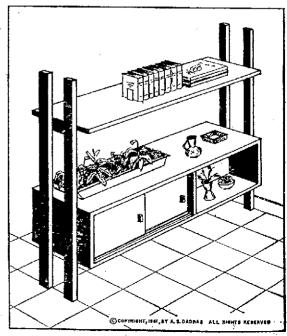

The technique has both advantages and disadvantages. By producing long "sight lines" it removes the closedin feeling which would occur otherwise. The disadvantage is a lack of definition between one area and another. Without some line of demarcation, the rooms seem disorganized.

A HAPPY solution is a divider, which is a compromise between a solid partition and none at all, says Ursula M. S. Dadras, New York. The design shown in the accompanying sketch is free-standing, thus making it possible to experiment with location until you are completely satisfied that you are drawing the line between areas at the right point. It may be used either between living and dining rooms or to suggest a foyer.

The unit is 18 inches wide and just over 6 feet long. Uprights are approximately 5 leet high. Sliding doors are mounted on both sides of the lower cabinet.

House for Rent for a Song

By Bertha Blanchard

EATHERED songsters will be attracted to your gar-den if you supply them with water, food and protection. Then your garden will be a happy place filled with joyful

The birdhouse may be a house for birds and also an attractive garden accessory. The kind of birdhouse that you choose depends upon two things: your garden, whether it be woodsy and informal or formal, and the species of birds you wish to attract. A rustic birdhouse, made from a small barrel or the hub of an old wagon wheel, is especially effective when used in a setting of vines, tree boughs, or heavy shrubbery. A formal birdhouse might be a replica of the big house. If you cannot make your own, birdhouses may be purchased in various styles that are correctly proportioned for different types of birds.

FOR PROTECTION, the bird bath should stand out in the open away from shrubbery on a pedestal, two or three feet, above the ground.

Small keg mounted on a platform atop an ivy-covered post makes a useful and attractive house for the birds.

The water should always be kept fresh.

Food for the seed-eaters is no problem-finely cracked and bread grains, seeds crumbs. A chunk of suet, securely tied to a tree limb, makes a tasty snack for the meat-eaters.

There should be a protective platform under the birdhouse and feeding station which keeps marauding cats

For a bird with a song on his bill there should be no high rent problem in this dwelling.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have data on WRIGHT.-R.W., Paramount; M. B., Garden Grove; S.C., Long Beach.

R.W., M.B., S.C.: WRIGHT was the old English designation for a specialized carpen-ter. The "Wright" was a master of his trade. This name was usually shortened from "Wheelwright" (wheel-maker) or "Cart-wright" (cart-maker). The Wright coat-of-arms, granted in 1509, has three gold leopard heads on a blue shield. Deacon Samuel Wright was one of the 17th century founding settlers of Massachusetts.

Going Places By SHIRLEY GOING BOB SLOANE

TOKYO—This, is the Orient today:

At the airport, a Pan American crew steps aboard a jet with the familiar blue globe on the tail. Half a world away, its passengers will sleep in their own beds tomorrow morning .

The terminal is like mostfunctional, modern, architecturally sterile. No pagoda roof, But at the Fuji Bank cashier's window, our currency exchange is totaled with an abacus . .

Two aged gentlemen in western dress bow deeply to each other in the street. This we were to see again and again. Sometimes groups of businessmen were to meet in a hotel lobby for a business conference, they would look like a football team going into a huddle, TOKYO IS no silk-screen painting of a town, It is big and crowded and mostly ugly. Overhead tramlines and power wires make for too many poles, and there are too many bicycles and trucks and motor scooters. The poles are covered with signs, all of them advertisements and most in Japanese characters, but a surprising number in English. Mobilgas and Goodyear and the inevitable Coca-Cola pop out of the bewildering maze of colored scrawls. The street signs also say "No Left Turn" and "Pedestrian Crossing' English, a holdover from the occupation.

The streets teem with humanity, especially scrubbed and shrilling school children in uniform. Where there are so many people, most are poor.

It is all summarized in the Asukasa shopping center, a bamboo-shaded shopping arcade and flea market on a temple ground-a swarming quarter mile of commerce between a red torii gate and a Buddhist temple.

In this carnival atmosphere you can buy eyeglasses off a pushcart: pushcart; genuine Geisha wigs; kerchiefs with almondeyed, Presly-sideburned rock 'n' roll idols silk-screened on them; cheap toys; swect bean paste in a hot, freshly baked waffle crust; even a model World War II Japanese battleship made in Japan, of course, but the box printed in English.

For instance, I for one had almost forgotten what a perfect desert evening is like until a group of us went for a drive at sunset. Skies took on indescribably beautiful hues, fading into hills that changed from varied shades of purple to strange, dark ghosts.

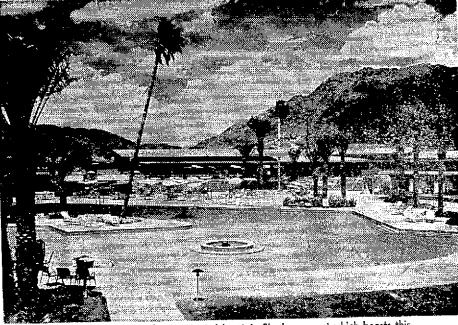

The stars appeared distant at first, then it seemed, plunged toward the earth, so numerous and so bright that the heavens looked almost unreal.

And the air! Soft, warm, caressing. It would have been impossible to order a more perfect evening, weather-wise.

IN THIS SETTING sunloving vacationists may sightsee and explore over a vast expanse of space. Nearby are inviting Paradise Valley and Scottsdale, Arizona State University grounds at Tempe, the impressive Mormon Temple at Mesa, Indian reservations, museums and botanical gardens, swank residential

Short drives lead to the Apache Trail, in the shadow of the fabled Superstition Mountains, man-made lakes where fish await anglers' lures, copper mines; Sun City, the new settlement for the retired; organ pipe and sag-uaro cactus and other oddities which grow almost nowhere else in the world; hunting; and just plain loafing in the mellow sun.

IMPORTANT TO Phoenix visitors, too, are the almost limitless accommodations, from dude ranches and swank motor hotels — their large pools shimmering — to com-fortable and well-outfitted but less expensive quarters.

Along Phoenix's so-called "motel row" of East and West Van Buren (U.S. Hwy. 80) are several new motels with plush conveniences. In the resort area of Scottsdale, just east of the city limits and around such ultra spots as Mountain Shadows, Camelback Inn, dude ranches and motels have sprouted.

Chicken Rice Loaf goes to table attractively and is especially tasty when served with a mustard sauce.

Chicken Rice Loaf

By Mildred K. Flanary

GOOD COMPANIONS are chicken and rice. Both are in abundance now, so today's recipe is for Chicken Rice Loaf with Mustard Sauce.

The loaf is a hearty mixture of well seasoned chicken and rice spiked with bits of celery, onion and green pep-per. The sauce is quickly and easily made.

Chill any leftover and cut into thin slices for sandwiches, topped with a favorite dressing.

Chicken Rice Loaf

- 2 cups cooked rice 3 cups finely diced chicken
- 1 cup finely chopped
- 1/2 cup chopped green
- реррег cup chopped onion
- teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon fresh ground pepper
- teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- teaspoon monosodium glutamate

- 1½ teaspoons
- Worcestershire sauce  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon poultry seasoning
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten 1 cup milk

Mix together all ingredients. Line a buttered 2-quart loaf pan or mold with waxed paper. Add chicken mixture. Set in a pan of hot water and bake at 350° F. for 40 to 50 minutes. Let stand about 10 minutes before unmolding. Serve with Mustard Sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Mustard Sauce

- 1 101/2-ounce can cream of chicken soup, undiluted
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon diced pimienlo

Combine soup, mustard and lemon juice. Heat, Add pi-miento. Serve over sliced Chicken Loaf, Note: This is a highly seasoned authentic recipe as served in Arkansas. The seasonings may be reduced by half for those who prefer a milder dish.

Who Often Outraced Death

SOME drivers won more championships, others were as daring, and others as aggressive or hard-living, but the golden era of auto racing in the early decades of the 20th Century was domi-nated by one speed king -one "Babe Ruth of the Tracks"-Berna Eli Old-

His action packed biography, "BARNEY OLD-FIELD," by William F. Nolan (Putnam, $4.95), zips from one adventure or escapade to another, with no wasted words.

The deeds and antics of Barney Oldfield on hundreds of dirt tracks, the sands of Davtona Beach. the bricks of the Indianapolis Speedway, the roadways of the Vander-bilt Cup races and the Grand Boulevard pave-ment of Corona, Calif., are story enough without literary interference. For Nolan, 33-year-old

San Diego writer, car-toonist, film critic and road - race reporter, this was a labor of love because, as the son of a pioneer auto racer who competed of ten against Oldfield, young Nolan be-came a devotee of "Ole Barney."

Whether the popular and legendary Oldfield was a great man is questionable but as a great sportsman he moved spectacularly among the giants of his day—Henry Ford, Teddy Roosevelt, Harvey Firestone, Alex-ander Winton, Eddie Rickenbacker, Jack Johnson, Jim Jeffries, Louis Chevrolet, Gar Wood, Diamond Jim Brady, Tom Mix, Mack Sennett, Mabel Normand and others.

A master of the art of easy-come, casy-go, he lost a fortune in the crash of 1929 but apparently never shed tears. Not many lives reached the heights—and depths—of his and certainly few adventurers outraced death as many times as he did.

How Important Is Naval Power?

By Vera Williams
andent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

S Naval power still significant for the long-time future, or has the opening of space frontiers altered everything in the 20th Century?

What does the United States get for the $12 billion it appropriates annually for naval power?

Will naval power contribute to the future strength of

These questions are probed by Capt. Joseph L. Howard, executive officer, U.S. Naval Supply Center, San Diego, in "OUR MODERN NAVY" (Van Nostrand, $5.95.)

Capt. Howard points out that for centuries man has contended with the sea, in peace and war. Because 70 per cent of the earth's surface is covered by oceans, they become a more vital medium of international contact every year.

On the threshold of the Space Age, more than one-quarter of the national defense budget is spent to strengthen American naval power. Even that, strategists warn, may not be enough to insure safety and survival.

The officer-writer describes how the U.S. Navy is proceeding toward the fuller utilization of the sea in American interests and in the cause of freedom. He outlines the scope of naval combat capabilities at all levels of war and international rela-

But the Navy is more than just ships, guns, airplanes, missiles and space satellites. It is more than hardware. Naval power represents a concept, a distinctive approach to military power, he stresses.

The Navy is basically people. What the Navy is and does, what it adds to American power depends upon the people in the Navy, their attitudes, philosophies, outlooks

The accomplishments of this massive study of the earth and its environments is told by Canadian geophysicist
J. Tuzo Wilson in "IGY: THE YEAR OF THE NEW MOONS" (Knopf, $5.95).

Wilson tells how he traveled more than 100,000 miles in-and-out of the Iron Curtain as an IGY scientist and describes how scientists sent up the new moons-satellites-to study space, how they descended into volcanoes, glaciers, recorded crossed earthquakes and scored major scientific breakthroughs including vast new knowledge and theories of gravity, the weather, cosmic rays, moun-tain building, fallout and magnetism.

The IGY effort also revealed, Wilson writes, that men working together for common ends hold "in their hands, besides the keys to the nature of earth, the keys to the future of manking."

While few non-professionals have the opportunity of photographing such dramatic events as the world series, Kentucky derby, or Olympic track and field events, ama-teur action enthusiasts don't have far to look to find contests with a liberal share of thrills and drama, Local high schools, baseball parks, swimming pools, playgrounds or colleges offer a year-round schedule of competitive events ranging from football sketball, track, baseball, swim through basketball, wrestling, baseball, swim meets and tennis to provide interested sports photographers with almost endless opportunities for exciting and challenging picture taking.

IN EVERY SPORT there are those moments of action that will always provide good material for pictures: a half-back breaking around end, pursued closely by opposing linemen; basketball players leaping high into the air for a rebound; sprinters straining every muscle as they near the finish tape. Make full use of this basic approach, and keep shooting, taking full advantage of the action. But remember—while the area of action is more or less fixed, your camera position needn't be. Extremely low camera location can result in spectacular photographs, such as in basketball, where the players will seem to be waging high-altitude aerial combat with one another. On the other hand, high-angle shot made from a position in the stands or from a balcony or other vantage point help clarify a given action scene by showing the relationship between individual athletes within their playing area.

While it is possible to get very good sports pictures using only the 35mm camera's standard 45 or 50mm lens, accessory telephoto and wide angle lenses, if available, will prove invaluable in opening up picture opportunities difficult if not impossible to handle when using only the standard lens. Telephoto lenses are particularly useful when shooting football and baseball, sports where a large share of the action will be out of range of shorter focal length lenses. They also enable you to isolate significant expressions, gestures, and subtle action side lights on the field and off that will add an exciting extra dimension to your coverage. On the other hand, eye-catching pictures can result from imaginative employment of a wide-angle lens, such as in showing the vast sweep of a roaring crowd or purposely distorting the soaring height of basketball action.

Bulbs Are a Happy Garden Choice

By Joe Littlefield

NATHEN bulb plants burst into bloom, your gar-den will brighten almost mag-ically, as if the sun had swept aside winter and ushered in an early spring.

Daffodils—narcissus, if you will—whether the dainty jon-quils, poeticus type, or the true large trumpet type, are the most favored of all bulbs.

Best fun of all is to grow

them in pots. Set the planted pots in shade until foliage has grown three inches tall, then place the pots in the sun. A cool, dark, damp place to start is the secret of forcing long stemmed flowers.

There are several types and colors of narcissus to choose from . . . yellow, white, orange, double-shaped blossoms, two tones and a touch of pink.

Planted in the ground, daffodils show to better advantage if planted with annual or perennial flower beds.

There's Variety in Bulbs

Anemones are low growing bulbous plants. Interplant them with pansies, violas, or dwarf annual phlox. The large, poppy-like blossoms yield lots of color in the border planting. These bulbs can be dug up, stored and replanted next year, too.

Dutch iris show off to better advantage if planted four inches apart in drifts of a dozen and a half or more bulbs. Plant some Iceland poppies between the bulbs. They'll furnish low foliage plus dainty, pastel colored flowers which form a good color foil for the blue or bright yellow of the Dutch iris. Furthermore, Iceland poppies keep garden areas looking alive when the iris start to die down.

Now is a time "tailor-made" for tulip planting. Cool, damp ground, and increasing cooler weather, encourages slow root development which in turn helps produce long-stemmed, larger flowers in the spring. You can even plant tulips in half shade. Sow dwarf Virginia stock for ground cover over the tulip planting section. The dwarf stocks continue to produce low carpety color when tulips start to die down your local nurseryman has any ixia bulbs left, be sure to pick up two or three dozen of them. Plant them in groups in perennial areas of your garden. You'll learn that these stiff-stemmed flowers last well when cut for table decoration indoors. They add lots of color to flower beds

PLANT A FEW amarcrinums in sun or partly shady areas and you'll have many summer and fall months of fragrant, pink, amaryllis-like flowers. These bulb plants are a cross between amaryllis belladonna now called brunsvigia rosea, and crinum lily. They are evergreen and actually continue to blossom for at least five months of the year.

Sparaxis and grape hyaciriths form another interesting combination planting requiring about same number of bulbs, spacing, and depth planting. Sparaxis tubularshaped flowers in bright striking red to soft pastels, blue and lavender, bloom later than grape hyacinths.

Freesias and sparaxis too, form a delightful combination

By Dorothy Jonson

Don't forget your fall clean-up! This bit of advice is worth repetition. Cleaning out fence corners, pulling up dead plants and burning them along with the prunings from your berry bushes and other debris, is necessary to the health of your garden.

And equally necessary is the fall spraying with an oil emulsion, preferably an oil emulsion blended with limesulphur, which you can buy in one bottle. Give all your shrubbery and fruit trees, and even your shade trees, if possible, the bath they so much require to prevent destructive insect life from over-wintering and to destroy fungus spores which would otherwise develop into fungus diseases.

fertility of the eggs.
Your entire garden will benefit from a fall clean-up spray and you will have done one of the most important garden jobs of the year,

It's Called Rumaki PROP INTO The Hawaiian restaurant almost any evening and you'll hear people talking about Rumaki.

No Rumaki isn't the name of one of the Oriental chefs. And it isn't the name of a tropical drink either.

Rumaki is a Cantonese appetizer-a delightful gourmet item which includes chicken liver cooked with spices and water chestnuts wrapped in crisp bacon. The Hawaiian, a large, colorful tropical place at 4645 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. near the Traffic Circle, serves Rumaki a la carte or as part of the No. 2 complete Cantonese dinner.

The No. 2 dinner, incidentally, is a delectable $3.75 spread which offers French fried shrimps, ingenious egg roll, barbecued ribs, soup, Moo Goo Gai Pin (strips of sauteed chicken); Mandarin duck, lobster Canton, fried rice, tea, almond cookies and fortune cookies.

OWNER Thelma Mack, an intelligent, cheerful woman who bosses 50 employes, recently added a new dinner to the Cantonese side of her menu, It's marvelous Chinese barbecued ribs ($3.50), including egg flower soup, tossed salad, baked potato or French fries and beverage. New items were added also to the American side of the menu, among them a charcoal-broiled New York steak-lobster tail combination ($4.50); Hawaiian shrimp curry ($3), and an elaborate "fish-kebab" (assorted sea foods on a skewer for $3.25). All are served with appetizers on crushed ice; French onion soup; tossed green salad; potato, and golden brown Indian bread. Other popular charcoaled steaks on that dinner include top sir-loin, $3.45, and New York pepper steak, $4.25. Very popular these days is The Hawaiian's buffet luncheon, Monday through Friday, including seven salads, choice of three hot entrees, such as prime round of beef, potato and sherbet, It's $1.35.

Which one is the NATURAL BLONDE?

According to salesmen of hair coloring and students of human nature, the answer is: practically none.

Today's women, spurred on and stimulated by advertisers, refuse to go through life making only one transition—from young to old. They are determined to maintain the youthful look as long as possible. To this end they are constantly experimenting with changes in lipsticks, rouges, powders, perfumes, hair shades.

Why did Dolores go against the trend?

"I am alive-complexioned," she explained, "and my blonde hair didn't go with my dark eyes and my dark skin tone, so first I dyed my hair red. Then, like most girls, I began to experiment.

"Since I am an actress, my agent decided that I would look like Elizabeth Taylor if I went black, so I dyed my hair raven and I have been getting a lot of jobs since—although I must say Hollywood has always been partial to blondes."

There are three major reasons why American women turn their hair lighter: (1) They are convinced that members of the opposite sex prefer blondes; (2) they want to hide graying hair; (3) as women age and develop deeper facial lines and wrinkles, they believe a lighter shade of hair provides less contrast to an aging skin than the dark hair color.

One leading cosmetics manufacturer points out that approximately 90 per cent of all women over 21 in this country are naturally brunette or brownette. (The difference is that a brunette has darker eyes and skin tone than a brownette.) Seven per cent are blondes, and 3 per cent are redheads. Hollywood's number-one hair expert, Fred Fredericks, declares that most of the brunettes want to be blonde, and most of the blondes want to remain so.

Ladies Prefer Blonde

Richard J. McDermott, West Coast manager of Clairol, which sells $50 million worth of hair colorings per year, corroborates that statement by pointing out that the company's best seller is the light ash blonde shade, followed by lighter shades of blonde. "After that," he reveals, "our next best sellers are in the chestnut brown and gray hair coverings."

McDermott believes that most of the world's women are born dissatisfied. "Perhaps," he adds, "they wouldn't be if they were born blonde. Anyhow, we have maintained for years that blondes have more fun in life than brunettes—and apparently most brunettes agree, or are at least willing to test our contention."

Change for Change's Sake

Mrs. Perc Westmore, who runs the House of Westmore beauty salons, claims that women change hair shades regardless of their original hair color.

"I can't tell you," she insists, "how many blondes we have coming into our salons who walk out with red or auburn-colored hair. It is sameness that gets us gals. Sameness builds up frustration. Women like to try something new. It gives us a lift. That is why we go shopping. We are not basically stick-in-the-mud conservatives like men. I would say that 90 per cent of all women change their hair shade at least once in their lives either at home or in a beauty parlor.

"The only men who really understand us," she continues, "are the men who at one time or another have experimented with growing a mustache. These are men who believe in improvement—something all of us women cultivate from the age of ten."

NUCLEAR LET IT RUIN YOUR LIFE

A message from the Chairman of the first Atomic Energy Commission

by DAVID E. LILIENTHAL

This is a message of the most crucial importance to every American citizen. I urge you to read it aloud to every member of your family because it concerns your lives and happiness.

The author is David F. Lilienthal, a distinguished American who is one of the world pioneers of nuclear energy. Few persons have lived under the shadow of this power longer than Mr. Lilienthal, who was the chairman of the first U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. Mr. Lilienthal is at present chairman of the board of the Development and Resources Corp. in New York.

While this is a deeply significant article, it is far from a frightening one. On the contrary, it is a message of hope and abiding confidence in the future of our families and way of life.

JESS GORKIN EDITOR OF PARADE

- In California a band of 32 men, women and children, who had uprooted themselves from their homes in the East, began a new life in a haven they felt was safer from devastation.
- In Chicago a father announced grimly that he planned to mount a machine-gun atop his fallout shelter to keep out unwanted neighbors.
- In New York a social worker reported after a random sampling that many children, frightened by the adult world, no longer want to grow up.

Incidents such as these are being interpreted by growing numbers of people as signs that a state of panie is beginning to grip the country. I believe we are worried—reasonably and understandably so. But I do not for one moment believe that the vast majority of Americans is panie-stricken. Nothing could be more wrong, or more truly dangerous, than this assumption.

Those who come to this erroneous conclusion have

missed this vital point: The more we keep telling ourselves that a sort of "nuclear-phobia," or morbid dread of atomic attack, is upon us, the stronger the likelihood that such a fear will take hold. For fear is one of the most virulently contagious disorders that can afflict mankind.

No barometer available to us indicates any significant rise of fear in the face of present crises, although there is evidence of fright in some quarters. The incidents at the start of this article are examples. Even more revealing is the shocking debate over whether a shelter owner has the moral right to drive off a shelterless neighbor at gun point.

When we descend to such a level of argument, we are ceasing to be properly and naturally concerned over protection. Rather we reveal a resignation, if not an actual acceptance, that disaster is inevitable. Debates such as this are defeatist. We should reject them as unworthy of Americans.

Nevertheless, I see no evidence whatever of na-

civil defense, but is this fear? We learn from a national poll that people are more worried about a war breaking out now than at any time in recent years. Is this fear? President Kennedy stated that people are "naturally and quite correctly concerned" because "we happen to live in the most dangerous time in the history of the human race."

But a great gulf of difference exists between frank, open concern and the poison of panic.

There is no hoarding of food or supplies, no spending splurge on the one hand or sudden damming up of consumer spending on the other, no mass evacuations. I am told that psychiatrists and mental hospitals report no sharp increase in patient load, nor do employers in absenteeism. And despite rumors that many individuals are buying guns to protect shelters, manufacturers report no noticeable increase in weapons sales.

Why is nuclear-phobia so truly dangerous?

First, consider the effects of morbid dread upon your life. If it is allowed to penetrate into the mind and being, fear can warp your thinking, distort your judgment and corrode all the values you have built up in a lifetime. Moreover, it can do its damage by stealth. Sometimes fear comes in acute form but more often it penetrates our lives insidiously, changing us slowly and subtly but relentlessly and completely. Specifically, then:

1. It can make a family rudderless.

Families, like individuals, need goals. Plans must be made for what lies ahead—the buying of a home, saving for college, preparation for trips, long-range projects. Half the fun of family life lies in working toward these goals and achieving them. Nuclear-phobia, by chipping away at your faith in the future, will put your family on a tentative basis, causing it to drift along without purpose. Lacking the unifying factor of goals, it can all the more easily fall apart under the stresses that must inevitably come in the everyday course of living.

2. Nuclear-phobia can wreck your family's financial security.

It can bring about a state of mind that makes you say: "Why should we save for the future when it may never come? Why be careful and thrifty? Why not get all those wonderful things we've wanted right now and worry later?"

3. It can seriously disrupt a normal desire to build a family.

Having children and rearing a family is a normal wish. Some people, however, are already saying: "Why bring children into this kind of world?" If, because of this attitude, they forego the God-given opportunity of having children even though they want them, they are doing great damage to themselves. In years to come they will feel the barrenness of their lives more and more keenly.

4. It can wreck careers even before they are begun.

A young man may say to himself: "What's the point of studying so many years to become a doctor, lawyer or engineer? Who knows what will happen before I'm through? Why not chuck it all, find a job and get a little fun out of life?" Multiplied hundreds of thousands of times, this attitude can only have tragic consequences. As our world becomes more complex, only those with sound education and training can hope to get and keep good jobs.

But there is another grave danger we face if we allow ourselves to become fear-paralyzed. It is this:

Every man, woman and child in this country is now being tested by the Soviet Union, which has unleashed a massive campaign of terror to break the American will. Our survival as human beings and the survival of our nation depend on how well we pass this awesome test of our nerve. If we—and I speak now of every individual in every home—refuse to allow the threats to twist and warp our minds and actions in the ways I have described, we shall at least impress the Kremlin.

The sudden resumption of Russian weapons "tests" is clear evidence that Premier Khrushchev seeks to infect us with nuclear-phobia. I know something about these atomic tests. No one can tell me that a country needs to set off more than 20 atomic blasts in a few weeks if its aim is weapons development. There is insufficient time between these numerous new Russian blasts for scientific evaluation of the so-called "tests." The meaning is clear: they are simply intended to terrify.

We must by our conduct demonstrate in unmistakable manner that the American will cannot be broken or budged by any form of terror or intimidation. This is the heart-issue of the conflict in which we are all engaged. To do this we need the strength that we and our families can show in our homes and daily lives.

But the key question now arises: Is it really possible to live normal lives in these grim times? Aren't the circumstances so utterly dangerous and different that we have no alternative but fear?

The trial we are undergoing indeed is a severe one. But we can live normally and with zest and joy, while still being realistically aware of the stern test to which we are all being put.

How can this be achieved? There are two important ways:

First, we should understand that the current wave of nuclear jitters is not new. We have been exposed to them before and we have proved to ourselves that it is possible to live normally and creatively and obtain life's satisfactions, despite the threatened dangers.

Have we forgotten the end-of-the-world stories of a decade or so ago, when some people speculated on what might happen if atomic energy went on a rampage? Debates raged over whether the testing of devices would trigger a "chain reaction" that would cause all the hydrogen atoms in the atmosphere to ignite and thus blow up the entire planet. Certainly this nonsense frightened some persons, but the nation

Second, we should remember that mankind has always faced threats of the most serious nature and that we have built-in, God-given strength to live and a faith in life greater than any possible threat or anxiety of death.

Nuclear holocaust is without question the most horrifying of all thoughts to us today. But isn't it true that other people, in other eras, have also lived through perils and threats that were, for them, cataclysmic?

Living in the midst of danger is actually the state of human life.

Life itself is a continual battle against threats of every description—disease, auto accidents, plane crashes, the thousand and one things that can happen. Living with such potential dangers is built into the very cells of our bodies. From the moment of birth an infant starts to protect himself against a hostile world. All his instincts gird to keep him thriving. He learns to recognize the existence of threats, be alert to them and make his peace with them.

Therefore, I urge you in these most difficult of times to shun defeatist thoughts and talk. Don't allow any form of nuclear-phobia to alter your life plans. Have children, of course. Plan for that dream trip. Save and spend in the same wise proportion as before. Continue arrangements for retirement, Study to round out your training and your culture.

Live life fully and zestfully each day, enjoying your family and the people around you, accepting troubles realistically if they come, and working toward your life goals.

WE MUST, finally, bear in mind one more fact many ways the most reassuring of all.

Those responsible for our safety and our nation's survival are not asleep. The keenest and wisest brains of our country are working night and day to bring us peace with honor and to protect us.

Our leaders are tough and able. I know many of them, and I know they have dedicated their lives to the solution of the problems we face. Believe me when I say that we are not undefended.

I am convinced that this generation faces not bleakness, as some might think, but a future that is bright with promise. This future, with all its wonders of health, added years and scientific achievements, is ours if, in our trial, we can remain calm and resolute. If fear is contagious, so too is the will to resist.

Singing tagether, early worshippers lift hymn at Buffalo church's marning prayer session for businessmen.

They pray to be fair

Their business is God's business

BUFFALO, N.Y.

WALK into Trinity Episcopal Church here any Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock, and you'll find a representative group of the city's business and professional men on their knees in prayer.

Once each week, the Businessmen's Morning Prayer Group gather in the chapel to renew their faith and to ask for religious guidance in the workaday world. Each meeting includes a prayer, a short informal service, and breakfast in the church hall. But many members consider the service so uplifting that they arrive early for private meditation. More than 75 attend regularly; many never miss a Wednesday.

The group gut its start five years ago when the church rector, the Rev. Peter M. Sturtevant, suddenly realized that many of his parishioners passed right by the church on their way to work in the morning. Since Mr. Sturtevant is a strong believer in seven-day-a-week Christianity, he suggested to several of the men that they drop in once a week for a short service. The idea went over so well that it quickly became a regular weekly feature.

"These men spend a good part of each day making decisions that often affect not only their own lives but the lives of many others," the minister explains. "For this reason, their business, whatever it is, is God's business and their people are God's people. Therefore they all should be seriously and regularly asking for God's guidance and help."

Many worshippers say "amen." Bankers, lawyers, businessmen, agree that they get a great deal out of the dawn's-early-light service.

"I must confess," one banker wrote Mr. Sturtevant, "that for the first two meetings, I wondered why I was willing to rise before daybreak to arrive at Trinity Church prior to 7:45 a.m.

"After attending the second meeting, it became apparent to me that I was better able to cope with whatever business problems the succeeding days had to offer.

"While the spiritual gains accruing from attendance at these Wednesday morning sessions seem to defy adequate explanation, they are tangible to me." Usually, the service lasts only a short time. Worshippers begin to slip into the pews about 7:45 and pray silently until 8 o'clock. Then Mr. Sturtevant enters, a few hymns are sung, and the minister offers a general prayer. He always asks guidance for each man in his working day. Another period of silent prayer follows, and the group adjourns for breakfast.

Many of the men declare that going directly to their offices from the church keeps religion uppermost in their minds all day. "There certainly is opportunity for us to practice Christian principles during business hours and going there direct from Trinity makes this easier for me," declares a member.

Another regular worshipper makes it even more emphatic. "I need religion to maintain a proper set of values in these very confusing and complicated times," he says. "Sunday worship is not enough for me."

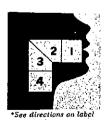

Chatting informally, the Rev. Peter Sturtevant, who started the group, talks jobs with business and professional men.

Years ago in the Hawaiian Islands, the Chinese had this custom: When a friend or relative died, they would bury him, then place a nine-course dinner on his grave to feed his spirit.

On one occasion, an American went into a cemetery to place flowers on the grave of a pal. While doing so he spotted a Chinese mourner at a nearby grave setting out the usual nine-course meal for the spirit of the departed friend.

The American, thinking this a rather wasteful and ridiculous custom, mockingly queried, "When do you think your friend will come up and eat his food?"

The Chinaman smiled. "Same time," he answered, "your friend come up and smell your flowers."

Little Nancy went to the hospital to see her new-born baby brother. She was lifted up to see the infants in the hospital nursery. Suddenly she frowned. "Daddy," she exclaimed, "those babies - they're not even done yet!"

The grave-digger looked up and said, "Help me out, Buddy. It's cold down here."

The 3 protegées of Darryl Zanuck

by LLOYD SHEARER

HAVE YOU EVER WONDERED WHY a man's second wife invariably resembles his first?

Authorities on love and marriage say it's because most men carry around a built-in concept of their ideal woman—a combination mother-sister-lover image—and no matter how shattering their first marital experience, they are reluctant to give up the original image.

It's the same way with a motion picture producer. He believes he can make a star of almost any woman who proves particularly attractive to him. Despite previous failures, he is prepared to try again.

Take Darryl Zanuck, 59, the small, moustachioed producer who used to run 20th Century-Fox. For more than 20 years Zanuck was built up as a neargenius by the studio publicity wizard, Harry Brand.

In 1952, therefore, when he announced that he was going to make a star of a young woman he had previously met in Paris—Bella Darvi—Hollywood figured if anyone could do it, Zanuck was the magician.

Zanuck tried. He brought Bella (real name—Bella Wegier) to Hollywood, had her coached intensively in drama and English, starred her opposite top-flight actors in three films: Hell and High Water, The Egyptian, and The Racers. And she laid a bomb in all three.

Zanuck then went abroad and in Paris again found another, brunctte divorcée, this one named Juliette Greco. From 1956 on he cast Juliette in practically all of his major productions: The Sun Also Rises, The Roots of Heaven, Crack in the Mirror, and The Big Gamble.

Juliette did little for these films; and the films little for her. Certainly they did not elevate her to stardom. And gradually she and Zanuck dissolved their patronprotegée relationship.

EARLY THIS YEAR, still determined to make a star of his image, Zanuck met a model in Paris named Irina Demich—same type as Darvi and Greco: dark eyes, slim-trim figure, independent, daughter of immigrant parents, ambitious and intelligent. Although she had no dramatic experience whatever, he cast her in the lead female part of the most important film of his career, The Longest Day, in which she plays a French Resistance worker.

"I needed a fresh, new face," he explains. "I didn't want someone who'd been typed long ago. I feel Irina has every chance in the world of becoming a great new screen personality."

Zanuck said the same thing about Darvi and Greco, and in the stardom sweepstakes they ran last. How well will Demich do?

In Paris, along the sidewalk cases of the Champs Elysees, they are already giving odds.

Dark-haired Bella Darvi was Zanuck's 1951 discovery.

French model Irina Demich is Zanuck's new protegée.

Don't confuse your friends

B VERYONE has problems occasionally, and when one occurs the rest of us swiftly rally to help with sympathy and advice. Without hesitation, we become glib experts on how to mend a marital rift, discipline a wayward child, tell off an in-law—even if we can't handle a similar situation in our own lives.

But are we really such experts us we think? The following quiz describes situations tackled every day by 3,000 counselors of the Family Service Association of America. For 50 years (its birthday will be marked with a conference this week) FSA's 308 agencies have been helping American families. Counselors have learned there are no pat answers to problems, but some answers are better than others. Study the questions below, then compare your "best advice" with theirs.

- 1 Your neighbor's son Russell, 11, has been ill two years. Now well, he has fallen so far behind in his studies that he is only in fourth grade. He is humiliated. Lately he has refused to go to school at all. What is your advice to his mother?
- a Ask the school to promote him to his own age level; b Ask the teacher to give him extra duties befitting his stature as older child; b Hire someone to tutor him after school; d Tutor him herself in a sympathetic home atmosphere; b Explain to him that he must go to school because it is for his own good.
- 2 Before she married, Jan was a high-paid buyer in a department store. She loved it. Now the mother of three children under 8, she feels frustrated by a life of drudgery and dishes. Yet both she and her husband agree that the role of mother must come first when the children are young. What is your advice? a Plunge into community volunteer projects as a substitute for working; b Own up that she's really a career woman, hire a housekeeper, and return to work; c Stick it out until all children are in school; d Find a part-time job as a sales clerk near home.
- 3 Betty's recently-widowed mother, 78, has been invited to live with Betty and George. Her possessions and income are a material help, but she now seems to be taking over. As a result, everyone's on edge. Yesterday George even hit Betty. What should she do?

- a Grin and bear it awhile, since a 78-year-old person can't live much longer; b Find her an apartment near by and go back to living the old way; c Place her in a good nursing home with people her own age; d Give her a talking-to, explaining that she is a guest in the home; e Leave George, since there is no excuse for hitting a woman.
- 4 Sam, 38, has held the same job 10 years. He's bored. Worse, his boss has hinted that his work is slipping. At home he gets little relief. He complains that his wife is always badgering him about money and that the kids keep his nerves on edge. What action would you recommend?
- a Find a more interesting job; b Make an appointment with a vocational counselor; c Visit a family counselor; d Have a brass-tacks talk with the boss about job and future; e Grit his teeth and dig in harder than ever.
- 5 Barbara, 28, is the mother of twins. They keep her harried and exhausted. Recently her divorced sister Mac has come to help. But the other day Barbara surprised Mae and her husband in an embrace. She slipped out of the room before they saw her, but now doesn't know what to do about it. What's your advice?

  a Take the children and go home to mother; b Say nothing and hope it will blow over; c Realizing that all are adults, call them together and discuss the mat-

- ter in a civilized way; d Demand that both leave at once; e Make sure in the future to give her husband much more attention.
- 6 Helen, 17, has just discovered that she is pregnant, though unmarried. The father is a boy she has broken off with. She considers him a bad marriage risk. And she fears her parents would disown her if they knew. How should she handle the situation?
- a Leave town right away, before anyone notices her condition;
  b Go quietly to her family doctor and ask him to contact a childless couple who want a baby;
  c Dump the whole problem in the lap of a social agency;
  d Make immediate arrangements to enter a home for unwed mothers;
  e Think of the child and marry the boy, regardless.
- 7 Pat, mother of three school-age children, is hospitalized by auto crash injuries. It may be months before she can run the household again. Relatives who might take over live uniles away and have responsibilities they can't leave. What can her husband do? a Parcel the children out among relatives; b Ask his boss to change his hours so that he can spend more time at home; c Hire a stranger—or find one through a social agency—to run the household while he is at work; d Hire a neighborhood teenager to watch the children until he gets home; e Place the children in a foster home until the wife is recovered.

Are you a help-or a hindrance? Compare your answers with these

- 1 C is the best answer. Lectures and shotgun promotions will only make things worse. "Recognizing" Russell will only make him feel more freakish. And his mother is too emotionally involved to be a good tutor. A private tutor or one furnished by the school will give the right balance of dispassion and attention.
- 2 Many counselors, surprisingly, would say B. A real career girl, they say, may not be satisfied with PTA chairmanships or sales clerking, and postponing a decision is seldom the answer. Once Jan faces up to her real interests, hires a housekeeper—but a good one—and takes a job, she'll be a better mother.
- 3 D—talking it out—is the course recommended by most counselors. If it serves no other purpose, it will

- at least relieve some of the tension, which is the real problem now. In some cases, A, B, or C might be a solution. But this woman is healthy, only recently widowed and old, and should not be left alone.
- 4 C is the choice of most experts—and more than professional interest is involved. "Our counselors," says Shirley Camper, family life consultant for the Family Service Association of America, "find that an astonishing number of job problems can be traced to home conflicts. This isn't always the case, but it ought to be investigated first."
- 5 Wives may disagree, but counselors feel E would be Barbara's best move. Again and again, they say, they are faced with marriage breakups where the hus-

- band has strayed because his wife is too wrapped up in the children. In this case, counselors add that Mac should be invited to leave at the first opportunity.
- 6 C is the answer, for this is the kind of case which agencies are set up to handle—discreetly. D is an alternate answer except that arrangements need not be immediate. A family doctor may be sympathetic, but "gray market" adoptions are risky. Fleeing solves nothing. Few agencies say she should marry "regardless."
- 7 Counselors favor C. Most consider B and D impractical, and A and E are eliminated because no matter who the housekeeper is the children are best off in their own home. At a time of crisis the most important thing is to keep the family together.

For a tastier TURKEY

It's time to think Turkey for the Thanksgiving feast. To make the noble bird both better looking and better tasting than ever before follow these suggestions.

-BETH MERRIMAN

- 1 After cleaning, sprinkle turkey inside with monosodium glutamate.
- 2 Use one kind of stuffing in neck cavity and another in body cavity for welcome variety. Pack stuffing loosely, as it swells during roasting.
- Trussing need not be complicated. Fasten neck skin to back with skewer. Turn breast-side up. Fold wings close to body; fasten each with skewer. Close body cavity with small skewers laced with clean white string; use ends of string to tic drumsticks to tail unless there is a bridge of skin to push drumsticks under

- 4 Brush bird with melted, unsalted shortening; sprinkle entire surface with monosodium glutamate for added, natural flavor.
- 5 Place breast-up on rack in shallow roasting pan. Cut a piece of aluminum foil about 4 inches longer than turkey.

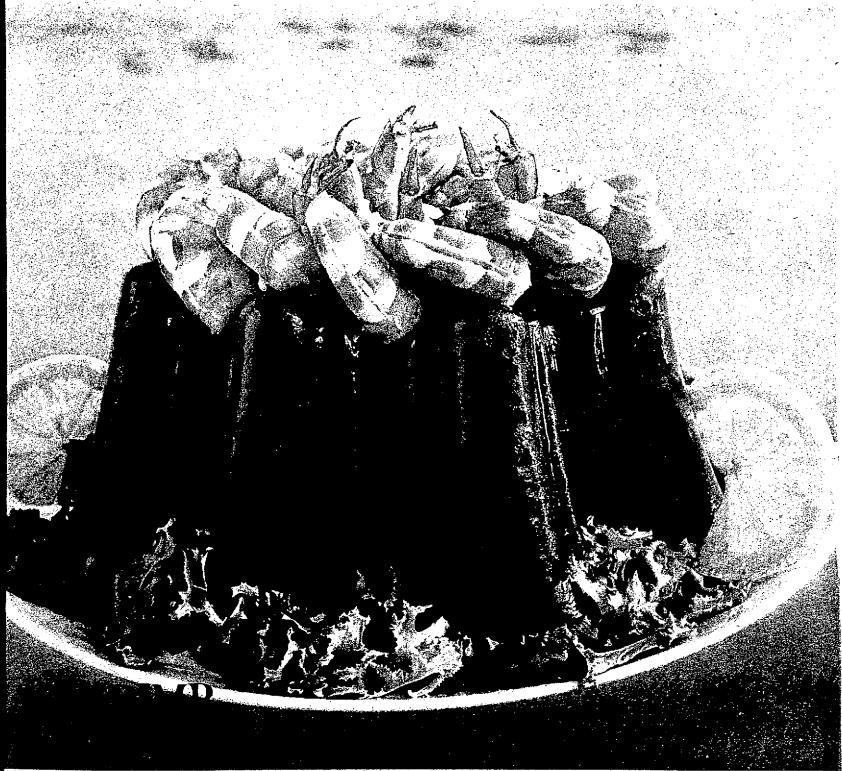

Place it over bird, pinching at both ends and pressing it down lightly to anchor it. Leave top and sides loose.

- 6 Place in pre-heated, 325° oven. Do not add water; do not baste.
- 8 Time roasting so turkey will be done 20 to 30 minutes before serving. Thus juices will be absorbed and carving will be easier.
- 9 When turkey is ¾ done, cut the string or band of skin to release drumsticks and thus insure thorough cooking of second joints or thighs.
- 10 Remove skewers and string. Keep turkey warm while making pan gravy. Pour off fat from drippings. Use 1½ tablespoons each of fat and flour for each cup of liquid. (Giblet broth is excellent as the liquid.) Return measured fat to pan, add measured flour; blend. Place over low heat and stir until frothy; add cool liquid all at once.

Cook, stirring, until thickened. Simmer 5 minutes. Season to taste.

- 11 Make paper frills for ends of drumsticks: fold a piece of white paper, 8½ x 11-inches, in thirds lengthwise. Slash one long edge into fringe about 1-inch deep. Unfold outer edge and refold in opposite direction. Cut in half, crosswise, to make 2 ruffs. Fasten around end of turkey legs with tape.
- 12 Garnish beautifully. We made a "Della-Robbia" wreath of preserved kumquats, frosted grape clusters, spiced crabapples, nuts-in-the-shell and galyx leaves. You might like to use fresh kumquats, Lady apples, frosted grapes and ivy leaves.
- 13 Provide an empty platter or large plate for the convenience of the carver. Have carving knife razor sharp.
- 14 An added caution: combine moist and dry stuffing ingredients just before stuffing turkey. Do not stuff the bird until just before roasting. After serving, remove all remaining stuffing and store it separately in a covered dish in the refrigerator.

This is sort of a shrimp cocktail that runs rings around any you've ever seen before. It's a beauty for a buffet . . . or a fine way to make the man in your life feel like a king for a day. (Don't tell him it is this easy!)

Just dissolve 2 packages (3 oz. each) Jell-O Lemon Gelatin in 2½ cups boiling water. Add 2 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce, 3 tbsp. vinegar, 1 tsp. salt and a dash of pepper. Now season to your own taste with any of the following: onion juice, celery salt, Worcestershire, Tabasco, horse-radish. Pour into ring mold and chill until firm. Unmold, fill the center with shrimp (about 1 lb.) and garnish with greens. Serves 8 as appetizer or side dish.

GIRLS

by NANCY HAGEN

M opering and charm schools are turning into a nation-wide racket."

That's the flat statement of Mary Webb Davis, owner of one of the oldest and most reputable model agencies and training schools on the West Coast.

Miss Davis, 50, blonde, chie, a descendant of forbears who arrived in Pennsylvania with William Penn, talks each afternoon to at least 25 girls who are "graduates" of some charm or modeling school, girls who have come west for gold and glamor.

Usually these girls have spent 6 to 12 weeks and from $500 to $800 for courses which they believe will prepare them for lucrative modeling careers.

They come to Mary Davis because they know she gets jobs for such top models as Maggi Brown, Shirley Bonne, Maruja, Claudia Ransom, a host of others.

"Practically none of the charm school graduates," Miss Davis sadly confesses, "are professionally acceptable. It's nervewracking and heartbreaking to talk to these kids day after day, to see the way they react when I tell them honestly that they just don't have what it takes.

"FIRST THEY CRY. Then they become incredulous. Then they tearfully explain that their charm schools didn't exactly promise them jobs—but somehow the inference was there, deeply imbedded in the sales pitch, that once they finished their charm courses the doors to modeling success would be open to them.

"All of them surely believed that somehow they would become top-flight models,

Fine features are Betty Booth's asset

because they wanted to believe that. Few had the objectivity to study themselves honestly or the common sense to find out what is wanted in the modeling market today and how much modeling success is pure accident and how much is training."

Charm schools have increased tenfold throughout the U.S. in the past decade, largely because there's a growing supply of gullible teen-aged girls who make them lucrative. Apparently the urge to model is akin to the poetry-writing urge. It hits nine out of ten girls in their teens. The increased use of pretty female faces and figures on magazine covers and in advertising is responsible for a replacement in ambitions among teen-agers. Most girls used to want to become movie stars. Now-adays most want a crack at modeling.

JUST HOW MANY thousands of girls are currently enrolled in charm and modeling schools, Mary Davis has no accurate idea. She estimates at least 150,000. Perhaps one out of 100 will eventually make an adequate living as a model.

To girls who aspire to modeling careers here's some honest, down-to-earth Mary Webb Davis lowdown:

Generally there are two classes of successful models: fashion and commercial. Both are accidents of birth.

The high fashion model doesn't need a beautiful face, but she does have to be put together perfectly and in the right proportions. She must be able to offer a particular brand of individuality in manner, walk, grace, and carriage. She must be able to sell a manufacturer's clothes line.

Good posture can be taught to almost

Elegance makes Maruja top success

Mary Webb Davis has run a top West Coast agency and modeling school since 1945. For several years she conducted a TV program, Glamor Girl, in which she selected a woman from the audience and redid her completely. Miss Davis believes that becoming a successful model is largely an accident of birth, for height, coloring, physical proportions, etc., are inherited; but self-improvement is something any weman my girl, but her physical proportions are gifts of heredity, not to be acquired.

In general, most fashion models boast 84-24-34 measurements, range in height rom 5 feet 61/2 to 5 feet 9. The taller a girl is, the more slender she must be.

The commercial or photographic model nust have a photogenic face which is either beautiful or unique, depending on he bone structure. Her physical measurenents make little difference. It's her face which helps sell the cosmetics or the toothpaste or whatever she's advertising.

Most models have either a pretty face or a perfect figure. Relatively few, such as Suzy Parker or Maggi Brown, have both.

A girl who plans to attend a charm or nodeling school should shop around careully. She should determine how expert he instructors are, the general reputation of the school.

More important, she should ask herself why she wants to attend. If she wants to take a charm school course for self-improvement—tō walk properly, to catch a husband (or to rekindle the interest of the one she already has), to kill time, to become a country-club model—that's one thing. If she wants to become a career model, however, that's a very different matter. Then she must truthfully find out whether she has the physical attributes to make a fashion or commercial model. Almost any good photographer or dressbuyer can tell her. Chances are he'll be more honest and objective than the interviewer at a modeling school where, in some cases, money in the till means more than a girl's shattered dreams.

Face is fortune in case of Maggi Brown

SPACE BONDS. The Treasury Department is thinking seriously of issuing next year a new series of Space Bonds for public consumption. They would be similar to the present E-Bonds, just have a more modern name.

VD. Venereal disease in this country is on the rise -- especially among teenagers. And an estimated half of them, according to many doctors, have never even heard of either syphilis or gonorrhea. What can be done to educate our teenagers of the dangers of venereal disease? Dr. Samuel Andelman, Commissioner of Health in Chicago, has a plan. He wants to make blood tests compulsory for all high school juniors or seniors. "I sec the plan, \* explains Dr. Andelman, "not primarily as a system for detecting and treating disease but as a method of educating our children. If you tell a youngster he has to have a  $\cdot$ blood test before he's graduated, he's naturally going to ask why. You then explain to him about venereal disease. In so many of our school systems today, despite the repeated urgings by parentteacher groups, information on VD is not included in the curriculum. The result is that teenagers go out into the world knowing absolutely nothing about it." Dr. Andelman hopes to convince the Chicago Board of Education to start compulsory blood-testing of high school students by 1962. "I know that compulsory bloodtesting is probably unconstitutional, " he concedes, \*that many parents will object to it. But if these parents don't want us to do it for their children, then it can be done by private physicians. The important thing is to educate our youngsters and to eradicate venereal disease as a public health problem in the United States. It's a rising one right now. And blood-testing is a way of cutting it down. I hope Chicago will show the nation it can be done."

CHINA'S PLAN. British intelligence agents who have access to Red China believe Chou En-Lai has a simple over-all master plan to make China the world's number-one nation. How? By encouraging Soviet Russia to take a tough line toward the U.S.A., never back down. Inevitably, the Chinese feel, the Soviets and the Americans will clash in a nuclear war, destroy each other, allow Red China to inherit the earth. China believes she will do this anyway by brute force of numbers. Come the year 2050, if population rates remain as they are, every second person in the world will be Chinese.

PRE-GAME FOOD. Mead Johnson, the company which made a fortune last year by producing Metrecal, is marketing a high calorie liquid meal called Sustagen. It's being used by such football teams as the Detroit Lions, the University of Nebraska, many others to eliminate pregame tension-induced indigestion and nausea. Entertainers are also using it before curtain time. The food provides a barrel of energy, cuts down on nervousness.

bringing up baby. Hints collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber Mother of 5 baby in the house prompts all kinds of advice from backyard baby-care experts. Most of it is well-meaning but often conflicting and thereby confusing. Best advice, of course, will come from your doctor. Next best is to read authoritative material . . . then heed your heart and your common sense. Amazing how reliable your own instincts are.

New-baby basic. Specially prepared cereals come early in the modern baby's diet. One reason is that they give baby the iron that milk does not supply. Gerber Rice Cereal is a good starter. because it's especially mild, and like all Gerber Cereals, easy to digest.

When baby comes home....

Note from

The way cereal "cooks up determines its digestibility. Take our Rice Cereal, for example; all rice varieties are tested for proper cooking behavior to make sure your baby's cereal is easy to digest. Specialized care of this kind goes into every single food prepared for your baby

Security plan. The custom of swaddling a tiny one is as old as time itself. It not only provides friendly warmth and a feeling of security, but it's still the best way I know to comfort a fussy baby.

Water plan. Does baby balk at water? If so, he's probably getting enough from his formula and juice. It's a good idea to offer previously boiled water, but don't urge it on baby.

As your baby progresses to a full food schedule, he'll be introduced to fruits and vegetables. Gerber Strained Fruits and Vegetables are prepared to make your tyke like to eat them. All are specially processed for utmost protection of valuable nutrients.

When your doctor puts baby on meats, he's indicating protein for his growth. Gerber Strained Meats are protein-rich, wonderfully, smooth and moist. Made of selected Armour cuts, they're especially savory and almost completely free of fat. ABMOUR AMER

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods cereals strained and junior, to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

Gerber BABY FOODS

Babies are our business . . . our only business!".

*We're looking for people who like to draw

IF YOU LIKE TO DRAW, America's 12 Most Famous Artists want to test your art talent. We'd like to help you find out whether you can be trained to be a successful, money-making

This offer is part of a program we began ten years ago. We found that many men and women who could have become artists - and should have become artists - never did. Most of them were unsure of their talent and had no way of finding out whether it was worth developing. Others who were convinced they had talent simply couldn't get top notch professional art training without leaving home or giving up their jobs.

A Plan to Help Others

We decided to do something about this. We decided to make it possible for anyone, anywhere, who likes to draw - and who has talent worth developing - to get the training he needs to become an artist. Taking time off from our busy art careers, we pooled the extensive knowledge of art, the professional know-how, and the priceless trade secrets which we, ourselves, were able to learn only through long and successful experience.

We illustrated this knowledge with 5,000 special drawings; then organized it into a series of lessons covering every aspect of drawing and painting . . . lessons that anyone could take right in their own homes and in their spare time. Finally - after years of teaching - we perfected what is probably the most personal and effective method ever developed for criticizing a student's drawings and paintings.

Our program of art training is now well known and respected all over America. During the past ten years, we have helped thousands of people find success in art. Here are just a lew:

Don Smith lives in New Orleans. Three years ago Don knew nothing about art - even doubted he had talent. Today, he is an illustrator with a leading advertising agency in the South - and has a future as big as he wants to make it.

Father of Three Wins New Career

Stanley Bowen - a married man with three children, unhappy in a "dead-end" job - began studying with us, evenings. Now he's earning a much higher salary as an illustrator for a growing art studio. And his family sees a happy, secure future ahead.

With our training, Wanda Pickulski of Rexford, N. Y., was able to give up her typing job to become fashion artist for a local depart-

Changes His Whole Life

"Your course has been the difference between failure and success for me," writes Robert Meecham of Ontario, Canada. "I've come from an $18.00 a week apprentice to where I now own my own house, two cars, and hold stock in two companies."

Earns Seven Times As Much

Eric Ericson used to be a clerk in an auto parts department. Thanks to our training, he is now an art director at seven times the salary he was making when he enrolled.

When Kathryn Gorsuch of Mt. Vernon, Ohio found out she was to have a baby - she left her filing job at an aircraft company and studied art at home with us. By the time the baby was seven months old, she went back to work for the same company...this time as a well-paid commercial artist.

John Whitaker of Memphis was an airline clerk when he enrolled with us. Two years later, he won a prize in a national cartooning contest and was signed to do a daily comic strip for a group of newspapers.

Profitable Hobby-at 72

A great-grandmother in Newark, Ohio decided to use her spare time to study painting. Re-cently, she had her first local "one-man" show where she sold thirty-two water colors and five oil paintings.

Donald Kern – a cowboy from Miles City, Montana - studied art with us. Now he paints portraits, sells them for $250 each, and gets all the business he can handle.

Mother Boosts Family's Income

Elizabeth Lincoln-mother of six-is now teach: ing art classes in her Massachusetts home and building a tidy nest egg for her children's edu-

In just four months Doris White of Wauwatosa, Wis., has painted and sold $750 worth of paintings ... all in her spare time!

A horse is a horse, of course, of course, except when he's a ham.

Television's biggest horse-ham is a nondescript palomino named "Mr. Ed," a talking equinine who has brought home the rating bacon.

As a dark-horse syndicated feature-sold to individual stations- "Mr. Ed" last year got off to a racing start. A proven viewing victor, his repeated first-crossings over the finish line brought the series galloping up for major consideration.

CBS-TV claimed the series for network distribution across the country.

"Mr. Ed" became the first-and still the only-syndicated series to make the network grade. It airs 6:30 p.m. Sundays on channel 2.

None of which has made the horse-ham less hammier.

Connie Hines says it's so.

And she should know.

For 25-year-old Connie is the buxom blonde who plays Carol, the femme lead on the "Mr. Ed" series.

"I REMEMBER ONE SCENE in which he was supposed to pretend to be sick," said Connie. "The script called for me to hug him and tell him he was just lonely because I had been

"Well, I hugged 'Mr. Ed' seven times and seven times that horse put his face in front of mine. We finally got it right on the eighth take.

"There was another time when I was supposed to put my head on his nose. I whispered in his ear that this was 'my

"So I put my head on his nose and he—wham!—jerked his

"Did he get bawled out? Oh, no! The director said to me, 'That will teach you to upstage a horse.' "

Anyone attempting to "upstage" Connie-horse, human or ham—is confronted with a queen-size challenge.

It's a challenge curvaceously arranged in Venue di Milo patterns—patterns, which, incidentally, are generally TV-cloaked in housewifely frocks. Cloaking which is off-camera absent when Connie yoga head-stands on the beach, takes a swim with her dog "Tiger" or trampoline pounce-bounces.

In swimsuit or shorts and sweater, Connie is a sight to bring "onstage" any red-blooded American male,

And an upstaging palomino named "Mr. Ed" can, with a departing swish of his tail, bring Connie onstage off schedule. He can and does.

"Several times 'Mr. Ed' has got tired and walked off the set," said Connie. "On each of those occasions, they have called me in to do a scene which I wasn't supposed to do until the next day."

There was one off-schedule incident recently that involved Connie, several other actors and "Mr. Ed."

The actors were in the cab part of a trailer-truck, "Mr. Ed" was in the trailer part,

Going around a curve, the vehicle jack-knifed. In the accident, the cab stood on its nose while the front part of the trailer pointed towards the sky. "All the technicians, the director, everybody came running," said Connie, "They all ran over to the trailer to see if 'Mr. Ed' was ok."

She sighed.

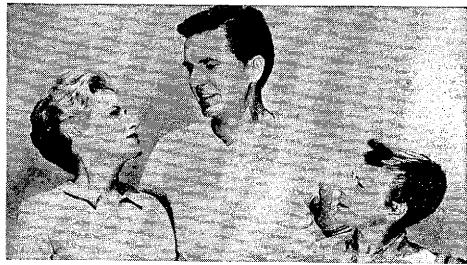

"I guess we're all kind of cops for him," she said. "He's our renewal."

Or, as the saying goes, never look into a gift horse's mouth, especially when he's a talking one.

For what he's saying makes good, old-fashioned horse

Drama About Nun

Robert Crean's original drama about a nun who re-turns home on leave during a family crisis will be aired Dec. 8 on CBS-TV. A "West-inghouse Presents" special, it will be titled "Come Again to Carthage." The title is derively from "The Merchant of Venice."

LIN McCARTHY, portraying an astronaut waiting to hear which of his group has been selected for the first flight to the moon, spends the waiting time with his family, enacted by Nancy Olson and Michael Burns (right), during "Alcoa Premiere" at 10 p.m. Tuesday on channel 7.

While TV may have a socalled hypnotic influence upon people, I, for one, do not believe it does.

Anyway, it does not bother me. I believe that it has been said that any person that resists hypnosis cannot be hypnotized against their will.

As for George Nader's belief that the present TV programs have a hypnotic influence upon children, this is

For I believe that, in 99 per cent of the so-called evil programs, the wrongdoers are always punished for their crimes. So if the hypnotic effect is there, the fact that they are punished could be implanted into the youngsters' minds. So for this hyp-notic effect, "three cheers."

There have been some very none-too-good TV programs in the past, but I think that present programs are constantly improving and will even better marches on.

TOY JOY FOR HARPO MA

Silent Comedian Plays With $5,000 Worth of Electric Trains

By JACK GAVER

YEW YORK (UPI)-New York obliged with three weeks of fine October weather for the benefit of a television program called "The Wonderful World of Toys."

Moderate temperatures and a minimum of rain were essential to smooth preparation of the show since it was recorded in its entirety in Central Park, mostly outdoors. Harpo Marx and Carol Burnett are stars of the program which will fill the "Du Pont Show of the Week" spot tonight (10 o'clock PST Sunday, channel 4).

"I tried to buy long winter underwear before I came to New York," said Harpo, who had feared the worst in the way of weather and, at 68, wants no part of rain and cold. "That was in Palm no part of rain and cold. "That was in Palm Springs, where I live in a balmy atmosphere the year 'round, and they thought I was crazy."

As he talked, Harpo, the silent Mark brother, was stuffing his pockets with an odd assortment of toys to use as props in the next scene, Co-directors Dick Barstow and Roger Englander were busy lining up about a dozen youngsters on bicycles, tricycles, scooters and kiddle cars for a "dance routine" on wheels.

HARPO SAID it was difficult to describe "The Wonderful World of Toys."

"I just wander through the park, and wherever go there are kids and toys. Carol Burnett's voice follows me through my travels. Occasionally she comes on to do a song number. And Merv Griffin and Edie Adams are in it too.

Somebody has referred to it as 'Harpo in Wonderland,' and I suppose that is the best description."

HARPO MARX AND CAROL BURNETT On 'Toy' Program Tonight

Other performers who are seen in bit parts are Milton Berle, Ava Gabor, Audrey Meadows and Elsa Maxwell.

play with $5,000 worth of electric trains.

The comedian pointed out that there always seemed to be a lot of people in the park in daytime, and he opined that they must be those who work at night or not at all.

"Most of the time I don't work either," he commented, referring to his semi-retirement that he interrupts only when something very appealing comes along.

"YOU KNOW HOW they talked me into this one? I asked for a script, and instead they sent me pictures of thousands of toys. I couldn't say no."

Harpo sticks to his professional style of never talking while performing.

"I get tempted now and then to take a speaking part," he said, "but who'd believe me? They'd say it was dubbed. When I called room service at my hotel, the operator said, 'You mean you really talk?"

Harpo has a soft and pleasant voice that seems to fit his personality perfectly.

"I'm really a very anonymous person when I'm not acting," he continued. "I take off the blond wig and the prop coat, and talk, and no one recognizes me.

'TRAMP' EXPECTANT PAPA

'My Three Sons' Offer Pup to Child Writing Best 'Why I Want' Letter

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tramp, the shaggy dog in television's "My Three sons" series, soon will become a papa.

This less than startling news is embellished by the announcement that one of his pups, to be named Tramp Jr., will be given to the boy or girl who writes the best letter stating why he or she wants the puppy.

Don Fedderson, producer of the highly rated series, says Tramp Jr. is up for grabs despite the fact that he won't be born for another month.

"There has been so much reaction to Tramp from viewers we decided to give one of his pups to a fan," Fedderson explained.

"Wa've had a good and a good a good and a good a g

'We've had a good many requests for one of his puppies, but this is the first time he's become a father. But it's only fair that viewers should know Tramp is 100 per cent

HE'S CONSIDERABLY more than that.

At three years of age, the animated floor-mop stands five feet tall on his hind quarters, weigh 140 pounds and earns $300 a week.

Unlike Lassie, who is really a male collie posing as a female, Tramp makes no bones about the fact that he is all dog, even if he doesn't have a pedigree to match Lassie's.

In fact, he has no pedigree at all.

"We had a lot of trouble trying to mate Tramp with a female that looked like him," said Fedderson. "We think he's a mixture of Airdale, Sheepdog and Shepherd.

"Tramp is very good with children, gentle and friendly. One of his pups will make a fine

"When we cast him for the role in our series, we were as careful as we are with human actors. We could have found another dog that was bigger, uglier and dumber than Tramp, but it wasn't easy.

Tramp's principal function on the ABC series is to be constantly under foot or lying in Fred MacMurray's chair or serving as a back rest for one of the child stars on the

"We all spoil him," Fedderson went on.
"He has such a sweet disposition, everyone pets and plays with Tramp when he isn't working."

Youngsters interested in attaining Tramp Jr. should write to Don Fedderson, 780 N. Gower St., Hollywood 38, Calif.

"Letters must be accompanied by a note from the mother or father," Fedderson said. "It would be terrible to send Tramp Jr. off to a new home where he wasn't wanted by everyone.

We expect the puppy to be born by Dec. 1, so all letters should be in by then. We will fly Tramp Jr. to the winner in mid-January, complete with a supply of dog food.

L.a.C. Says: It Takes Courage

It took courage and integrity for the four county supervisors to refuse to call a special election on the issue of voting $400 million for "fallout shelters on school grounds." Burton Chace was one of the four who refused to go along with Supervisor Hahn's almost hysterical demands for such a program

We say it calls for integrity to refuse to jump into such a vast expenditure for a program that may have such wide appeal. But there are so many conflicting views of what must be provided, it deserves a lot more scientific information than there has been given for public officials to jump at such a program.

The cost of a special election would be an estimated $375,000. The four supervisors refused to call this election for February. But they agreed that careful studies should be made to decide if the issue should be placed on the regular June primary election-at which time there would be little additional expense.

It is apparent Burton Chace and his associates intend to get the views of leading scientists and nuclear experts as to the value of such a program. There is the question of air conditioning, accumulated food suggest my stores and medical attention for 1,000 to 2,000 chil- Police Plan Theft Case been worded to suggest my husband is a homosexual or dren that might he placed in such an underground shelter for a week or two. There are divergent opinions on these points.

Although hours of radio and television time have been devoted to the subject and pages of newspaper and magazine articles have been run, they have not sold the public on their feasibility, according to public opinion polls. If such an issue were placed on the ballot now, it is probable a large portion of the voters would not go to the polls because they are not sure of the value. But those who are thoroughly frightened would vote and thereby place a $400 million burden on county taxpavers for a program that may not be practical.

What is needed, in our opinion, is that the President appoint a small committee of men in whom the people have confidence to report on what should be done. Such a group might be made up of former Presidents Eisenhower, Hoover and Truman. We would add Bernard Baruch. These men could call upon the best scientific brains in the country and make recommendations. We could feel confident these men would be objective and break through the clouds of hysteria and bureaucratic opportunism that have so confused

We well remember the great crisis during World War II when we faced a rubber shortage so vital to national defense. So many "experts" were giving divergent views nothing was accomplished. Then President Roosevelt appointed Bernard Baruch who on his "park bench" calmly held conferences with the experts and solved our synthetic rubber problem. It is such calm judgment by men we look up to in the bomb shelter confusion that is needed.

We know it is vital that the nation be prepared to protect its population in every way possible. It may be no such attack will ever be made. But we must be prepared for one if it comes. But it would be even more cruel to provide inadequate protection under illogical plans than to do nothing. What we need is the guidance of a small group of men in whom the people have confidence. Until we get this, we will have only confusion spread by opportunists who care more for headlines than they do facts.-L.A.C.

'Bad' Planes Certified OK, Union Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI)-The Machinists' Union Saturday charged that airline mechanics have been pressured to certify planes which they felt were unsafe to fly.

The union said the pressure was applied by management officials but did not name specific airlines or officials.

THE UNION said this presented a "serious threat to air safety and a disservice to the traveling public."

In some cases, the union said, mechanics were fired for refusing to certify a plane they considered unsafe.

The charge was made at a conference of union delegates representing 40,000 U.S. and Canadian airline mechanics. The delegates discussed safety problems at the threeday conference here this

If everything works right and the chimpanzee is recovered alive after his pulsating 17,400-mile-an-hour journey, a human space pilot will ride the next Project Mercury The space agency wants to accomplish the manned mission before the end of the year, Russia orbited two cosmonauts in flights earlier this year and Mercury officials would like the history books to show that both the United States and Russia achieved manned orbits in 1961,

The chosen chimp will be placed in a pressure-tight metal container with an eye-level window, It will contain a life-support system similar to that in the astronaut's space suit. The spacecraft also will have a support system.

Unruh—'Big Daddy' of Demos

Assembly met recently in an unprecedented betweensessions caucus to elect a new speaker to succeed Ralph M. Brown, named a judge. There was little doubt who would get the key job: Jesse M. # Americas Ask Road Survey

By HARRY W. FRANTZ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Strong Inter-American support has been mobilized for an early start on the final survey of the 435-mile Darien sector of the Pan American Highway. But the "go ahead" still awaits U. S. decisions on timing and financing.

The survey of the last big gap between the motor roads of North and South America will cost $3 million, of which the U. S. share would be $2 million.

Yet to be decided is whether the government will provide the funds promptly from foreign aid funds or follow the past method of authorization by Congress.

OFFICIALS of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads favor an early start on the survey bul lack the money.

A reconnaissance survey of the route, from Panama City to the Colombian frontier, was made three years ago. It disclosed the engineering feasibility of an overland road which would not require overwater ferries.

The next survey would chart the route precisely and blueprint the actual construction:

Panama and Colombia are anxious to get the project started. Other Latin American republics also would be prompt in contributing to the costs.

THE PROJECT is supported by the Pan American Highway Congress and the International Road Federation, which comprises the national highway associations in the American republics.

The Inter-American Conference at Punta del Esta, Uruguay, which endorsed President Kennedy's "alliance for progress' program, also recommended "that the American governments make their observations known and hasten their efforts to finance studies on the 'Darien Bottleneck'."

It said the studies would lead to "initiating negotiations for long-term financing of a permanent road to unite the Americas and allow commercial, cultural and tourist understanding among our nations."

The Darien subcommittee of the Pan American Highway Congress met in September at Mexico City and endorsed the survey which would lead to eventual closing of the gaphetween Chepo, Panama, and the Chaco region of Colombia.

On the north side of Mulholland Drive, which snakes along the ridge of the Santa Monica Mountains between West Los Angeles and the San Fernando Valley, a jay hopped through the branches of a scrub tree in a steep canyon a quarter of a mile west of Beverly Glen Boulevard.

IT WAS 8 a.m. and in the canyon somewhere behind a home at 3651 Stone Canyon Road a small flame jumped in the chalk-dry brush.

But it is certain there was a little flame, and that thrivmg in a perfect environment it grew quickly into a big flame.

And that the big flame reproduced itself, and that by 8:15, when the first calls began lighting up fire station switchboards, there were many big flames spreading through the brush southwestward up the hill toward Mulholland.

THE education of Sen. Clair

Engle about Long Beach suggests a continued informational effort to present an accurate image of this community to outsiders.

This, in essence, is what Sen. Engle said while here the other day to speak to the board of the 1966 Planet of Man Exposition:

"I have always understood that Long Beach is a city of retired people.

"Now see what has happened. Long Beach set a big fire to get a harbor area customs house. Now it's off and running on an international exposition project.

"These are not the sort of things you expect from a retirement community."

SEN. Engle is right-it's not a retirement community. It's a nice place to relire and a lot of people have done it. They're among our best citizens. But the idea that this is a retirement community - presupposing that a majority of the population are elderly and retired—is way off the beam.

That's the median age of the total population. The median age of males is 30.9 and that of females 37.

Anti-Dope Fight

A new weapon in the continuing fight against narcotics addicts is being tested by Superior Court Judge Maurice C. Sparling.

It's a new condition of probation for narcotics law violators-that they agree that their person, auto or home can be searched for drug contraband at any time during their probationary period.

The idea, never tried and probably never thought of: elsewhere in this state, is an ttempt to tip the balance of ne scales a little towards law nforcement.

Youth Has a Right to Impartial Study of Vital Questions

IN THESE nervous times many of us look for scapegoats to relieve our frustrations. The most convenient targets are governmental bodies, since they often deal with the sort of controversial matters that generate emotional tension. Public school officials are perhaps the most vulnerable of all because of the sensitive character of their youth-training responsi-

Fortunately Long Beach Unified School District has escaped most of the racking, divisive quarrels that have seriously impaired some systems. The great majority of the public has again and again demonstrated its confidence in the school officials, both in the election of board members and the approval of bond issues. Recently there has been scattered semicoherent criticism from extremists who certainly don't object to controversy-but who want only their side presented in the school's program.

THE DISTRICT'S officials have managed to keep these distracting pressures within limits by carefully applying for the last nine years an instructional policy on controversial issues which is really not open to attack by reasonable Americans. Developed by school superintendents of most of the larger cities in the United States and Canada, it has been modified slightly here as experience since the 1952 adoption date has suggested.

The policy is prefaced with the declaration that DREW PEARSON some subjects are above controversy: democracy and our established traditions on the one hand and communism and fascism on the other. The schools teach the validity of the former and the fallacies of the QUESTIONS that involve conflicting views by political parties, by management and labor, by city and country and by other large groups are explored objectively. The schools do not teach them but rather provide opportunities for their study.

In this connection school officials insist that the student has certain rights which must be recognized. Among them are free access to all relevant information, study under competent instruction in an atmosphere free from bias, and the right to form and express his own opinions,

Good administration and good teaching are essential to the application of these principles. Administrators must assign to such subjects teachers of superior ability; and given an assignment, the teacher must refrain from promoting partisan viewpoints.

PARENTS and taxpayers also have their rights, to be sure. One of them is to protest any instance, if they have evidence beyond rumor and suspicion, of prejudiced administration or teaching.

But no one has the right to ask that the schools exclude from the classroom the essentials of political, economic and social living, however explosive, which will confront the student once he becomes an adult

'Crack in Sky' Admits Added Fallout in Southern Region

WASHINGTON - There's latitudes. They include San idea into practice in 11 una crack in the sky about 200 miles wide through which a larger proportion of Soviet radioactive fallout is now pouring down on the southern cities of the United States, Europe and Asia.

This crack in the sky is the reason why Jacksonville, Fla., and

This crack difference in climate between the North and the South, Rising air in the pushes the atmospheric ceiling higher than the ceiling over the northern part of the globe, thus leaving a jagged gap through which radioactive fallout now pours.

Although the public is generally being told that the northern tier of the United States and Canada will be the principal sufferers from Soviet debris, actually it has been the southern states which have got the first heavy fallout. This is hecause of the huge 200-milewide crack.

THE SAME crack extends and on to the earth. There is a similar crack in tropics rise to clash with the cool winds from the Antarctic. However, since the Russian tests are in the North, the southern crack in the sky will not dump any radioactive fallout on these relatively sparsely populated areas below the equator. The more densely populated part of the world in the North will suffer most,

IN TECHNICAL language, scientists explain the crack is caused by the atmospheric layer known as the troposphere, which is the first laver of outer space above the earth. The troposphere touches the second layer called the stratosphere, at a level of 35,000 to 55,000 feet, depending on temperatures and the season.

This ceiling over the earth is a jugged affair rising high over hot areas and low over cold areas. The Arctic has a ceiling which is pretty well frozen and will get less radioactive fallout. But farther south as the hot air pushes the ceiling up, the crack appears between the troposphere and stratosphere. It is through this crack that winds rushing from west to east suck the debris out of the stratosphere, pour it down into the lower atmosphere where it awaits only the ruin to sluice it through the clouds

'Pirate Year' on River

Q. What was the "pirate year" on the Mississippi River? J. J.

A. This question probably refers to the year 1788, in which pirates were finally driven from the Mississippi after terrorizing river commerce for years. It has been called "L'Annee des Dix Bateaux" (Year of the 10 Boats) because in that year the river was cleared of pirates by the concerted efforts of the crews of 10 boats traveling upstream together from New Orleans for that purpose,

HE WOULD LIKE Americans to look upon our tremendous food surplus not as a burden but as a powerful asset in the cold war.

The Communists, he pointed out, already recognize this. Even starving Red China has exported food to countries it wants to impress. Albania, for instance, was given 20,000 tens of wheat, taken out of hungry Chinese mouths.

"We should share not only our bounty but our boozing, he added, "But the sky below the equator ministration has been the skill in food production," he skill in food production," he said, "with all the nungry people of the world. I promise you, this will yield tre-mendous dividends."

Some of the Russian names in the news have rather picturesque meanings their native Russian. Khrushchev, for example, is low Russian for "of the cartilage" (bone) while Gromyko implies "the thundering one" (a good background for a thunderous n'yet!) Soholev, the Soviet Amhassador to the United Nations means "derived from a sable." Zorin, the disarmament representative of the USSR, can be translated as "man of the dawn." Tearapkin, head of the Soviet atomic delegation, expresses "the scratcher." And the name of the Soviet vice premier, Kozlov, means "of the Best to Do-Aw, Forget It! stagger under the bundle of principles ballot.'

A civil defense-conscious dairy since late October has sold 25,000 gallons of water -at $1 for six gallons—for indefinite storage in fallout shelters.

Every day, before it bottles milk, the dairy pasteurizes water and puts it in airtight plastic containers to meet a demand so great that it takes two to three weeks to fill orders.

MEDICINE AND YOU Long Pull Best

By BEN ZINSER AND GEORGE X, TRIMBLE, M.D.

Exercise of muscles for endurance development appears preferable to exercise for strength only, new research shows.

Scientists at the State University of Iowa asked two groups to perform special exercises every day for

The subjects in one group trained for strength development of hand grip. They exerted maximum gripping strength for six seconds at a time.

Subjects in the other group trained for endurance development. They contracted hand muscles at onethird maximum strength till fatigue set in. As hand strength increased during the 29 weeks, these subjects adjusted, always keeping sustained hand-muscle contractions at one-third of maximum strength. Findings:

Those who exercised for strength only: Gained in strength but not in endurance.

Those who trained for endurance: Improved in strength AND endurance.

"MEDICINE AND YOU" has been asked to point out another danger involved when an untrained person attempts to administer the new closed-chest method of

It's this: The victim's heart may not have stopped. The victim may have only fainted. But the untrained person may think that the person lying on the ground is dead.

If done improperly, the new resuscitation procedure may break a rib or rupture the victim's liver, possibly resulting in massive internal hemorrhage.

Here's the correct way to perform the new massage procedure:

Place the victim on the floor, sidewalk or solid ground. Don't attempt to revive the victim if he's lying in bed. Reason: Too much "give" under the patient; the procedure will prove ineffective.

Place the heel of one hand about two inches up from the bottom of the chest plate. Place the other hand atop the first. Apply pressure through the heel of the hand at a rate of about 60 times a minute. The procedure compresses the heart between the spine and breastbone rhythmically, massaging the The amount of pressure depends on the size of the victim. An adult may require the full weight of rescuer. If someone is available, mouth-to-mouth breathing should also be performed.

How to Win the 'Drop Out' Battle

By HARRY KARNS School Research Associates

Are you winning the "drop-out" debate at your

It runs something like this: YOUR SON—"I'm tired of school, I want to drop out and get a job."

YOU—"Stay and get your diploma."
YOUR SON—"But I don't need il. Jim has a job at $80 a week to start, and he didn't get his diploma. YOU-"Just the same. . . .

YOUR ARGUMENTS sound vague and repetitious and yet, you know you're right. How do you prove it?
Today we have some ammunition that you may find

To discover what happens to drop-outs, the Bureau of Labor Statistics in recent years conducted an extensive study of high school graduates and students who quit before completing high school.

THE STUDY underscored five points which throw the bulk of the solid evidence on your side of the debate: I. Graduates earn more than drop-outs.

2. Among boys, five times as many drop-outs as grads fall to the bottom of the wage scale.

3. Graduates get the best jobs.

4. It takes drop-outs longer to find jobs.

5. Unemployment is higher among drop-outs.

ALTHOUGH YOUR son's friend "Jim" with his starting wage of $80 is making good pay for a youngster, there's another side of that story. His starting pay is also very close to the top wage he'll get for life. And when business tightens up, he'll be one of the first to get his

Most drop-outs are only 16 and 17 years old when they decide to quit school. Of all age groups theirs suffors the highest rate of unemployment! Extreme youth, in good times or bad, is a disadvantage in the johmarket.

The next time your son challenges you to the dropoul debate, we suggest you use some of these facts on

That diploma looks much more important to him when he begins to see its value in terms of his future pay. (Want to help your child do good work in school? # 69-Yard TD by Beathard on First Play

The team that recently gave UCLA fits was overpowered by USC Saturday in a game that had everything from a touchdown on the Trojans' first play to the weirdest stolen ball trick in memory.

The Trojans put on their running shoes for the Coliseum collision with Stanford and came away with a 30-15 victory that heaped fuel on the smoldering college-The Truian offense accounted for 372 yards, which is more than twice as much as UCLA made two weeks ago against the same Stanford linemen. "I won't even try to guess whether USC or UCLA will win," drawled Cactus Jack Curtice, who had borne up remarkably well for a coach who had just watched his team try for the NCAA fumbling record.

The Trojans and Bruins meet in two weeks for the

STANFORD FUMBLED SEVEN TIMES and lost the ball on six of them as Troy ran its season record to 4-3-1 and its AAWU record to 2-0-1. Stanford is 3-5. It was the running of QB Pete Beathard and the plunging of fullback Ben Wilson that accounted for the bulk of the 310 yards rushing for Troy before a Homecoming crowd of 36,598. The Trojan passing game was kept in the locker room, but the three completions did add up to a new school record. End Hai Bedsole caught all three for 62 yards and boosted his total receptions for the season to 26. The record of 25 had belonged to Tom Nickoloff, set in 1952

Willie Brown carried the ball only two times and totaled two yards, but coach John McKay pronounced him fit and ready for the season windup at Pittsburgh next week and against the Bruins Nov. 25. "His timing was a little bit off still today," said McKay, Brown showed no sign of the limp which has plagued him for a month.

Troy scored on its first play when Beathard went 69 yards around end, a maneuver that proved to be the death blow for Stanford's injury-thinned ballclub.

("We're only slightly worse off now in injuries than when we played UCLA," said Stanford publicist Don Liebendorfer. "These are the same linemen.")

THE WEIRD PLAY CAME IN the fourth period following USC's final TD. On the kickoff halfback Gary Craig, who fumbled three times, broke through the onrushing Troy boys and was grabbed around the shoulders by the last defender, Bill Nelsen, at the Stanford 40.

Craig and Nelson did a couple of quick whirls and suddenly the Indian was trying to tackle the Trojan, During the whirling, Nelsen had taken the ball away from the Stanford lad. It was recorded as fumble No. 7 and it seemed appropriate that the Injuns end their bumbling afternoon with a flourish.

Stanford had fumbled only 12 times in seven previous games. "I've never seen one like that," said McKay.

"I'm in sympathy with Jack (Curtice), said McKay of Stanford's dropsy, McKay has watched similar Trojan performances, but this time McKay's team bobbled the ball only twice and the guilty parties fell on it im-

"It seems like the easier it is for us to score, the tougher the game is for us," commented McKny, BEATHARD GOT THE TROJANS off to a good start with his 69-yard run around end on the first USC scrimmage play. It looked so simple that the Troy players didn't try hard the rest of the day.

Beathard just put the ball under his arm and started to run. It was not an option play. He got good blocks all the way down the sideline.

On the conversion play, Beathard, the holder, fumbled the snapback and the kick didn't get head high. USC didn't make a conversion all day, Stanford fumbled four times in the first half and USC recovered all of them. There must be NCAA statistics to prove that a team can't do this and stay in contention, but at the intermission the Injuns were only five points in arears.

It was one of those fumbles that set the Trojans moving toward their second TD. From their own 40 late in the first period, Troy got a big boost from a foul penalty and Beathard passed and pitched to the TD in seven plays. Wilson went the final 10 yards, knocking over three men in a pile-driving run.

Troy began to pull away at the outset of third period. Again it was the power of Wilson, who must be the most feared runner in the West. The cardinal-shirted kids

Rams Favored in San Pedro!

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. The lads who print the football cards distributed Christmas presents early this year . . . or weren't you one of those fortunates who gobbled up Minnesota AND two points over lowa Saturday? How that one ever was created will forever be a mystery . . . and a source of headache to the usually astute payoff men.

HOLLINGWORTH

. , Juiciest morsel of the season, though, is up for grabs today. They say one card list around the San Pedro area has the Rams FAVORED by three points over the 49ers. No, Matilda, alas I did not see the card. , Beans Reardon tells this one on himself: In a usual charitable mood, the bighearted ex-ump purchased $15 worth of tickets in a statewide raffle for the blind. He won a card table. "Now, don't ever say the blind don't take care of the blind," quipped the former balls-and-strikes man.

... Bob Wells, the writer, suggests we give the Russians our atomic secrets-then they'll be three years be-

... Then Joe Garagiola describes the Pirates in the bedraggled days when he played with them, thusly: "Pittsburgh, that was the Brand X of baseball."

While we're in a light mond, how about this description of USC's Willie Brown when he gets an open "Watching him run is like blowing up a balloon and letting it go."

. Gary Morrell, the former Downey High, City College and Washington State star, is a busy man these days. Employed by station KAPP-FM (93.5), the ex-gridder has a daily record program, broadcasts El Camino College games and also a south bay prep game-of-the-week. The other half of the talented family, twin Chuck, is dabbling in theatrics, writing scripts and cutting records . . . and is there an agent around?

MORE SUNDAY PEARLS:

... The boys of good, old Natick, Mass, are getting their dander rising again. Natick's west coast agent, Gene Morris of Long Beach, took offense at a recent comment here about the twin prides of Natick, Frank Varrichione and Dave Morgan. He bristled off a letter to the Natick Herald sports editor, who in turn bristled off this printed reply to the poor, old Merry-Go-Round:

"With west coast football in a sorry mess for over six seasons now, maybe it WOULDN'T be a bad idea to move the whole town of Natick out there, as suggested in your column. Surely, Brother Hollingworth, you do not expect ONE player, in each instance, Morgan and Varrichione, to lift the west coast teams out of the slough of despond, as it were? Anyway, we honestly hope, Hank, that Gene Morris' shaft that you are 'strictly a ringside fighter' is wide of the mark!"

It's wide all right, sir, I don't even fight at ringside!

MORE PULPIT PEARLS:

. . A whopping court case involving the Jets' Bill Sharman is ready to break. The NBA deliberately ordered the Boston Celtics to hold out Sharman's playoff share so that Bill would sue. The NBA wants to bring out the fact in court that Sharman approached several other NBA players to jump to the new lengue.

. Incidentally, the Jets are an interesting team, but isn't it about time somebody whispered to baldheaded George Yardley that it's later than he thinks. Yardley performs with as much zip as Ron Waller did with the Chargers last season . . . and that wasn't the greatest all-

. If you didn't realize the Mercy Bowl game was completely an all-out gesture, you didn't hear that even sportswriters will be paying to view the affair. (And if that's not the upset of the year, Eichmann's not in

Murray Olderman reports from New York that a southern school has a brilliant halfback who's finally realizing on his great potential because he licked an emotional problem: He insisted on having a teddy bear! (That's what the man wrote.)

Didja hear about the new cocktail called the 'Megaton"? After the first blast you don't feel a thing, but when you reach the door, the fall-out begins!

... Now for the 49ers-and those three points!

Personnel, Not Shotgun, Wins for 49ers

Most discussed team of the 1961 pro football season has been the San Francisco 49ers . . . and their "Shotgun Offense."

First, the Shotgun was hailed as a wonder system and one that at long last would lead the 49ers to a cham-

RED HICKEY Desperation Measure

But during the past three weeks, they've been writing about the "collapse" of the 49ers and that the Shotgun is dead,

However, the 49ers have not collapsed . . . not has the Shotgun lost its effectiveness against certain types of opposition.

If observers and fans alike would just settle back and study the results objectively, they would see that the 49ers are doing just about what was expected of them in pre-season estimates . . . no worse and not much better.

The 49ers figured to hit this point of the season when they visited the Coliseum today for their final meeting of the year with the Rams at about a 500 clip . . . 4-4. They currently stand 4-3-1, thanks to some good fortune against the Detroit Lions, whom they have defeated once and gained a "lucky" 20-20 tie in their other meeting last Sunday.

Despite what has been written about the Shotgun, the system itself is no longer a problem to defense if a team has adequate personnel. While the Shotgun did pick up a victory or two due to the element of surprise when Red Hickey first sprung it, the 49ers now win or lose games like all other teams—on personnel and the breaks.

AS ONE TOP FOOTBALL MAN in the NFL says . . . "A gimmick is good for only one game. The league is blessed with the greatest football brains in history and as soon as the coaches see something new or different, it doesn't take them long to figure out the answer.

"The Shotgun didn't fool anybody for more than one game. The 49ers' victories at the tailend of last year which earned them a tie for second place in the Western Division was a matter of healthy personnel and a combination of favorable circumstances.

"Even Hickey admits the Shotgun was dreamed up for just one game as a desperation measure to use against the Baltimore Colts. It worked because of its surprise element . . . plus a couple of fantastic plays that helped the 49ers post a 30-22 victory. The publicity value was so great, of course, that the Sholgun was retained."

Only the win and tie with Detroit could be called "surprises" of the 49er season to date. They had been figured to lose those two games in the pre-season run-

FOR INSTANCE, THEY OPENED the season with a 35-3 victory over the Washington Redskins. That was routine, Everybody beats the 'Skins.

In the second game, the Shotgun was muzzled by Green Bay, 30-10. That also was expected.

The Shotgun got its biggest publicity lift the next week when the 49ers humiliated the Lions in Detroit, 49-0. As Lion coach George Wilson pointed out last week, "it wasn't the system that beat us. It was just one of those days when the 49ers didn't make a single mistake . . . while we couldn't do anything right.

The following week, the 49ers smeared the Rams, 35-0. That result also had been conceded in the pre-season

San Francisco then downed the tail-end Minnesota Vikings, 38-24, to run their win string to three in a row for a 4-1 seasonal record and moved into a tie for first

The "bubble" broke the following week when the Chicago Bears crushed them, 31-0, and the Pitt Steelers followed with a 20-10 triumph over the 49ers.

HOW ARE RIVALS DEFENSING the 49ers? Quite simple. For the past few years, the basic defense in foot-ball has started up front with a 4-3 alignment backed by two cornermen and two safetymen.

When the 49ers came up with the Shotgun, a modified spread formation, it spread the opposition's fourman lines, thus giving the San Francisco linemen better angles and permitting the 49ers to run effectively from a formation that had been primarily used in the past for passing.

Rivals quickly countered by employing five-man lines with one man playing head-on with the center. This shored up the defensive lines and the "gimmick" was

By MARY ELLIS I, P-T Fashion Editor

What's news in cruise wear?

The answer will be out this week when fashion editors from hither and yonsville converge on Los Angeles to report to the nation on the latest trends in resort wear.

The event: 11th annual Press Week sponsored by California Fashion Creators to show "sunsational" new fashions whipped up by the sun-country's leading shapemakers.

DAILY WIRE stories, beginning Tuesday, will tell what's happened to the bikini (we hear it's gone undercover) . . . whether the pants craze is slackening . . . also, whither goes the hemline and the waistline.

For, as California goes, so goes the nation. Trends shown in cruise wear by California designers usually go sailing right into spring-summer fashions.

So for a forecast of what's in the fashion wind for seasons to come, follow the women's pages of the I,P-T this week.

NEW STYLE TREND . . . the lowered waistline of Phil Rose's new "BB" pant, here emphasized by contrast color stitched-on sash. Button-up sleeveless halter, emphasizes midriff.

Ways for Holidays Prominent Couple Tells Engagement

By IOLA MASTERSON

A madcap for color-and a delightful miser for making the most out of the least expensive decorations for table settings — is Virginia Stanton, party editor for "House Beautiful."

Appearing before a Children's Benefit League benefit at Lakewood Country Club, she demonstrated. with spirited talk and a heady collection of decorative "props," how any woman can be a hostess with the mostes'.

For fall into Thanksgiving table decor she suggests a riotously bright collection of useable, edible decorations. She built a centerpiece of persimmons, avocados. pumpkins, gourds and dried barley heards. As the edibles ripen, use them and replace them. The dried items last from year to year (the only problem is storage!).

BUILD your own color scheme - but do use odd numbers in groupings of fruit or vegetables. Interesting old bottles make excellent candle holders to compliment such an arrangement. Use a plate, upside down, as "candlestick" base. Match base and candle to one of the bright spots of the arrangement. Pick up inexpensive, gaily designed tea towels for placematsor napkins, too.

Mrs. Stanton (in private life she and her husband, Robert, own and operate charming Normandie Inn in Carmel) is strictly a nonconformist in holiday decorations and table settings. She insists-and proved it quite neatly - that tradi-

Carolyn Louise Weaver of El Segundo became bride of David Allen Churness in Our Savior's Lutheran Church, Los Angeles. #### REPEATS VOWS

Winifred Anne Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Mills, Long Beach, became bride of David Charles Nelson in nuptials at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Nelson, Bristol, England. Both young persons attended schools in England. They are residing in Long Beach.

Get an idea-try it out on your family first, she said, then use it for party entertaining. For instance, use two table mats instead of the usual one—combining a large, standard size and a smaller one. Put regular mat in its customary place; "hinge" small one at left top corner of large one. Then add all the silver to rectangular opening remaining et left; put napkin, crosswise, at similar opening at top. Very effective.

STRONG colors - glassware, napkins and part of the china geared to matchmake the most effective settings. Mrs. Stanton is a great believer in combing dime and variety stores for glassware dishes and table accent pieces in ripe, dra-wicks-you can buy them matic colors. Buy materials at candle-making shops, to complement the accent color plate which sets the theme to use as a center runner.

tional ways are not the only correct ways to set a table. She has a long tie-silk sash of handsome oriental reds which she frequently uses (when she's not wearing it, she quipped) to highlight a dinner or luncheon table.

No need to stick to timeshe stressed. She showed a bright red corduroy cloth she uses at Christmas-and a lightweight blue bedspread which "doubles in brass" beautifully.

HAVE A theme for Christmas to carry all through your home, she advised. Don't dash from gold and silver in one room to oldfashioned red, white and green in another.

If, for instance, you like red and white, you could choose a candy cane theme to set the pace. Put a red carpet (inexpensive) right out there on the front porch where it counts. For your tree (green) scatter it with white paper snowballs and bright red paper stars; then string it with garlands of popcorn and cranberries. A most effective substitute for candlelight which lasts for hours: Use a glass vase — or long stemmed glass; fill it about two-thirds with water and top with oil (the least expensive cooking oil available) to a depth of from one-half to threequarters of an inch. Float many hobby craft storesand light them. They'll flicker merrily as long as the oil lasts!

woman displayed item after item she used as smart tablemates in jobs for which they never were intended. A big, deep black dish which served elegantly for desserts honored tableclothes, either, or chowder was, in reality, purchased in an ash tray department! Abalone shells make glamorous seafood salad containers, Glass slag (usually free, if you can locate a bottle manufacturing plant) is glamorous in centerpiece arrangements. A large copper milk pan is ideal for many uses on a table and Japanese gift shops abound with a variety of trays and other table pieces of little cost and great appeal.

So put your eyes and imagination to work wherever you go-then buy, inexpensively, accessories to complement what you have.

With his eyes wide open and a cook book in his hand he volunteered to serve as Chef Lorenzo for a comblete Italian dinner for 36 friends. His courage was, no doubt, in direct proportion to his faith in Betty's behind-the-scenes assistance. Some hero.

LAST NIGHT Lorraine and Harry Fulton were sitting quietly in their new home in Park Estates (5110 Vista Hermosa) when suddenly they both started "Wolfe band!" hearing strange noises.

Later, still shaken, they described it as having sounded something like a band. "Something like" was, as it turned out, a most generous way to describe it. A crowdof old friends, under direction of surprise housewarming planners Nance and Bill Winston, Willa and Dean Gilmore and Claire and "Bo" Ludlam, had gathered at the Gilmores to form a marching band and swoop down on the innocent Fultons, blaring away. What scared them was not just in their imaginations. It was a conglomeration of free expression on saxophone, tambourine, cymbals, bells, drums and a few assorted pans. Honorees regained their appetites when musical hosts produced a fine spaghetti feast.

> NO WONDER they call Insurance man Bill Harris "Alphabet.".. His .. parents gave him three first names. On his own he's added three to append, business-wise. Correctly he is W. T. J. Harrls, C. L. U. That means chartered life underwriter which means he is qualified to teach other insurance men insurance courses. Well. ol' "Alphabet" has been up in San Francisco along with fellow "letter bugs" Bob Krogfoss, CPCU (certified property and casulaty underwriter) and Bob Fenberg, CLU, for a two day institute to teach the teachers the newest policies on policies.

HIGHLY varied would be the very least one could say about Mary and Bob Devitt's journeys, completed with a sigh last Sunday. First they flew to Mexico City and a tour of the various resort cities nearby - Taxco, Acapulco, the whole bit; then to Miami where Mary was a delegate to the American Heart Association meeting. There they rubbed elbows with other localites attending same, namely Merv Ellestad, Stella and Dr. Fred Kellogg, the Gene Temkins, Ken Anger and Dr. Chi Kong

Then they salled to Nassau to visit friends of Bob's from U. of Minnesota days, all native Bahamians. Red carpet treatment, Back to Miami they went to board another Caribbean cruise ship, the SS Evangeline, which sailed with only half its passengers - the brave ones (or foolish?) Aiready Hurricane Hattie was lurking. Well! One hour out of Mlami only 40 passengersamong them the Devitts were still on their feet out of the 178 aboard. Wild, wooly, wicked weather. They were blown so close in to the coast of Cuba they could easily see people frantically working on shore, to give you an idea.

Like they say, variety is the spice of life. In this case, however, the seasoning almost killed the appetite for adventure.

MAYBE WE'RE lucky to have Doris and Jerry Young safely home again. They spent a month on a motor trip to and from New Orleans, making it a rule to use only the backroads -

Days of Forty-Niners LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE POSES CAMPUS PUZZLERS

An interesting follow-up to the recent Leadership Conference finds ten Long Beach State student committees looking for answers to problems posed at last month's

Although the majority of the topics are campuscentered, several have overtones which extend into the community,

Like, for instance, "How to Develop Loyalties to the Campus Above Individual Group Identities." If chairman Gary Little's outfit comes up with the answer to this puzzler, LBSC will take a big step forward. (Incidentally, we understand one of the goals is to have everyone snarl whenever the name of nearby CCAA rival Los Angeles State is mentioned.)

Maureen Kramer's committee's search for "More Complete and Effective Programs of Orientation for New and Transfer Students," if successful, will result in better briefing sessions for students making the switch from twoyear colleges to our campus. Seems JC transfers have been lost in the shuffle as more and more high school grads head directly for LBSC.

A group headed by Marilyn Fithian wants to know We Can Create More Personal Relationships Retween Faculty and Students." We hope they find out, Otherwise our zooming campus population and increasing difficulties in communication will make for an awful lot of strangers at Long Beach State, ACE (Association for Childhood Education) meets Wednesday at 3:50 p. m. in LA4-108, Dr. Alan Timmons talks on "A New Concept in Visual Aids," and group pictures will be taken for the annual. All members are requested to attend; the meeting will last about 45 minutes.

A newsy little note from Circle K, Kiwanis-sponsored campus group, informs us that a women's service club, "Sinawik," is being formed with about 25 charter members. The new organization will aid Circle K's in some of their projects . . . membership is up to 45 . . . sponsors are Long Beach, East Long Beach, and Uptown Kiwanis. , Jim Krulic is president and Dean Clarence Bergland is faculty adviser. . . . Circle K objective is to provide leader-ship training in service to campus and community . . . among 61-62 projects are assisting with LBSC's Open House and planning a Christmas Party for orphans.

DON'T-FORGET-DEPARTMENT: Long Beach Film Society's showings of "The Bicycle Thief" and two unusual shorts at 5 and 7:30 p. m. today in the Little Theater. . . . Wednesday, another program in the LBSC Film Series: "New York, N. Y.," "Living Stone" (Eskimo life). and the Academy Award-winning 'Day of the Painter,' Two showings also at 7 and 9 p. m. in lecture hall 151 . . and Thursday night, a very appropriate speaker for these troubled times: Dr. Ralph Lapp, nuclear physicist and expert on space, is the Evenings-on-Campus personality at 8 p. m. in the Little Theater. DEAR ABBY: I have been courting a widow for about 10 years. She keeps saying she can't marry me until her daughter gets married. Her daughter is 29 years old and hasn't even got a boy friend. My friends tell me that this woman is just using her daughter as an excuse, and has no intention of marrying me. I am 64, own my own home and am in good health. I want to get married. Should I wait around for this widow who is playing hard to get? Or should I give someone else a chance? I have a couple of women in mind who would say yes tomorrow.

Oswald Jacoby OUR CHILDREN Pre-Empt Jump Used

For 20 years Alvin Roth and Tobias Stone of New York have been one of the strongest pairs in the world. They have won innumerable titles together and have represented the United States internationally.

Their bidding system is based on sound opening bids and has many unusual features. One of these is the pre-emptive jump shift,

This bid does not always work, but when it does, the results can be really surprising.

IN OTHER systems South's hand calls for a pass after the opening heart bid. West will take action and eventually East and West will reach some spade contract. North will open the king of hearts and take two heart tricks. Then, if he shifts to ace and another club, he will hold West to three spades; otherwise, West will make 10 tricks. When Stone jumped to three diamonds, he shut West out of the bidding, Roth went to the diamond game. Roth knew that his partner's bid showed abject weakness, but he also knew that it showed a long diamond suit and was willing to gamble for game.

There was nothing to the play. The defense took the two aces, but had no way to gather in another trick.

Models Match Years

He was born in Michigan - but he doesn't wish 'n wish to return. Hale H. Young, today's Chef of the Week, has liked it here since 1923 when he took over a Ford dealership in Long Beach. That was in the Model - T days when Ford boasted exactly five models.

There are 39 models in the 1962 line-one for each year of his dealership-and we doubt if Henry Ford, himself, would recognize a one of them.

Young left Michigan before it had become very much a part of him, He received most of his schooling in Ohio and New York before migrating with his family to the Northwest. After 10 years in Seattle, he came to Long Beach.

A NATURAL born optimist, Young has been a memher of the Long Beach Optimist Club since Jan. 1, 1934. He belongs to Seaside Lodge of Masons, the El Bekal Shrine and is very active in Scotish Rite.

With a daughter, two granddaughters and one great grandson living in the East, "the Youngs" do a bit of getting-around. In fact, they find the eastern seahoard a good jumping-off place for a tour of Europe, which they have done on two occasions.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA ... NOVEMBER 12, 1961

OUR COVER

Uncle Sam's Navy and the city of Long Beach have enjoyed a long and neighborly association to the pleasure and benefit of both. Long Beach shares the nation's pride in the ships and the blue-jacketed sailors who man them. In this vein, the city has provided the Navy with a snug harbor for its small boats and the men who come ashore in them—the new Navy Landing at the foot of Magnolia Avenue. Sailors swarming ashore from a liberty boat at the new landing are pictured on today's cover, a scene captured by the facile pen and brush of Clyde Winslow, Independent, Press-Telegram Staff Artist, who joins Southland Magazine in a salute to the United States Navy.

As the nation gives thanks for freedom and Americans sit down at laden tables to partake of the bounty that exists across the land, no Thanksgiving story is complete without a thought of the Pilgrims and their doughty ship, the Mayflower. Then came a modern day when a new Mayflower was fashioned and a new crossing made. The story of the Pilgrims' vessel and the modern ship is reviewed by Southland next week in "The Two Mayflowers."

First Lady of oil drilling, Mrs. Lottie McFann poses in her "hard hat" to which she added touch of flowers.

NE of the busiest women in town is Lottie Mc-Fann, who holds the title of 'World's Only Lady Oil Drill-

Since her recent "retirement" Mrs. McFann manages another big one come in one of these days on oil acreage she leases.

Mrs. McFann, known to almost everyone as "Lottie," took over the operation of McFann Drilling Co. of Long Beach after her husband died in 1945. She became the only woman member of the American Association of Oil Well Drilling Contractors.

Things looked bad for her, at first.

"With my husband's passing I felt my whole world was gone. I was looking at a blank wall, as it were. However, I found, as Huxley says, That experience is not what happens to you, but what you do with what happens to you."

LOTTIE HAD always had a great interest in oil. As a child she had been raised around oil fields and after her marriage she and her husband had often parked by the rig to listen to its sound which she says is still "music" to her

Steeped in the lore of the California oil industry, she would listen as her husband, an oil worker since boyhood, told her tales—some hair-raising—of the early days of wildcatting. All this she found fascinating, stimulating, and even glamorous, which possibly makes her just a bit different from the average wom-

Lottie's talents had previously been in millinery design, and had she not mel and married McFann, she might have gone on to success in this far different field.

As it was, hats were forgotten, and to help finance her husband's purchase of his own rig, she set up business in a fireworks stand.

So fascinating was the world of drills to her that when her husband made trips to Texas and the Argentine for the company that employed him before going into business for himself, she determined to learn what she could about the industry and took courses in petroleum engineering.

A WOMAN sitting in on electric logging, mud control and petroleum technology courses was a continuing source of amazement to many, but Lottie soon became accustomed to causing doubletakes, especially after she took over the control of the business.

Many an oil worker was surprised his first day on the job to find his boss, McFann, was a woman! But during the nearly 15 years she operated the business it was generally conceded she did the job as well as any man.

Her method of learning what she needed to know to get her rig through hard times as well as good ones was not only to attend courses, but also conventions.

Meantime, her organization became known as reliable, dependable, and "harmonious." In business dealings Lottie's Golden-Rule policy made her friends and gained her the respect of the industry. As one oil executive told her, "You have a reputation of always coming out on top."

Lottic retired from the business about two years ago, but keeps busy.

SHE STILL has her flowerdecked hard hat and makes frequent trips to her 40-acre oil lease at Santa Paula Canyon, which is in an area that appears to have "exciting po-

How brushing with new Ipana helps you protect your gums as you protect your teeth

Don't just do half the job! Gum troubles are often caused by tartar that forms on teeth when soft film is not properly cleansed away. Dental statistics prove that it is gum troubles, not tooth decay, that cause most loss of teeth after age 14. So don't do just half the job. Protect your gums as you protect your teeth.

If you brush properly with new Ipana with hexachlorophene, you can help prevent gum trouble due to tartar before it starts. Ipana's film-removing agents help you brush away the soft film that naturally forms on teeth before it hardens into tartar that irritates and inflames gums.

Only your dentist or dental hygienist can remove tartar once it hardens. But proper brushing, according to Ipana directions, can help prevent tartar before it attacks gums. A superior decay fighter, too! Laboratory tests prove that new Ipana kills more decay germs than any other leading tooth paste—even the leading fluoride tooth paste!

Every time you brush your teeth

with new Ipana with hexachlorophene, you destroy decay germs by the millions. Laboratory tests have shown that other tooth pastes leave behind many more decay germs because they don't have Ipana's superior germ-killing power.

Proper cleansing of teeth with Ipana helps protect your gums as you protect your teeth. Get new Ipana!

The Stakes: Survival.

In modern war, America has but 15 minutes for

The Big Gamble

By George C. Flowers Independent, Press-Telegram Staff Writer

THE UNITED STATES gambles its life on 15 minutes-900 seconds.

Within that time it expects to detect an enemy attack and repulse the onslaught.

These are hard facts. Within 15 minutes, as intercontinental missiles are now constructed, a rocket with a nuclear warhead could rise into the nation's interception ranges and descend upon its

Billions of dollars and millions of hours have been spent to make this nation defensible in the war of tomorrow-from total destruction within a day. The people who man the defense lines say the job can be done—that the type of "sneak" attack that hit Pearl Harbor in 1941 cannot be re-

North American Air Defense (NORAD) is headquartered in Colorado Springs, Colo., but the 200,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen under its command man more than 700 defensive stations, from the North Pole regions to the subtropical waters of the Pacific Ocean.

Men and women are on duty 24 hours a day, always there are interceptor and attack planes in the sky. Vast mechanical "brains" work around the clock—"brains" capable of evaluating sighted missiles, determining their course and target within a matter of seconds.

THE FIRST LINE of continental defense is anchored in Thule, Greenland, where radar stations the size of a football field probe the icy polar skies. Another at Clear, Alaska, and a third at Fylindales Moor, Yorkshire, England, plug the holes in the airlanes.

The data continually picked up by these three stations is funneled into the combat center at NORAD headquarters in Colorado.

These three stations probe the sky between the United States and Russia continuously. Missiles passing through their radar rays reveal their positions and velocities in a matter of seconds. The mechanical computers of NORAD calculate not only the destination of the missiles, but their origin. The computers ascertain the impact time and NORAD's defenses swing into action-with 15 minutes to go.

NORAD OFFICERS call BMEWS (Ballistic Early Warning Service) the "burglar alarm."

A second burglar alarm is the operation labelled DEWS (Distant Early Warning Service). This consists of a chain of radar stations strung out over thousands of miles across the top of the world. The stations, atop the continent, are flanked by stations in Greenland and Navy picket ships that patrol continually in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Navy "Warning Star" radar planes supplement the patrol.

DEWS is designed to provide a warning time of about two hours against bombers of 600-milean-hour speed. The warning time has, of course, deteriorated as the speed of Russian bombers gains.

The third line of continental defense operated by NORAD is called the "Mid Canada" line, running roughly about 600 miles behind the DEWS

This system is designed to pick up tracks of invaders and plot course information to enable interceptors, manned or missile, to meet and destroy attackers north of population centers.

ANOTHER LINE of defense, called the Pinetree, stretches along the continent on both sides of the U. S.-Canadian border. This is the northernmost portion of the close-in radar system that guards the nation.

All of these picket lines supply almost instant data for three "customers"—NORAD itself, the Strategic Air Command (SAC) and the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, SAC and OCD maintain liaison officers at NORAD headquarters.

NORAD's radar nets catch fish continuously. Between 600 and 1,000 airplanes enter their area from foreign fields every day—a penetration of the radar net about once every 85 seconds, Air traffic within the continent produces about 200, 000 more planes to be scanned.

To help NORAD's identifiers, a close control is kept on flights from other continents. Each "intruder" is followed, his flight plan checked and—in case of any misunderstanding—a "scramble" of interceptors takes to the air for visual identifica-

NORAD'S OFFICE of information says:

"The gauntlet an enemy bomber crew would have to navigate is a tough one. The attackers would first meet manned fighter interceptors sup plied by Canada, the American Air Force and the Navy.

"Pilotless interceptor missiles would next be thrown into the fray, and then Nike stations would swing into action." Nike stations ring major population and industrial stations, strategic bases and vital installations—the last ring of defense,

Much of the defense planning would be done by the machines of Semi-Automatic Ground Environment (SAGE).

This function was developed by NORAD to replace man's brains. High speed electronic com-puters absorb data from radar listening posts, process and display in seconds air-battle information-such as the numbers of attackers, and their locations, the number of interceptor weapons available and where.

Nike-Hercules missiles are "chips" in America's big gamble, killers to hunt enemy missiles aimed at U. S. targets.

Deer are no strangers to city folk who live on outer edges of populated areas.

Furious fighters when cornered, bobcats often hunt for food at night in suburbs.

Cunning and resourceful, the coyote has the respect of all who know his ways.

Animals in Their Own Back Yard

By Aubrey B. Haines

TOO NANY raccoons forced a Laurel Canyon man to abandon sleeping in his back yard . . . too many of the little animals wanted to pile into bed with him.

A Wonderland Avenue couple in the Santa Monica Mountains have placed aluminum bars across their view window to keep deer from breaking through into their living room at dusk.

A woman on Mulholland Drive often watches a mother fox and her two babies gamboling on the lawn. Bobcats thrive in La Habra, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, Hollywood, Studio City, Sherman Oaks, Sun Valley, Glendale, Pasadena and Altadena. Mountain lions prowl the outer boundaries of Los Angeles.

The campus at Los Angeles City College as well as that at Occidental College is frequented by coyotes.

Rattlesnakes have never surrendered their properly rights to Angelenos. During the past two years rattlers have died disputing those rights within a mile of the Civic Center.

Hundreds of wild peacocks range through Palos Verdes and the Baldwin Hills areas. Toward dawn, one can stand at Vinc Street and Hollywood Boulevard and hear coyotes howling in the Hollywood Hills. News reports told of numerous singed and frightened animals seeking refuge from last week's fire in the Malibu-Topanga area.

RECENTLY, VETERANS in the Los Angeles Division of Animal Regulation were not surprised by a series of protests about a barking dog which kept flitting from tree to tree. The dog turned out to be crows, who are quicker than parrots at imtating the sounds they hear, including those of dogs.

Most wild animals are on the increase in Los Angeles city limits, except for the wolf, which has nearly vanished from this area.

However, the coyote—cunning and highly adaptable to his environment—continues to reproduce abundantly. If wild animals seem more prevalent than ever in the city the past three years, it is because Southern California is now in the third consecutive driest year in recorded history. As a result, lack of water and vegetation is forcing wild life down to residents' lawns and swimming pools.

Since the animals are all wild, they are potentially dangerous. When it comes to distinguishing the cats, man is frequently confused. Even some experts admit that the same animals are known by different names in different places. Hence classifications overlap in listing the mountain lion, badger, cougar, puma, leopard, catamountain, bobcat, wildcat, lynx, and the feral cat.

THE FERAL CAT was once domesticated, or its ancestors were. However, it has reverted to a wild state. Such animals, though small, are potentially dangerous. There are also feral dogs. About 80 per cent of the reports of mountain lions turn out to be hysterical errors.

Once Los Angeles Animal Regulation men are convinced that a mountain lion is actually loose, they send for a hunter whom they call Longnose Smith, probably the best mountain lion hunter around here. Smith has a pack of hounds especially trained for tracking mountain lions. Black panthers are often reported on the loose in the city. However, actually none is in this area. As a rule the "panther" turns out to be a Japanese Akita dog. Large and black, this animal has a head shaped remarkably like a cat's shaped remarkably like a cat's.

Some pranksters trim the fur of a large dog so as to leave a mane and make it resemble a lion. People who come upon such an animal unaware, however, do not think it funny. Not only does it frighten them, but it often results in the poor dog being shot for a lion.

Strangely, the deer causes the greatest animal problem here, according to State Fish and Game officers. Unfortunately there is no refuge to which vagrant deer can be transported.

DEER ARE MOST graceful creatures. Nothing seems as irresistible as a fawn. People are always encountering them and adopting them. This leads to trouble, for there is a law against moving a fawn. Deer never become tame; they only become unafraid of man. They fight by rearing up and clawing vigorously with their forelegs.

Deer may remain cute and adorable for as long as two years. Then they will suddenly slash, blind, and sometimes kill their adoring owners.

By far the most cunning, resourceful animal is the coyote. Compound 1080—a special poison—was introduced in recent years to kill the animal, but coyotes have learned to detect and avoid it.

Animal control men have profound respect for coyotes. Veterans believe that coyotes deliberately lead dogs into traps set out for the coyotes. Looking like dogs, coyotes can at times bark like them.

10 billion meteors and fireballs bombard our atmosphere each day!

Visitors From Outer Space

By Frank L. Remington

Mrs. Ann Hodges lay napping on the living room sofa of her Sylacauga, Ala., bungalow. Suddenly the whole house shook with a terrific crash. Mrs. Hodges jumped to her feet in terror. She felt a shurp pain in her hip. A cantaloupe-sized rock-like object fell from the quilt to the floor.

On that November afternoon in 1954, Mrs. Hodges became the first person ever to be hit by a meteorite—and live to tell about il. The rock from outer space ripped through the roof of her home, crashed into the radio, and ricocheted onto the couch, searing the housewife's hip and hands.

Actually some 10 billion meteors and fire-halls hambard, our atmosphere are the deal of the couch.

balls bombard our atmosphere each day, adding about five tons daily to the earth's weight. Fortunately, most of these celestial visitors are no bigger than a pinhead and burn to dust before reaching the ground.

ONLY A RELATIVELY few meteors are large enough to pass through the atmosphere. These are called meteorites-meteors that strike the earth. Most meleorites land in the ocean, a good place for them as far as mankind is concerned. Occasionally, though, a huge meteorite hits the ground with an explosion that makes the atom bomb seem like a wet firecracker by comparison. Undoubtedly many meteors have become meteorites since the dawn of history, but only about 1,500 sizeable ones have been found so far.

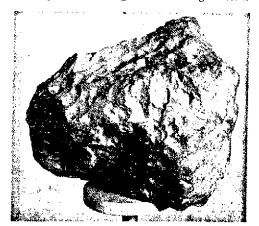

It has been only in the last two centuries that we have known what meteors are. In former times these fireballs were thought to be some type of weather phenomenon, such as lightning. In fact, the very word "meteor" comes from a Greek word meaning "something in the air."

When these small celestial bodies gravitate into the earth's atmosphere, they rush through the

into the earth's atmosphere, they rush through the air at tremendous speeds and become intensely hot and brilliant, burning in the oxygen of the air. Thus, most of them burn to ash before they reach the earth. The typical meteor appears at a height of about 55 miles above the earth, burns itself out and fades into oblivion at about 45 miles.

ALTHOUGH MOST of the fiery visitors from the heavens burn themselves out in the sky, a surprising number of them do fall on the earth. Con-sidering the regularity with which they reach the earth, it is remarkable that more than one person hasn't been hit.

There are several cases in which a meteorite narrowly missed hitting a human being. A stone

weighing 56 pounds missed an Englishman by a scant 10 yards in 1795, and in 1846 a small meteorite crashed into a room where children were sleeping, covering them with plaster dust. In 1938, a fireball which exploded over Lanao Island in the Philippines convinced the natives there that the world was coming to an end. In 1946, a meteorite fell into a swimming pool at Pena Blanca Spring in Texas and exploded into 155 pounds of meteoritic fragments. Luckily, there were no casualties.

The two largest meteoritic falls in historic times occurred in remote and unpopulated areas of Siberia. If either object had landed in a city it would have produced a major catastrophe. The first of these, in 1908, fell in the midst of a forest first of these, in 1908, tell in the midst of a forest some 400 miles south of the Arctic Circle. The weight of this meteorite was probably around 40,-000 tons, and it tore up the earth like a battlefield for three or four square miles. For a radius of 10 to 15 miles, the forest was charred as if it had been seared by a giant blowtorch, and for 10 or 20 miles more, the trees were stripped of their foliage and laid flat on the ground.

ANIMAL LIFE in the area was wiped out by the explosion, and inhabitants of nearby settle-ments claimed that 1,500 reindeer were killed. People 100 miles away were knocked off their feet, and some houses were wrecked. A railroad engineer 500 miles away stopped his train because he thought it had jumped the track. In Germany, the tremor was recorded as an earthquake, and scientists in England were puzzled by sudden fluctuations in atmospheric pressure.

Less world shaking was the more recent Si-berian meteoritic fall of 1947. In a mountainous region northeast of Vladivostok villagers saw a huge and brilliant fireball streak across the sky. leaving a trail of sparks and a black cloud. Al-though it was broad daylight, the fireball appeared to be as bright as the sun. When it landed, it chewed up the earth over a wide area. The impact was heard 100 miles away.

In the Arizona desert, a giant visitor from space blasted the huge hole known as the Barringer meteorite crater. The rim of this crater, about 20 miles from Winslow, rises 150 feet above the surrounding plain. The crater is four-fifths of a mile in diameter and nearly 600 feet deep. Its age has been estimated variously from 700 to 70,-000 years.

SOME GEOLOGISTS think the meteorite which SOME GEOLOGISTS think the meteorite which caused this scar was about 100 feet in diameter, or about the size of a 10-story building. When it struck the ground, it must have obliterated all life in the vicinity. It's been estimated that the blast dug out about 400,000,000 tons of rock. Great blocks of limestone were found more than a mile from the cruter. Thousands of fragenesis of potence. from the crater. Thousands of fragments of meteoritic nickel-iron have been recovered, some several miles away.

Spectacular as the Barringer crater is, it is dwarfed by the Chubb crater in northern Quebuc. Recently, scientists measured this giant pockmark, which has formed a lake, and found its maximum depth to be 1,325 feet and its diameter to average 11,500 teet.

Such craters suggest that the possibility of catastrophe from the sky is ever present. If a 100-ton meteorite could fall in Siberia in 1947, a body 10 times that size could crash into more populated to takes that size could crash into more populated territory at any time. Fortunately, the probability is small, especially considering the fact that a hundred of the largest cities on earth taken together occupy less than one-twentieth of 1 per cent of the world's surface.

THE CHANCES of an individual being struck by a meteorite are remote, Prof. Lincoln LaPaz, head of the University of New Mexico's Institute of Meteoritics, estimates the odds at 3 in 10 that someone will be hit every 100 years.

Thousands of years ago a meteoritic giant slammed into what is now Arizona desert land and blasted this crater—nearly a mile in diameter and about 600 feet deep into the earth, evidence of power.

Bachelor Explores Paradise

HAT IS even more typically American than the hot dog?

A supermarket.

For that reason, Producer Ted Richmond and Director Jack Arnoid loaded Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Bachelor in Paradise" company, including stars Bob Hope and Lana Turner, into limousines and buses to transport them to a suburban Los Angeles supermarket for location filming.

The stagehands arrived first, setting up electrical apparatus, connecting the sound and unloading equipment. Portable dressing rooms were hauled into the parking lot and make-up tables were set up.

THE STORE had closed for the day to permit filming without customer interruption but a jam of neighborhood residents, mostly housewives, started collecting around the supermarket as early as 6 a.m., three hours before filming be gan.

Store employes had worked all night "dressing" the set. Produce was polished and neatly arranged. Canned and boxed goods were stacked in pyramids along the aisles. Their work finished, they remained out of camera range to watch the filming. Extras and walk-on players soon arrived by the dozen and the clerks watched themselves replaced in aisles and at checkstands by professional actors.

For Bob and Lana the make - believe tour through the market was sheer joy. They would have been mobbed by fans if they ever tried supermarket shopping for real. In fact, Lana could be seen surreptitiously making note of items which she later ordered to be sent to her Malibu Beach home.

HOPE, playing the role of an author who has never seen a supermarket until he takes up residence in a suburban development, has trouble from the moment he enters. The script has him walk toward the "Out" door instead of the "In" just as a woman customer leaves the store. The door opens auto-matically in Bob's face and he almost gets clob-bered. Next he has trouble disengaging a shopping carl. Then a little eirl volunteers as guide, topples a pyramid of canned goods and blames it on Hope when the store manager arrives.

Bob and Lana bump carts at the meat counter as each grabs for the last frying chicken in stock. And that's where their romance begins.

"Bachelor in Paradise." with an all-star cast including Janis Paige, Jim Hutton, Paula Prentiss, Don Porter, Virginia Grey and Agnes Moorehead, reflects life in suburban America, in CinemaScope and color. Scenes were filmed in tract houses, drive in restaurants, bowling alleys, at baseball games and, as we told you, a supermarket, the greatest item of contemporary Americana around.

In his quest for the "inside dope" on tract life and love, Adam gets on too friendly terms with Dolores Jynson (Janis Paige), a wife heading for divorce.

construction. Cost was kept at a minimum, but the quality of the workmanship is excellent.

Lumber used in the remodeled kitchen has an interest-ing history: it was salvaged from the old Excelsior High School when the latter was torn down. The wood is Honduras mahogany, a fine, substantial quality that is somewhat similar to walnut in color. Hours of refinishing were spent before the old wood reached its present state of smooth perfection.

THE ORIGINAL house had tiny living room, small kitchen, two bedrooms, and a bath. The living room is still the same size newly de-corated, however. The central kitchen, located at the right, is open both to the living room and the new family room, giving a feeling of bedrooms, and the family room serves, as one of its many functions, as sleeping quarters for the two adults.

The kitchen is as bright as a new silver dollar. New built-in units are space savers. The built-in oven in one corner is in a unique setting of slim, wall-to-ceiling bricks. The "bricks," however, are actually pieces of scrap lumber designed and painted to resemble the real thing.

The kitchen cupboards look as if they were brand new and custom made. A "Z" design made from the mahogany decorates the front of each cupboard door. A homey touch is the tiny, especially constructed door in one wall that enables the family dog to enter and leave as it

A COUCH in the family room doubles its purpose as a bed. There is a dining area near the kitchen. A piano is handy for teen age and adult parties. A TV is in one corner. A comfortable leather chair is near the fireplace. Nearby is a table-high pipe stand, another Maxey original.

One of the most attractive areas in this home is the unusual service porch. Situated to the left of the high divider in the family room, and jutting to the left of the room itself, the area appears at first to be a sunny greenhouse. Pink hued fibreglass on the roof gives a perpetual rosy glow to the small room. Washer and dryer line one wall. Pegboard cupboards are directly above, designed to hold all necessary laundry items. A planter is above the cupboards, A parakeet in a high cage nearby fits with the surroundings.

IN THE NOW seldom-used living room furnishings are attractive and comfortable, and just right for the room. There is a maple desk and chair; a small couch with a three-tiered end table, made by Maxey, nearby; a stereo with appropriate wall decorations on the wall overhead; and original oil paintings.

In no uncertain terms, friends questioned the Maxeys' decision to buy the house a few years ago. It was in such run-down condition that they had to cut their way to the front door. Walls were full of holes, sheds in the back yard were filled with trash, and the place was badly run down in other respects. The neat little home of today is a pride of the community, a fact even more remarkable because the Maxeys did it all themselves.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Split Level Provides Economy

By David L. Bowen

ROSPECTIVE homeowners hunting for a house design that yields maximum usable space at minimum cost have a vested interest in the split level design.

Because it manages to make completely livable nearly half the space wasted as basement under a ranch, anyone building a split gets a built-in bonus. In B-55 in the House of the Week series, this bonus is paid in the form of a luxurious reception fover. a family room with lavatory, and a garage.

These features, gained at little extra cost, spell the difference between "just another house" and a home of distinction. The most remarkable thing about this home of distinction is that the area of the six rooms and bath on bedroom and living levels is only 1,098 square feet. If this were a ranch, that would be the entire house. Thunks to the space bonus of the split, architect Rudolph Matern gained 288 additional square feet of space for use as family room, reception foyer and grade level lavatory. The single car garage is on this same level, but not included in the square footage total.

OTHER FEATURES are a "freshen-up nook" near the main bath, a covered porch off the living room and terrace off the dining room, a breakfast balcony, living room fireplace and dramatic entranceway,

Long planters, a bow window, slight overhang of the bedroom level and pierced brick screens give balance and interest to the front facade. The side porch contributes substantially to the appearance of generous width. Dimensions of the house itself are 43 feet 8 inches in width by 26 feet 3 inches in depth. Side porch adds 10 feet to the width.

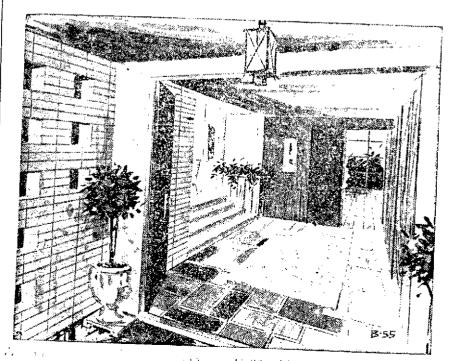

The imposing double-doored entrance foyer is room size and has a 7-foot bank of closets. Slate floor, planters and the brick wall extending from indoors to the outdoors add to the luxurious impression. A louvered door opens to family room through wood paneled wall at the rear of the foyer. In addition to serving as a glamorous reception hall for guests before they move up the wide carpeted steps to the formal living area, the foyer acts as a central traffic hub among garage, basement and family

AN APPEARANCE of even greater length is added to the 20-foot living room by the sliding glass doors leading to the side porch. From the center of the living room a similar long sight line extends across the dining room to the terrace and beyond, A kitchen breakfast balcony overlooks the family room to form another large open area, this one reserved for family activities. The strategically located serves formal, informal and outdoor dining areas with equal dispatch.

All facilities for family activities are focused in the rear of the house for privacy,

Three bedrooms with ample closets are concentrated in a quiet zone above. All can be entered from an efficiently short hall at the head of the stairs.

The freshen up nook on the bedroom level-a vanity top with lavatory and splayed mirror walls-is an unusual extra feature for small home. It's intended both for guest use and as a tempersaving overflow facility for the morning rush hour.

N MODERN home and apartment design, the builder usually is interested in giving the greatest illusion of space while keeping the total size as small as possible, thus holding down construction cost.

This often means an "open" plan, with no partition between living and dining areas and frequently with the front entrance opening directly on the living room, with no foyer.

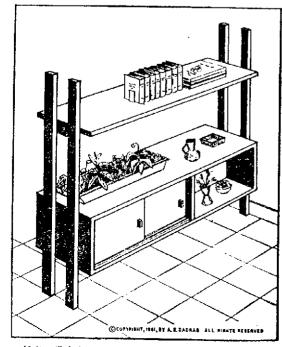

The technique has both advantages and disadvantages. By producing long "sight lines" it removes the closedin feeling which would occur otherwise. The disadvantage is a lack of definition be-tween one area and another. Without some line of demarcation, the rooms seem disorganized.

A HAPPY solution is a di-

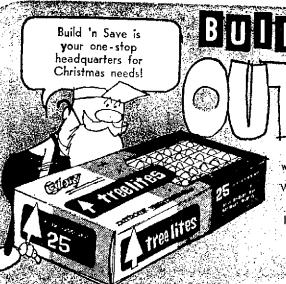

vider, which is a compromise between a solid partition and none at all, says Ursula M. S. Dadras, New York. The design shown in the accompanying sketch is free-standing, thus making it possible to experiment with location until you are completely satisfied that you are drawing the line between areas at the right point. It may be used either hetween living and dining rooms or to suggest a foyer.

The unit is 18 inches wide and just over 6 feet long. Uprights are approximately 5 feet high. Sliding doors are mounted on both sides of the lower cabinet.

To obtain Free-Standing Divider Plan S-32, send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

House for Rent for a Song

By Bertha Blanchard

EATHERED songsters will be attracted to your garden if you supply them with water, food and protection. Then your garden will be a happy place filled with joyful music.

The birdhouse may be a house for birds and also an attractive garden accessory. The kind of birdhouse that you choose depends upon two things: your garden, whether it be woodsy and informal or formal, and the species of birds you wish to attract. A rustic birdhouse, made from a small barrel or the hub of an old wagon wheel, is especially effective when used in a setting of vines, tree boughs, or heavy shrubbery. A formal birdhouse might be a replica of the big house. If you cannot make your own, birdhouses may be purchased in various styles that are correctly proportioned for different types of birds.

FOR PROTECTION, the bird bath should stand out in the open away from shrubbery on a pedestal, two or three feet, above the ground.

Small keg mounted on a platform atop an ivy-covered post makes a useful and attractive house for the birds.

The water should always be kept fresh.

Food for the seed-eaters is no problem-finely cracked grains, sceds and crumbs. A chunk of suet, securely tied to a tree limb, makes a tasty snack for the meat-eaters.

There should be a protective platform under the bird-house and feeding station which keeps marauding cats

For a bird with a song on his bill there should be no high rent problem in this dwelling.

At the airport, a Pan American crew steps aboard a jet with the familiar blue globe on the tail. Half a world away, its passengers will sleep in their own beds to-

TOKYO IS no silk-screen painting of a town. It is big and crowded and mostly ugly. Overhead (ramlines and power wires make for too many poles, and there are too many bicycles and trucks and motor scoolers. The poles are covered with signs, all of them advertisements and most in Japanese characters, but surprising number in English. Mobilgas and Goodyear and the inevitable Cora-Cola pop out of the bewildering maze of colored scrawls. The street signs also say "No Left Turn" and "Pedestrian Crossing" in English, a holdover from the occupation.

The streets teem with humanity, especially scrubbed and shrilling school children in uniform. Where there are so many people, most are poor.

For instance, I for one had almost forgotten what a perfect desert evening is like until a group of us went for a drive at sunset. Skies took on indescribably beautiful hues, fading into hills that changed from varied shades of purple to strange, dark ghosts,

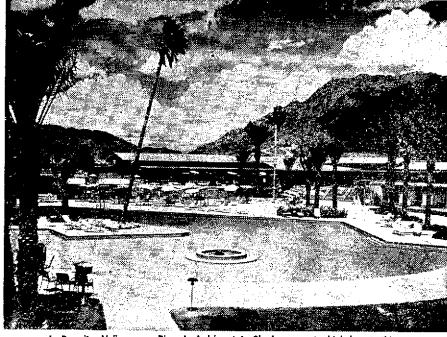

The stars appeared distant at first, then it seemed, plunged toward the earth, so numerous and so bright that the heavens looked almost unreal.

And the air! Soft, warm, caressing. It would have been impossible to order a more perfect evening, weather-wise.

IN THIS SETTING sunloving vacationists may sightsee and explore over a vast expanse of space. Nearby are inviting Paradise Valley and Scottsdale, Arizona State University grounds at Tempe, the impressive Mormon Temple at Mesa, Indian reservations, museums and botanical gardens, swank residential areas.

Short drives lead to the Apache Trail, in the shadow of the fabled Superstition Mountains, man-made lakes where fish await anglers' lures, copper mines; Sun City, the new settlement for the retired; organ pipe and saguaro cactus and other oddities which grow almost nowhere else in the world; hunting; and just plain loafing in the mellow sun.

An easy day's drive and you're in Old Mexico; or the land of the Cliff Dwellers; or beautiful Oak Creek Canyon; Flagstaff and the Grand Can-

IMPORTANT TO Phoenix visitors, too, are the almost limitless accommodations, from dude ranches and swank motor hotels — their large pools shimmering — to comfortable and well-outfitted but less expensive quarters.

Along Phoenix's so-called "motel row" of East and West Van Buren (U.S. Hwy. 80) are several new motels with plush conveniences. In the resort area of Scottsdale, just east of the city limits and around such ultra spots as Mountain Shadows, Camelback Inn, dude ranches and motels have sprouted.

(One feature of Mountain Shadows resort is its spacious pool (photo), completely encircled by 67 cabanas and five acres of beautifully landscaped lawns and gardens.)

Chicken Rice Loaf goes to table attractively and is especially tasty when served with a mustard sauce.

Chicken Rice Loaf

By Mildred K. Flanary

COOD COMPANIONS are chicken and rice. Both are in abundance now, so today's recipe is for Chicken Rice Loaf with Mustard Sauce

The Man Who Often Outraced Death

championships, others were as daring, and others as aggressive or hard-living, but the goldeners of auto racing in the early decades of the 20th Century was dominated by one speed king—one "Babc Ruth of the Tracks"—Berna Eli Oldfield.

His action-packed biography, "BARNEY OLD-FIELD," by William F. Nolan (Putnam, $4.95), zips from one adventure or escapade to another, with no wasted words. The deeds and antics of Barney Oldfield on hundreds of dirt tracks, the sands of Daytona Beach, the bricks of the Indianapolis Speedway, the roadways of the Vanderbilt Cup races and the Grand Boulevard pavement of Corona, Calif., are story enough without literary interference.

For Nolan, 33-year-old San Diego writer, cartoonist, film critic and road-race reporter, this was a labor of love because, as the son of a pioneer auto racer who competed of ten against Oldfield, young Nolan became a devotee of "Ole Barney."

Whether the popular and legendary Oldfield was a great man is questionable but as a great sportsman he moved spectacularly among the giants of his day—Henry Ford, Teddy Roosevelt, Harvey Firestone, Alexander Winton, Eddie Rickenbacker, Jack Johnson, Jim Jeffries, Louis Chevrolet, Gar Wood, Diamond Jim Brady, Tom Mix, Mack Sennett, Mabel Normand and others.

A master of the art of easy-come, easy-go, he lost a fortune in the crash of 1929 but apparently never shed tears. Not many lives reached the heights—and depths—of his and certainly few adventurers outraced death as many times as he did.

How Important Is Naval Power?

By Vera Williams

estendent, Fress-Teleprom Book Editor

S Naval power still significant for the long-time future, or has the opening of space frontiers altered everything in the 20th Century?

What does the United States get for the $12 billion it appropriates annually for naval power?

Will naval power contribute to the future strength of America?

These questions are probed by Capt. Joseph L. Howard, executive officer, U.S. Naval Supply Center, San Diego, in "OUR MODERN NAVY" (Van Nostrand, $5.95.) Capt. Howard points out that for centuries man has contended with the sea, in peace and war. Because 70 per cent of the earth's surface is covered by oceans, they become a more vital medium of international contact every year.

On the threshold of the Space Age, more than one-quarter of the national defense budget is spent to strengthen American naval power. Even that, strategists warn, may not be enough to insure safety and survival.

The officer-writer describes how the U.S. Navy is proceeding toward the fuller utilization of the sea in American interests and in the cause of freedom. He outlines the scope of naval combat capabilities at all levels of war and international relations.

But the Navy is more than just ships, guns, airplanes, missiles and space satellites. It is more than hardware. Naval power represents a concept, a distinctive approach to military power, he stresses.

The Navy is basically people. What the Navy is and does, what it adds to American power depends upon the people in the Navy, their attitudes, philosophies, outlooks and talents.

WHILE THE rest of the world bickered and hattled, scientists from 67 nations pooled their talents and energies for the most ambitious and successful cooperative effort in the history of science during the International Geophysical Year which lasted from mid-1957 to the end of 1958.

The accomplishments of this massive study of the earth and its environments is told by Canadian geophysicist J. Tuzo Wilson in "IGY: THE YEAR OF THE NEW MOONS" (Knopf, $5.95).

Wilson tells how he traveled more than 100,000 miles in and out of the Iron Curtain as an IGY scientist and describes how scientists sent up the new moons—satellites—to study space, how they descended into volcanoes, crossed glaciers, recorded earthquakes and scored major scientific breakthroughs including vast new knowledge and theories of gravity, the weather, cosmic rays, mountain building, fallout and magnetism.

The IGY effort also revealed, Wilson writes, that men working together for common ends hold "in their bands, besides the keys to the nature of earth, the keys to the future of mankind,"

While few non-professionals have the opportunity of photographing such dramatic events as the world series, Kentucky derby, or Olympic track and field events, amateur action enthusiasts don't have far to look to find contests with a liberal share of thrills and drama. Local high schools, baseball parks, swimming pools, playgrounds or colleges offer a year-round schedule of competitive events ranging from football through basketball, track, wrestling, baseball, swim wrestling, baseball, swim meets and tennis to provide interested sports photographers with almost endless opportunities for exciting and challenging picture taking.

IN EVERY SPORT there are those moments of action that will always provide good material for pictures: a halfback breaking around end, pursued closely by opposing linemen; basketball players leaping high into the air for a rebound; sprinters straining every muscle as they near the finish tape. camera can be prefocused on the point of the expected action, and the shutter tripped as the action reaches its peak within this zone.

Make full use of this basic approach, and keep shooting, taking full advantage of the action, But remember-while the area of action is more or less fixed, your camera posi-tion needn't be. Extremely low camera location can re-sult in spectacular photographs, such as in basketball, where the players will seem to be waging high-altitude aerial combat with one another. On the other hand, high-angle shot made from a position in the stands or from a balcony or other vantage point help clarify a given action scene by showing the relationship between individual athletes within their playing area.

While it is possible to get very good sports pictures using only the 35mm cam-era's standard 45 or 50mm lens, accessory telephoto and wide angle lenses, if available, will prove invaluable in opening up picture opportuni-ties difficult if not impossible to handle when using only the standard lens. Telephoto lenses are particularly useful when shooting football and baseball, sports where a large share of the action will be out of range of shorter focal length lenses. They also enable you to isolate significant expressions, gestures, and subtle action side lights on the field and off that will add an exciting extra dimension to your coverage. On the other hand, eye-catching pictures can result from imaginative employment of a wide-angle lens, such as in showing the vast sweep of a roaring crowd or purposely distorting the soaring height of basketball action.

WHILE MANY sporting events take place in the comfortable brightness of daylight, many more are held indoors and or at night. Available light can be used (Continued on Next Page)

Men Who 'Went to the Dogs'

By Eleanor A. Price

COOLER weather always brings on a number of obedience events, for dogs work better and so do their owners when the air is invigorating.

Today at Glen Aire Country Club in Sherman Oaks, at the end of Stansburg Drive and one-half mile south of Ventura Blvd., obedience fans will collect for Southern California Obedience Council Convention. Luncheon ($2.50) will have as toastmaster Frank Inn, owner and trainer of Cico, Rhubarb, and Tramp, movie and TV animals.

Demonstrations of various kinds of dog training under George Hyde follow during the afternoon, and the day climaxes with dinner ($4.50) and Capt. Will Judy of Chicago as speaker.

Capt. Judy is a rare individual who went over to the dogs and really made it pay. Fol-lowing service in France during World War I, wherein he was commissioned, was decorated with the Silver Star, he bought a 16-page sheet called Dog World. He was under the impression that the circulation ran into the thousands, but to his dismay found it totaled a scant 257 names, most of them on the complimentary list.

UNDAUNTED, Capt. Judy, who as a boy had a border collie, a coonhound, and a beagle, and as an adult smooth fox terriers and airedales, decided to study dons seriously, founded Judy Publishing Company, and pushed his magazine circulation up until it became the largest dog magazine in the world. He sold it in 1958 to George

Bulbs Are a Happy Garden Choice

By Joe Littlefield

THEN bulb plants burst into bloom, your garden will brighten almost magically, as if the sun had swept aside winter and ushered in an early spring.

Daffodils—narcissus, if you will- whether the dainty jonquils, poeticus type, or the true large trumpet type, are the most favored of all bulbs.

Best fun of all is to grow

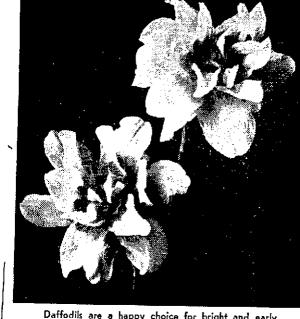

them in pots. Set the planted pots in shade until foliage has grown three inches tall, then place the pots in the sun. A cool, dark, damp place to start is the secret of forcing long stemmed flowers.

There are several types and colors of narcissus to choose from . . . yellow, white, orange, double-shaped blossoms, two tones and a touch of pink,

Planted in the ground, daffodils show to better advan-tage if planted with annual or perennial flower beds.

GAYEST AND brightest of all the so-called bulbs are the ranunculus. Visitors from the East marvel at the color range of these plants. Every ranunculus bulb grows and blooms

There's Variety in Bulbs

Anemones are low growing bulbous plants. Interplant them with pansies, violas, or dwarf annual phlox. The large, poppy-like blossoms yield lots of color in the border planting. These bulbs can be dug up, stored and replanted next year, too.

Dutch iris show off to better advantage if planted four inches apart in drifts of a dozen and a half or more bulbs. Plant some Iceland poppies between the bulbs. They'll furnish low foliage plus dainty, pastel colored flowers which form a good color foil for the blue or bright yellow of the Dutch iris, Furthermore, Iceland poppies keep garden areas looking alive when the iris start to die down.

Now is a time "tailor-made" for tulip planting. Cool, damp ground, and increasing cooler weather, encourages slow root development which in turn helps produce long-stemmed, larger flowers in the spring. You can even plant tulips in half shade, Sow dwarf Virginia stock for ground cover over the tulip planting sec-

PLANT A FEW amarcrinums in sun or partly shady areas and you'll have many summer and fall months of fragrant, pink, amaryllis-like flowers. These bulb plants are a cross between amaryllis belladonna now called brunsvigia rosea, and crinum lily. They are evergreen and actually continue to blossom for at least five months of the year.

If your local nurseryman has any ixia bulbs left, be sure to pick up two or three dozen of them. Plant them in groups in perennial areas of your garden. You'll learn that these stiff-stemmed flowers last well when cut for table decoration indoors. They add lots of color to flower beds

Sparaxis and grape hyacinths form another interesting combination planting requiring about same number of bulbs, spacing, and depth planting. Sparaxis tubular-shaped flowers in bright striking red to soft pastels, blue and lavender, bloom later than grape hyacinths.

Freesias and sparaxis too, form a delightful combination

By Dorothy Jonson

Don't forget your fall clean-up! This bit of advice is worth repetition. Cleaning out fence corners pulling un dead plants and burning them along with the prunings from your berry bushes and other debris, is necessary to the health of your garden. And equally necessary is the fall spraying with an oil emulsion, preferably an oil emulsion blended with limesulphur, which you can buy in one bottle. Give all your shrubbery and fruit trees, and even your shade trees, if pos-sible, the bath they so much require to prevent destructive insect life from over-wintering and to destroy fungus spores which would otherwise develop into fungus diseases.

Spiders and mites get their most destructive "long range" defeat from an oil spray because it not only kills the crawlers but breaks down the fertility of the eggs,

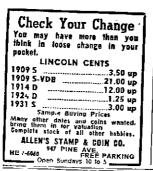

Your entire garden will benefit from a fall clean-up spray and you will have done one of the most important garden jobs of the year.

It's Called Rumaki ROP INTO The Hawaiian restaurant almost any evening and you'll hear people talking about Rumaki,

No, Rumaki isn't the name of one of the Oriental chefs. And it isn't the name of a tropical drink either.

Rumaki is a Cantonese appetizer—a delightful gourmet item which includes chicken liver cooked with spices and water chestnuts wrapped in crisp bacon. The Hawaiian, a large, colorful tropical place at 4645 E, Pacific Coast Hwy. near the Traffic Circle, serves Rumaki a la carte or as part of the No. 2 complete Cantonese dinner.

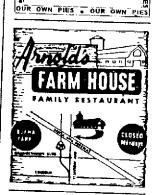

The No. 2 dinner, incidentally, is a delectable $3.75 spread which offers French fried shrimps, ingenious egg roll, barbecued ribs, soup, Moo Goo Gai Pin (strips of sauteed chicken); Mandarin duck, lobster Canton, fried rice, tea, almond cookies and fortune cookies.

OWNER Thelma Mack, an intelligent, cheerful woman who bosses 50 employes, recently added a new dinner to the Cantonese side of her menu. It's marvelous Chinese barbecued ribs ($3.50), including egg flower soup, tossed salad, baked potato or French fries and beverage. New items were added also to the American side of the menu, among them a charcoal-broiled New York steak-lobster tail combination ($4.50); Hawaiian shrimp curry ($3), and an elaborate "fish-kebab" sorted sea foods on a skewer for $3.25). All are served with appetizers on crushed ice; French onion soup; tossed green salad; potato, and gold-en brown Indian bread. Other popular charcoaled steaks on that dinner include top sirloin, $3.45, and New York pepper steak, $4.25. Very popular these days is The Hawaiian's huffet luncheon, Monday through Friday, including seven salads, choice of three hot entrees, such as prime round of beef, potato and sherbet, It's $1.35

Which one is the NATURAL BLONDE?

According to salesmen of hair coloring and students of human nature, the answer is: practically none.

Today's women, spurred on and stimulated by advertisers, refuse to go through life making only one transition—from young to old. They are determined to maintain the youthful look as long as possible. To this end they are constantly experimenting with changes in lipsticks, rouges, powders, perfumes, hair shades.

Why did Dolores go against the trend?

"I am olive-complexioned," she explained, "and my blonde hair didn't go with my dark eyes and my dark skin tone, so first I dyed my hair red. Then, like most girls, I began to experiment.

"Since I am an actress, my agent decided that I would look like Elizabeth Taylor if I went black, so I dyed my hair raven and I have been getting a lot of jobs since—although I must say Hollywood has always been partial to blondes."

There are three major reasons why American women turn their hair lighter: (1) They are convinced that members of the opposite sex prefer blondes; (2) they want to hide graying hair; (3) as women age and develop deeper facial lines and wrinkles, they believe a lighter shade of hair provides less contrast to an aging skin than the dark hair color.

One leading cosmetics manufacturer points out that approximately 90 per cent of all women over 21 in this country are naturally brunette or brownette. (The difference is that a brunette has darker eyes and skin tone than a brownette.) Seven per cent are blondes, and 3 per cent are redheads. Hollywood's number-one hair expert, Fred Fredericks, declares that most of the brunettes want to be blonde, and most of the blondes want to remain so.

Ladies Prefer Blonde

Richard J. McDermott, West Coast manager of Clairol, which sells $50 million worth of hair colorings per year, corroborates that statement by pointing out that the company's best seller is the light ash blonde shade, followed by lighter shades of blonde. "After that," he reveals, "our next best sellers are in the chestnut brown and gray hair coverings."

McDermott believes that most of the world's women are born dissatisfied. "Perhaps," he adds, "they wouldn't be if they were born blonde. Anyhow, we have maintained for years that blondes have more fun in life than brunettes—and apparently most brunettes agree, or are at least willing to test our contention."

Change for Change's Sake

Mrs. Perc Westmore, who runs the House of Westmore beauty salons, claims that women change hair shades regardless of their original hair color.

"I can't tell you," she insists, "how many blondes we have coming into our salons who walk out with red or auburn-colored hair. It is sameness that gets us gals. Sameness builds up frustration. Women like to try something new. It gives us a lift. That is why we go shopping. We are not basically stick-in-the-mud conservatives like men. I would say that 90 per cent of all women change their hair shade at least once in their lives either at home or in a beauty parlor.

NUCLEAR WAR FEAR

by DAVID E. LILIENTHAL

This is a message of the most crucial importance to every American citizen. I urge you to read it aloud to every member of your family hecause it concerns your lives and happiness.

The author is David F. Lilienthal, a distinguished American who is one of the world pioneers of nuclear energy. Few persons have lived under the shadow of this power longer than Mr. Lilienthal, who was the chairman of the first U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. Mr. Lilienthal is at present chairman of the board of the Development and Resources Corp. in New York.

> JUSS GORKEN EDITOR OF PARADE

s america becoming obsessed by fear of nuclear attack? Recently these events were reported in rapid succession throughout the nation:

 In California a band of 32 men, women and children, who had uprooted themselves from their homes in the East, began a new life in a haven they felt was safer from devastation.

 In Chicago a father announced grimly that he planned to mount a machine-gun atop his fallout shelter to keep out unwanted neighbors.

 In New York a social worker reported after a random sampling that many children, frightened by the adult world, no longer want to grow up.

Incidents such as these are being interpreted by growing numbers of people as signs that a state of panie is beginning to grip the country. I believe we are worried---reasonably and understandably so. But I do not for one moment believe that the vast majority of Americans is panic-stricken. Nothing could be more wrong, or more truly dangerous, than this assumption.

Those who come to this erroneous conclusion have

missed this vital point: The more we keep telling ourselves that a sort of "nuclear-phobia," or morbid dread of atomic attack, is upon us, the stronger the likelihood that such a fear will take hold. For fear is one of the most virulently contagious disorders that can afflict

No barometer available to us indicates any significant rise of fear in the face of present crises, although there is evidence of fright in some quarters. The incidents at the start of this article are examples. Even more revealing is the shocking debate over whether a shelter owner has the moral right to drive off a shelter less neighbor at gun point.

When we descend to such a level of argument, we are ceasing to be properly and naturally concerned over protection. Rather we reveal a resignation, if not an actual acceptance, that disaster is inevitable. Debates such as this are defeatist. We should reject them as unworthy of Americans.

Nevertheless, I see no evidence whatever of national panic. We hear of a groundswell of interest in civil defense, but is this fear? We learn from a national poll that people are more worried about a war breaking out now than at any time in recent years. Is this fear? President Kennedy stated that people are "naturally and quite correctly concerned" because "we happen to live in the most dangerous time in the history of the human race,"

But a great gulf of difference exists between frank. open concern and the poison of panic.

There is no hoarding of food or supplies, no spending splurge on the one hand or sudden damining up of consumer spending on the other, no mass evacuations. I am told that psychiatrists and mental hospitals report no sharp increase in patient load, nor do employers in absenteeism. And despite rumors that many individuals are buying guns to protect shelters, manufacturers report no noticeable increase in weapons sales.

Why is nuclear-phobia so truly dangerous?

First, consider the effects of morbid dread upon your life. If it is allowed to penetrate into the mind and being, fear can warp your thinking, distort your judgment and corrode all the values you have built up in a lifetime. Moreover, it can do its damage by stealth. Sometimes fear comes in acute form but more often it penetrates our lives insidiously, changing us slowly and subtly but relentlessly and completely. Specifically, then:

It can make a family rudderless.

Families, like individuals, need goals. Plans must be made for what lies ahead—the buying of a home. saving for college, preparation for trips, long-range projects. Half the fun of family life lies in working toward these goals and achieving them. Nuclearphobia, by chipping away at your faith in the future, will put your family on a tentative basis, causing it to drift along without purpose. Lacking the unifying factor of goals, it can all the more easily fall apart under the stresses that must inevitably come in the everyday course of living.

2. Nuclear-phobia can wreck your family's financial

It can bring about a state of mind that makes you say: "Why should we save for the future when it may never come? Why be careful and thrifty? Why not get all those wonderful things we've wanted right now and worry later?"

3. It can seriously disrupt a normal desire to build a family.

Having children and rearing a family is a normal wish. Some people, however, are already saying: "Why bring children into this kind of world?" If, because of this attitude, they forego the God given opportunity of having children even though they want them, they are doing great damage to themselves. In years to come they will feel the barrenness of their lives more and more keenly.

4. It can wreck careers even before they are begun.

A young man may say to himself: "What's the point of studying so many years to become a doctor, lawyer or engineer? Who knows what will happen before I'm through? Why not chuck it all, find a job and get a little fun out of life?" Multiplied hundreds of thousands of times, this attitude can only have tragic consequences. As our world becomes more complex, only thuse with sound education and training can hope to get and keep good jobs.

But there is another grave danger, we face if we allow ourselves to become fear-paralyzed. It is this:

Every man, woman and child in this country is now being tested by the Soviet Union, which has unleashed a massive campaign of terror to break the American will. Our survival as human beings and the survival of our nation depend on hose well we pass this awesome test of our nerve. If we --- and I speak now of every individual in every home - refuse to allow the threats to twist and warp our minds and actions in the ways I have described, we shall at least impress the Kremlin.

The sudden resumption of Russian weapons "tests" is clear evidence that Premier Khrushchev seeks to infect us with nuclear-phobia. I know something about these atomic tests. No one can tell me that a country needs to set off more than 20 atomic blasts in a few weeks if its aim is weapons development. There is insufficient time between these numerous new Russian blasts for scientific evaluation of the so-called "lests." The meaning is clear: they are simply intended to terrify.

We must by our conduct demonstrate in unmistakable manner that the American will cannot be broken or budged by any form of terror or intimidation. This is the heart-issue of the conflict in which we are all engaged. To do this we need the strength that we and our families can show in our homes and daily lives.

But the key question now arises: Is it really possible to live normal lives in these grim times? Aren't the circumstances so utterly dangerous and different that we have no alternative but fear?

The trial we are undergoing indeed is a severe one. But we can live normally and with zest and joy, while still being realistically aware of the stern test to which we are all being put.

How can this be achieved? There are two important

First, we should understand that the current wave of nuclear jitters is not new. We have been exposed to them before and we have proved to ourselves that it is possible to live normally and creatively and obtain life's satisfactions, despite the threatened dangers.

Have we forgotten the end-of-the-world stories of a decade or so ago, when some people speculated on what might happen if atomic energy went on a ram page? Debates raged over whether the testing of devices would trigger a "chain reaction" that would cause all the hydrogen atoms in the atmosphere to ignite and thus blow up the entire planet. Certainly this nonsense frightened some persons, but the nation didn't go into a tailspin.

Second, we should remember that mankind has always faced threats of the most serious nature and that we have built-in, God-given strength to live and a faith in life greater than any possible threat or anxiety of death.

Nuclear holocaust is without question the most horrifying of all thoughts to us today. But isn't it true that other people, in other cras, have also lived through perils and threats that were, for them, cataclysmic? Living in the midst of danger is actually the state of human life.

Life itself is a continual battle against threats of every description - disease, auto accidents, plane crashes, the thousand and one things that can happen. Living with such potential dangers is built into the very cells of our bodies. From the moment of birth an infant starts to protect himself against a hostile world. All his instincts gird to keep him thriving. He learns to recognize the existence of threats, be alert to them and make his peace with them.

Therefore, I urge you in these most difficult of times to shun defeatist thoughts and talk. Don't allow any form of nuclear phobia to alter your life plans. Have children, of course. Plan for that dream trip. Save and spend in the same wise proportion as before. Continue arrangements for retirement. Study to round out your training and your culture.

Live life fully and zestfully each day, enjoying your family and the people around you, accepting troubles realistically if they come, and working toward your

We Must, finally, bear in mind one more fact -in many ways the most reassuring of all,

Those responsible for our safety and our nation's survival are not asleep. The keenest and wisest brains of our country are working night and day to bring us peace with honor and to protect us.

Our leaders are tough and able. I know many of them, and I know they have dedicated their lives to the solution of the problems we face. Believe me when I say that we are not undefended,

I am convinced that this generation faces not bleakness, as some might think, but a future that is bright with promise. This future, with all its wonders of health, added years and scientific achievements, is ours if, in our trial, we can remain calm and resolute. If fear is contagious, so too is the will to resist.

President Kennedy In a speech at Chapel Hill, N. C.

Ex-President Eisenhower

Charles Bacon Nat'l Commander of The American Legion

"Today we talk atomic bombs instead of a nuzzle-loading rifle. But we've got to learn how to live with this, Some tension, as long as we haven't eliminated the cause, is a good thing because it means alertness. We learn to live with it and still not destroy our

 "We pray that war never again will devastate mankind. We do believe in taking all practical steps to protect ourselves in the event of atomic attack. The American Legion supports the national policy on shelters and recommends that its members prepare their homes against the threat of fallout and encourage their friends to do likewise. Let us proceed on this program as a matter of prudence, not as one which is impelled by an expectation of war."

Pat Boone

Gen. Curtis LeMay Air Force Chief of Staff

"It is true that we all, including young people, will become well acquainted with fear. But let's translate our fear into purpose and determination. Our country has known other wars and other perils, and the young people of those days grew into mature adults. The crises in the world today can and should breed a healthy, strong and determined young nation."

"I don't think that all is lost just because we might happen to be attacked or be forced into war in the future. I don't helieve that at all. I think the American people realize now the seriousness of full-scale war more than they have in the past. But when we get right down to it, we Americans seem to learn the facts of life at just about the right pace. As the competition for existence gets tougher, our responses get tougher and more determined.

Singing together, early worshippers lift hymn at Buffalo church's morning prayer session for businessmen.

They pray to be fair

Their business is God's business

Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock, and you'll find a representative group of the city's business and professional men on their knees in prayer.

Once each week, the Businessmen's Morning Prayer Group gather in the chapel to renew their faith and to ask for religious guidance in the workaday world. Each meeting includes a prayer, a short informal service, and breakfast in the church hall. But many members consider the service so uplifting that they arrive early for private meditation. More than 75 attend regularly; many never miss a Wednesday.

The group got its start five years ago when the church rector, the Rev. Peter M. Sturtevant, suddenly realized that many of his parishioners passed right by the church on their way to work in the morning. Since Mr. Sturtevant is a strong believer in seven-day-a-week Christianity, he suggested to several of the men that they drop in once a week for a short service. The idea went over so well that it quickly became a regular weekly feature.

"These men spend a good part of each day making decisions that often affect not only their own lives but the lives of many others," the minister explains, "For this reason, their business, whatever it is, is God's husiness and their people are God's people. Therefore they all should be seriously and regularly asking for God's guidance and help."

MANY WORSHIPPERS SAY "AMEN." Bankers, lawyers, businessmen, agree that they get a great deal out of the dawn's early-light service.

"I must confess," one banker wrote Mr. Sturtevant, "that for the first two meetings, I wondered why I was willing to rise before daybreak to arrive at Trinity Church prior to 7:45 a.m.

"After attending the second meeting, it became apparent to me that I was better able to cope with whatever business problems the succeeding days had to

"While the spiritual gains accrning from attendance at these Wednesday morning sessions seem to defy adequate explanation, they are tangible to me."

Usually, the service lasts only a short time. Worshippers begin to slip into the pews about 7:45 and pray silently until 8 o'clock. Then Mr. Sturtevant enters, a few hymns are sung, and the minister offers a general prayer. He always asks guidance for each man in his working day. Another period of silent prayer follows, and the group adjourns for breakfast.

Many of the men declare that going directly to their offices from the church keeps religion uppermost in their minds all day. "There certainly is opportunity for us to practice Christian principles during business hours and going there direct from Trinity makes this easier for me," declares a member.

Another regular worshipper makes it even more emphatic. "I need religion to maintain a proper set of values in these very confusing and complicated times." he says. "Sunday worship is not enough for me."

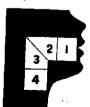

Chatting informally, the Rev. Peter Sturtevant, who started the group, talks jobs with business and professional men.

Tooth paste covers only a small area of the mouth, yet most bad breath is caused by germs throughout the mouth and throat. With the Listerine way*, the recommended way, you get

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by STERLING MOSSMAN

EDITION'S NOTE: Sterling Mossman, the most famous comic in Hawaii, is a detective on the Honolulu police force by day and an entertainer by night. He was born and raised in the Islands. A fixture at the Barefoot Bar on Waikiki Beach, Mossman has also entertained at the Waldorf Astoria in New York, the Fontainebleau in Miami Beach, several other top night spots throughout the world. Of late he and his Barefoot Gang have been commuting to Hollywood to appear in the Hawaiian Eye TV series. Here are some of the jokes Mossman has been telling in Honolulu since 1942:

The bus to Pearl Harbor was jammed when a big fat woman entered. She stood and stared at all the seated passengers.

"Isn't there a gentleman in this bus," she demanded loudly, "who will offer me a seat?"

A small sailor jumped up, "Well," he volunteered, "I'm willing to make a contribution."

The lawyer gathered the family of the recently deceased Sam Wong Berg around him. He began to read Sam's will aloud: "To my dear wife I leave my house, fifty acres of land and one million dollars. To my son, Sam, I leave my two cars and $100,000. To my daughter, Bessie, I leave my yacht and $100,000. And to my brother-in-law who always insisted that health is better than wealth I leave my sunlamp."

Years ago in the Hawaiian Islands, the Chinese had this custom: When a friend or relative died, they would bury him, then place a nine-course dinner on his grave to feed his spirit.

On one occasion, an American went into a cometery to place flowers on the grave of a pal. While doing so he spotted a Chinese mourner at a nearby grave setting out the usual nine-course meal for the spirit of the departed friend.

The American, thinking this a rather wasteful and ridiculous custom, mockingly queried, "When do you think your friend will come up and eat his food?"

The Chinaman smiled, "Same time," he answered, "your friendcome up and smell your flowers."

Little Nauey went to the hospital to see her new-born baby brother. She was lifted up to see the infants in the hospital nursery. Suddenly she frowned. "Daddy." she exclaimed, "those babies --- they're not even done yet!"

A grave-digger, thinking of the quarrel he'd had with his wife the night before, dug so intensely, so deeply, giving vent to his hostility, that he found after six hours of digging he was down so far he couldn't get out.

As night fell, he began to vell for help. A passing drunk heard his cry and ran into the cemetery to investigate.

The grave-digger looked up and said, "Help me out, Buddy, It's cold down here."

The drunk thereupon picked up a shovel and began shoveling dirt into the hole. "No wonder you're cold," he explained. "There ish no dirt on you."

You've heard about the shipwrecked sailor who finally made it to a tiny island in the South Pacific. Suddenly he spied a yacht approaching him. As the yacht came up beside the island, its skipper looked down and called out, "Where are we?"

Pete and his pals play together. When released from his cage, he flies right to the cats.

Paws that refresh are favorite resting spot for Pete.

Affectionate buss is planted on Pete's head by pal Tuffy;

Juliette Greco has hair fixed on set as Zanuck sits beside her. She made four films under his aegis but never became a star.

The 3 protegées of Darryl Zanuck

by LLOYD SHEARER

PARIS, FRANCE.

Wife invariably resembles his first?

Authorities on love and marriage say it's because most men carry around a built-in concept of their ideal woman—a combination mother-sister-lover image—and no matter how shattering their first marital experience, they are reluctant to give up the original image.

It's the same way with a motion picture producer. He believes he can make a star of almost any woman who proves particularly attractive to him. Despite previous failures, he is prepared to try again.

Take Darryl Zanuck, 59, the small, moustachioed producer who used to run 20th Century-Fox. For more than 20 years Zanuck was built up as a neargenius by the studio publicity wizard, Harry Brand.

In 1952, therefore, when he announced that he was going to make a star of a young woman he had previously met in Paris—Bella Darvi—Hollywood figured if anyone could do it, Zanuck was the magician.

Zanuck tried. He brought Bella (real name—Bella Wegier) to Hollywood, had her coached intensively in drama and English, started her opposite top-flight actors in three films: Hell and High Water, The Egyptian, and The Racers. And she laid a bomb in all three.

Zanuck then went abroad and in Paris again found another brunette divorcée, this one named Juliette Greco. From 1956 on he cast Juliette in practically all of his major productions: The Sun Also Rises, The Roots of Heaven, Crack in the Mirror, and The Big Gamble.

Juliette did little for these films; and the films little for her. Certainly they did not elevate her to stardom. And gradually she and Zanuck dissolved their patronprotegée relationship.

EARLY THIS YEAR, still determined to make a star of his image, Zanuck met a model in Paris named Irina Demich—same type as Darvi and Greco: dark eyes, slim-trim figure, independent, daughter of immigrant parents, ambitious and intelligent. Although she had no dramatic experience whatever, he cast her in the lead female part of the most important film of his career, The Longest Day, in which she plays a French Resistance worker.

"I needed a fresh, new face," he explains. "I didn't want someone who'd been typed long ago. I feel Irina has every chance in the world of becoming a great new screen personality."

Zanuck said the same thing about Darvi and Greco, and in the stardom sweepstakes they ran last. How well will Demich do?

In Paris, along the sidewalk cafes of the Champs Elysées, they are already giving odds.

Dark-haired Bella Darvi was Zanuck's 1951 discovery.

French model Irina Demich is Zanuck's new protegée.

Don't confuse your friends

PVERYONE has problems occasionally, and when one occurs the rest of us swiftly rally to help with sympathy and advice. Without hesitation, we become glib experts on how to mend a marital rift, discipline a wayward child, tell off an in-law—even if we can't handle a similar situation in our own lives.

But are we really such experts as we think? The following quiz describes situations tackled every day by 3,000 counselors of the Family Service Association of America. For 50 years (its birthday will be marked with a conference this week) FSA's 308 agencies have been helping American families. Counselors have learned there are no put answers to problems, but some answers are better than others. Study the questions helow, then compare your "hest advice" with theirs.

- 1 Your neighbor's son Russell, 11, has been ill two years. Now well, he has fallen so far behind in his studies that he is only in fourth grade. He is humiliated. Lately he has refused to go to school at all. What is your advice to his mother?
- a Ask the school to promote han to his own age level; b Ask the teacher to give him extra duties befitting his stature as older child; c Hire someone to tutor him after school; d Tutor him herself in a sympathetic home atmosphere; e Explain to him that he must go to school because it is for his own good.
- 2 Before she married, Jan was a high-paid buyer in a department store. She loved it. Now the mother of three children under 8, she feels frustrated by a life of drudgery and dishes. Yet both she and her husband agree that the role of mother must come first when the children are young. What is your advice?

  2 Plunge into community volunteer projects as a substitute for working; b Own up that she's really a career woman, hire a housekeeper, and return to work; c Stick it out until all children are in school; d Find a part-time job as a sales clerk near home.
- 3 Betty's recently-widowed mother, 78, has been invited to live with Betty and George. Her possessions and income are a material help, but she now seems to be taking over. As a result, everyone's on edge. Yesterday George even hit Betty. What should she do?

- a Grin and bear it awhile, since a 78-year-old person can't live much longer; b Find her an apartment near by and go back to living the old way; c Place her in a good nursing home with people her own age; d Give her a talking-to, explaining that she is a guest in the home; e Leave George, since there is no excuse for hitting a woman.
- 4 Sam, 38, has held the same job 10 years. He's bored. Worse, his boss has hinted that his work is slipping. At home he gets little relief. He complains that his wife is always badgering him about money and that the kids keep his nerves on edge. What action would you recommend?
- a Find a more interesting job; b Make an appointment with a vocational counselor; c Visit a family counselor; d Have a brass-tacks talk with the boss about job and future; e Grit his teeth and dig in harder than ever.
- 5 Barbara, 28, is the mother of twins. They keep her harried and exhausted. Recently her divorced sister Mae has come to help. But the other day Barbara surprised Mae and her husband in an embrace. She slipped out of the room before they saw her, but now duesn't know what to do about it. What's your advice? a Take the children and go home to mother; b Say nothing and hope it will blow over; c Realizing that all are adults, call them together and discuss the mat-

- ter in a civilized way; d Demand that both leave at once; e Make sure in the future to give her husband much more attention.
- 6 Helen, 17, has just discovered that she is pregnant, though unmarried. The father is a boy she has broken off with. She considers him a bad marriage risk. And she fears her parents would disown her if they knew. How should she handle the situation?
- a Leave town right away, before anyone notices her condition;
  b Go quietly to her family doctor and ask him to contact a childless couple who want a baby;
  c Dump the whole problem in the lap of a social agency;
  d Make immediate arrangements to enter a home for unwed mothers;
  e Think of the child and marry the boy, regardless.
- 7 Pat, mother of three school-age children, is hospitalized by auto crash injuries. It may be months before she can run the household again. Relatives who might take over live miles away and have responsibilities they can't leave. What can her husband do? a Parcel the children out among relatives; b Ask his boss to shown his boss to show his boss t
- a Parcel the children out among relatives; b Ask his boss to change his hours so that he can spend more time at home; c Hire a stranger—or find one through a social agency—to run the household while he is at work; d Hire a neighborhood teenager to watch the children until he gets home; e Place the children in a foster home until the wife is recovered.

Are you a help-or a hindrance? Compare your answers with these

- 1 C is the best answer. Lectures and shotgun promotions will only make things worse, "Recognizing" Russell will only make him feel more freakish. And his mother is too emotionally involved to be a good tutor. A private tutor or one furnished by the school will give the right balance of dispassion and attention.
- 2 Many counselors, surprisingly, would say B. A real career girl, they say, may not be satisfied with PTA chairmanships or sales clerking, and postpuning a decision is seldom the answer. Once Jan faces up to her real interests, hires a housekeeper—but a good one—and takes a job, she'll be a better mother.
- 3 D—talking it out—is the course recommended by most counselors. If it serves no other purpose, it will

- at least relieve some of the tension, which is the real problem now. In some cases, A, B, or C might be a solution. But this woman is healthy, only recently widowed and old, and should not be left alone.
- 4 C is the choice of most experts—and more than professional interest is involved. "Our counselors," says Shirley Camper, family life consultant for the Family Service Association of America, "find that an astonishing number of job problems can be traced to home conflicts. This isn't always the case, but it ought to be investigated first."
- 5 Wives may disagree, but counselors feel E would be Barbara's best move. Again and again, they say, they are faced with marriage breakups where the hus-

- band has strayed because his wife is too wrapped up in the children. In this case, counselors add that Mae should be invited to leave at the first opportunity.
- 6 C is the answer, for this is the kind of case which agencies are set up to handle—discreetly. D is an alternate answer except that arrangements need not be immediate. A family doctor may be sympathetic, but "gray market" adoptions are risky. Fleeing solves nothing. Few agencies say she should marry "regardless."
- 7 Counselors favor C. Most consider B and D impractical, and A and E are eliminated because no matter who the housekeeper is the children are best off in their own home. At a time of crisis the most important thing is to keep the family together.

For a tastier TURKEY

It's time to think Turkey for the Thanksgiving feast. To make the noble bird both better looking and better tasting than ever before follow these suggestions.

-BETH MERRIMAN

- 1 After cleaning, sprinkle turkey inside with monosodium glutamate.
- 2 Use one kind of stuffing in neck cavity and another in body cavity for welcome variety. Pack stuffing loosely, as it swells during roasting.
- 3 Trussing need not be complicated. Fasten neck skin to back with skewer. Turn breast-side up. Fold wings close to body; fasten each with skewer. Close body cavity with small skewers laced with clean white string; use ends of string to tie drumsticks to tail unless there is a bridge of skin to push drumsticks under.

- 4 Brush bird with melted, unsalted shortening; sprinkle entire surface with monosodium glutamate for added, natural flavor.
- 5 Place breast-up on rack in shallow roasting pan. Cut a piece of aluminum foil about 4 inches longer than turkey.

Place it over bird, pinching at both ends and pressing it down lightly to anchor it. Leave top and sides loose.

- 6 Place in pre-heated, 325° oven. Do not add water; do not baste.
- 8 Time roasting so turkey will be done 20 to 30 minutes before serving. Thus juices will be absorbed and carving will be easier.
- 9 When turkey is 3/3 done, cut the string or band of skin to release drumsticks and thus insure thorough cooking of second joints or thighs.
- 10 Remove skewers and string. Keep turkey warm while making pan gravy. Pour off fat from drippings. Use 1½ tablespoons each of fat and flour for each cup of liquid. (Giblet broth is excellent as the liquid.) Return measured fat to pan, add measured flour; blend. Place over low heat and stir until frothy; add cool liquid all at once.

Cook, stirring, until thickened. Simmer 5 minutes. Season to taste.

- 11 Make paper frills for ends of drumsticks: fold a piece of white paper, 8½ x 11-inches, in thirds lengthwise. Slash one long edge into fringe about 1-inch deep. Unfold outer edge and refold in opposite direction. Cut in half, crosswise, to make 2 ruffs. Fasten around end of turkey legs with tape.
- 12 Garnish beautifully. We made a "Della-Robbia" wreath of preserved kumquats, frosted grape clusters, spiced crabapples, nuts-in-the-shell and galyx leaves. You might like to use fresh kumquats, Lady apples, frosted grapes and ivy leaves.
- 13 Provide an empty platter or large plate for the convenience of the carver. Have carving knife razor sharp.
- 14 An added caution: combine moist and dry stuffing ingredients just before stuffing turkey. Do not stuff the bird until just before roasting. After serving, remove all remaining stuffing and store it separately in a covered dish in the refrigerator.

This is sort of a shrimp cocktail that runs rings around any you've ever seen before: It's a beauty for a buffet ... or a fine way to make the man in your life feel like a king for a day. (Don't tell him it is this easy!)

Just dissolve 2 packages (3 oz. each) Jell-O Lemon Gelatin in 2½ cups boiling water. Add 2 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce, 3 tbsp. vinegar, 1 tsp. salt and a dash of pepper. Now season to your own taste with any of the following: onion juice, colory salt, Worcestershire, Tabasco, horse-radish. Pour into ring mold and chill until firm. Unmold, fill the center with shrimp (about 1 lb) and garnish with greens. Serves 8 as appelizer or side dish.

- BY SAFEGUARDING YOUR HOME.

With life insurance, a man can safeguard the home his family loves by owning a policy which takes care of any unpaid mortgage.

4 BY PROVIDING A GUARANTEED FUND FOR EMERGENCIES.

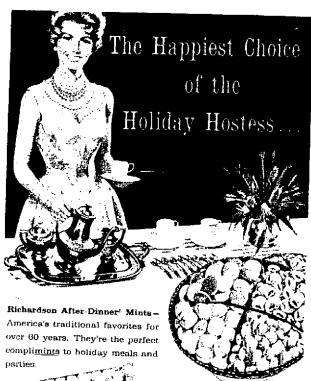

You know, in advance, exactly how much money will be available in your life insurance at any given time. Secure in this knowledge, you are better prepared to face emergencies.

BY ASSURING A STEADY RETIREMENT INCOME.

A husband and wife can get more pleasure from their later years when they plan their life insurance to provide a steady income guaranteed to last for both their lifetimes.

The wise family head estimates his family's future needs, then plans his life insurance accordingly. Since family cucumstances change, many couples review their program with their life insurance agent regularly. In this way, they get the most from their life insurance.

by NANCY HAGEN

*ODELING and charm schools are L turning into a nation-wide racket.

That's the flat statement of Mary Webb Davis, owner of one of the oldest and most reputable model agencies and training schools on the West Coast.

Miss Davis, 50, blonde, chic, a descendant of forbears who arrived in Pennsylvania with William Penn, talks each afternoon to at least 25 girls who are "graduates" of some charm or modeling school, girls who have come west for gold and glamor.

Usually these girls have spent 6 to 12 weeks and from $500 to $800 for courses which they believe will prepare them for lucrative modeling careers.

They come to Mary Davis because they know she gets jobs for such top models as Maggi Brown, Shirley Bonne, Maruja, Claudia Ransom, a host of others.

"Practically none of the charm school graduates," Miss Davis sadly confesses, "are professionally acceptable. It's nervewracking and heartbreaking to talk to these kids day after day, to see the way they react when I tell them honestly that they just don't have what it takes.

"First they cay. Then they become incredulous. Then they tearfully explain that their charm schools didn't exactly promise them jobs-but somehow the inference was there, deeply imbedded in the sales pitch, that once they finished their charm courses the doors to modeling success would be open to them.

"All of them surely believed that somehow they would become top-flight models, because they wanted to believe that. Few had the objectivity to study themselves honestly or the common sense to find out what is wanted in the modeling market today and how much modeling success is pure accident and how much is training."

Charm schools have increased tenfold throughout the U.S. in the past decade. largely because there's a growing supply of gullible teen-aged girls who make them lucrative. Apparently the urge to model is akin to the poetry-writing urge. It hits nine out of ten girls in their teens. The increased use of pretty female faces and figures on magazine covers and in advertising is responsible for a replacement in ambitions among teen-agers. Most girls used to want to become movie stars. Nowadays most want a crack at modeling,

JUST HOW MANY thousands of girls are currently enrolled in charm and modeling schools, Mary Davis has no accurate idea. She estimates at least 150,000. Perhaps one out of 100 will eventually make an adequate living as a model.

To girls who aspire to modeling careers here's some honest, down-to-earth Mary Webb Davis lowdown:

Generally there are two classes of successful models: fashion and commercial. Both are accidents of birth.

The high fashion model doesn't need a beautiful face, but she does have to be put together perfectly and in the right proportions. She must be able to offer a particular brand of individuality in manner, walk, grace, and carriage. She must be able to sell a manufacturer's clothes line.

Good posture can be taught to almost

Elegance makes Maruja top success

Mary Webb Davis has run a top West Coast agency and modeling school since 1945. For several years she conducted a TV program, Glamor Girl, in which the selected a woman from the audience and redid her completely. Miss Davis believes that becoming a successful model is largely an accident of birth, for height, coloring, physical proportions, etc., are inherited; but self-improvement is something any woman can achieve.

In general, most fashion models boast 34-24-34 measurements, range in height from 5 feet 61/2 to 5 feet 9. The taller a girl is, the more slender she must be.

The commercial or photographic model must have a photogenic face which is either beautiful or unique, depending on the bone structure. Her physical measurements make little difference. It's her face which helps sell the cosmetics or the toothpaste or whatever she's advertising.

Most models have either a pretty face or a perfect figure. Relatively few, such as Suzy Parker or Maggi Brown, have both.

A girl who plans to attend a charm or modeling school should shop around carefully. She should determine how expert the instructors are, the general reputation of the school.

MORE IMPORTANT, she should ask herself why she wants to attend. If she wants to take a charm school course for self-improvement-to walk properly, to catch a husband (or to rekindle the interest of the one she already has), to kill time, to become a country-club model-that's one thing. If she wants to become a career model, however, that's a very different matter. Then she must truthfully find out whether she has the physical attributes to make a fashion or commercial model. Almost any good photographer or dressbuyer can tell her. Chances are he'll be more honest and objective than the interviewer at a modeling school where, in some cases, money in the till means more than a girl's shattered dreams.

Face is fortune in case of Maggi Brown

VD. Venereal disease in this country is on the rise -- especially among teenagers. And an estimated half of them, according to many doctors, have never even heard of either syphilis or gonorrhea. What can be done to educate our teenagers of the dangers of venereal disease? Dr. Samuel Andelman, Commissioner of Health in Chicago, has a plan. He wants to make blood tests compulsory for all high school juniors or seniors. *I see the plan," explains Dr. Andelman, "not primarily as a system for detecting and treating disease but as a method of educating our children. If you tell a youngster he has to have a blood test before he's graduated, he's naturally going to ask why. You then explain to him about venereal disease. In so many of our school systems today, despite the repeated urgings by parentteacher groups, information on VD is not included in the curriculum. The result is that teenagers go out into the world knowing absolutely nothing about it." Dr. Andelman hopes to convince the Chicago Board of Education to start compulsory blood-testing of high school students by 1962. "I know that compulsory bloodtesting is probably unconstitutional," he concedes, "that many parents will object to it. But if these parents don't want us to do it for their children, then it can be done by private physicians. The important thing is to educate our youngsters and to eradicate venereal disease as a public health problem in the United States. It's a rising one right now. And blood-testing is a way of cutting it down. I hope Chicago will show the nation it can be done.

CHINA'S PLAN. British intelligence agents who have access to Red China believe Chou En-Lai has a simple over-all master plan to make China the world's number-one nation. How? By encouraging Soviet Russia to take a tough line toward the U.S.A., never back down. Inevitably, the Chinese feel, the Soviets and the Americans will clash in a nuclear war, destroy each other, allow Red China to inherit the earth. China believes she will do this anyway by brute force of numbers. Come the year 2050, if population rates remain as they are, every second person in the world will be Chinese.

bringing up babys Hints collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother, of 5

A new baby in the house prompts all kinds of advice from backyard baby-care experts. Most of it is well-meaning but often conflicting and thereby confusing. Best advice, of course, will come from your doctor. Next best is to read authoritative material . . . then heed your heart and your common sense. Amazing how reliable your own instincts are.

New-baby basic. Specially prepared cereals come early in the modern baby's diet. One reason is that they give baby the iron that milk does not supply. Gerber Rice Cereal is a good starter because it's especially mild, and like all Gerber Cereals, easy to digest.

When baby comes home...

Note from Dan Gerber.

The way cereal "cooks up" determines its digestibility. Take our Rice Cereal, for example: all rice varieties are tested for proper cooking behavior to make sure your baby's cereal is easy to digest. Specialized care of this kind goes into every single food prepared for your baby.

Security plan. The custom of swaddling a tiny one is as old as time itself. It not only provides friendly warmth and a feeling of security, but it's still the best way I know to comfort a fussy baby.

Water plan. Does baby balk at water? If so, he's probably getting enough from his formula and juice. It's a good idea to offer previously boiled water, but don't urge it on baby.

As your baby progresses to a full food schedule, he'll be introduced to fruits and vegetables. Gerber Strained Fruits and Vegetables are prepared to make your tyke like to eat them. All are specially processed for utmost protection of valuable nutrients.

When your doctor puts baby on meats, he's indicating protein for his growth. Gerber Strained Meats are protein-rich, wonderfully smooth and moist. Made of selected Armour cuts, they're especially savory and almost completely free of fat.

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods: cereals, strained and junior, to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

Bert's Eye View

A horse is a horse, of course, of course, except when he's a ham.

Television's biggest horse-ham is a nondescript palomino named "Mr. Ed," a talking equinine who has brought home the rating bacon.

As a dark-horse syndicated feature-sold to individual stations— "Mr. Ed" last year got off to a racing start. A proven viewing victor, his repeated first-crossings over the finish line brought the series galloping up for major consideration.

CBS-TV claimed the series for network distribution across the country.

"Mr. Ed" became the first-and still the only-syndicated series to make the network grade. It airs 6:30 p.m. Sundays on channel 2

None of which has made the horse-ham less hammier.

Connie Hines says it's so. And she should know

For 25-year-old Connie is the buxom blonde who plays Carol, the femme lead on the "Mr, Ed" series.

"I REMEMBER ONE SCENE in which he was supposed to pretend to be sick," said Connie. "The script called for me to hug him and tell him he was just lonely because I had been

"Well, I hugged 'Mr. Ed' seven times and seven times that horse put his face in front of mine. We finally got it right on the eighth take.

There was another time when I was supposed to put my head on his nose. I whispered in his ear that this was 'my

"So I put my head on his nose and he-wham!-jerked his head up.

Anyone attempting to "upstage" Connie-horse, human or ham--is confronted with a queen-size challenge,

Cloaking which is off-camera absent when Connie yoga head-stands on the beach, takes a swim with her dog "Tiger" or trampoline pounce-bounces.

In swimsuit or shorts and sweater, Connie is a sight to bring "onstage" any red-blooded American male,

\* . \*  $\star$

BUT ANY RED-BLOODED American male is a horse of a different color,

And an upstaging palomino named "Mr. Ed" can, with a departing swish of his tail, bring Connie onstage off schedule. He can and does,

"Several times 'Mr. Ed' has got tired and walked off the set," said Connie. "On each of those occasions, they have called me in to do a scene which I wasn't supposed to do until the

There was one off-schedule incident recently that involved Connie, several other actors and "Mr. Ed."

The actors were in the cab part of a trailer-truck, "Mr. Ed"

Going around a curve, the vehicle jack-knifed. In the accident, the cab stood on its , nose while the front part of the trailer pointed towards the sky

"All the technicians, the director, everybody came running," said Connie. "They all ran over to the trailer to see if 'Mr, Ed' was ok."

She sighed,

"I guess we're all kind of props for him," she said. "He's our renewal."

Or, as the saying goes, never look into a gift horse's mouth, especially when he's a talking one.

For what he's saying makes good, old-fashioned horse nonsense.

Drama About Nun

Robert Crean's original drama about a nun who returns home on leave during a family crisis will be aired Dec. 8 on CBS-TV. A "West-inghouse Presents" special, it will be titled "Come Again to Carthage." The title is derived from "The Merchant of Venice.16

LIN McCARTHY, portraying an astronaut waiting to hear which of his group has been selected for the first flight to the moon, spends the waiting time with his family, enacted by Nancy Olson and Michael Burns (right), during "Alcoa Premiere" at 10 p.m. Tuesday on channel 7.

Pan and Fan Mail

While TV may have a socalled hypnotic influence upon people, I, for one, do not believe it does.

Anyway, it does not bother me. I believe that it has been said that any person that resists hypnosis cannot be hypnotized against their will.

As for George Nader's belief that the present TV programs have a hypnotic influence upon children, this is not so.

For I believe that, in 99 per cent of the so-called evil programs, the wrongdoers are always punished for their crimes. So if the hypnotic effect is there, the fact that they are punished could be implanted into the youngsters' minds. So for this hyp-notic effect, "three cheers."

There have been some very none-too-good TV programs in the past, but I think that the present programs are constantly improving and will even better as time marches on, the magic monster was placed in the living room? Could it have been the movies, haha?

Mr. Nader states it was not, because the movie house could not contain a hypnotic influence, haha again,

I recall my own youth and experiences and so would Mr. Nader if he had been a normal youngster.

He, like many others, are merely trying to brush aside the real reason for our socalled juvenile delinquentsspoiled and pampered by their very own parents.

The parents do nothing at all to alter the situation except, of course, to talk about their children's faults over the backyard fence with a tch tch here and a tch tch there and an occasional back-hand slap at the kid's face, who has no guidance offered except growl at everything he or she Heck, no.

They're too busy with their own egoisms and the net result is the kids sneak away and get into all kinds of mischief that could have been avoided

Oh, I could go on and on, but I guess I have bored you to death this far.

Paul Turner, Long Beach You're wrong, Mr. Turner, I haven't been bored to death and hope the readers of this column also find your views lively. I hope it's clear, however, that down to the last "tch tch" and including the two "haha's," the opinions ex-pressed are strictly your

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)-New York obliged with three weeks of fine October weather for the benefit of a television program called "The Wonderful World of Toys."

Moderate temperatures and a minimum of rain were essential to smooth preparation of the show since it was recorded in its entirety in Central Park, mostly outdoors. Harpo Marx and Carol Burnett are stars of the program which will fill the "Du Pont Show of the Week" spot tonight (10 o'clock PST Sunday, channel 4).

"I tried to buy long winter underwear before I came to New York," said Harpo, who had feared the worst in the way of weather and, at 68, wants no part of rain and cold. "That was in Palm Springs, where I live in a balmy atmosphere the lear round and they thought I was crazy."

year 'round, and they thought I was crazy."

As he talked, Harpo, the silent Marx brother, was stuffing his pockets with an odd assortment of toys to use as props in the next scene. Co-directors Dick Barstow and Roger Englander were busy lining up about a dozen youngsters on bicycles, tricycles, scooters and kiddle cars for a "dance routine" on wheels.

HARPO SAID it was difficult to describe "The Wonderful World of Toys."

"I just wander through the park, and wherever I go there are kids and toys, Carol Burnett's voice follows me through my travels. Occasionally she comes on to do a song number. And Merv Griffin and Edie Adams are in it too.

Somebody has referred to it as 'Harpo in Wonderland,' and I suppose that is the best description."

HARPO MARX AND CAROL BURNETT On 'Toy' Program Tonight

Other performers who are seen in bit parts are Milton Berle, Ava Gabor, Audrey Meadows and Elsa

One of the more fanciful segments required moving several animals to new quarters in the park's zoo temporarily while enormous stuffed beasts were placed in their cages. Harpo also gets a chance to play with $5,000 worth of electric trains.

The comedian pointed out that there always scemed to be a lot of people in the park in daytime, and he opined that they must be those who work at night or not at all.

'Most of the time I don't work either," he commented, referring to his semi-retirement that he interrupts only when something very appealing comes along,

"YOU KNOW HOW they talked me into this one? I asked for a script, and instead they sent me pictures of thousands of toys. I couldn't say no."

Harpo sticks to his professional style of never talking while performing.

"I get tempted now and then to take a speaking part," he said, "but who'd believe me? They'd say it was dubbed. When I called room service at my hotel, the operator said, 'You mean you really Harpo has a soft and pleasant voice that seems to fit his personality perfectly.

"I'm really a very anonymous person when I'm not acting," he continued. "I take off the blond wig and the prop coat, and talk, and no one recognizes

"I've probably signed fewer autographs than anyone in show business."

Actor Benefits from Benefits

HOLLYWOOD (A) Backus is against actors playing benefits for millionaireseven millionaire moviemakers.

The famed wit, who guests on "Maverick" at 6:30 p.m.

today (Sunday), channel 7, once made an ad lib crack while sitting in a dentist chair and saved himself some dough — but that only happened once.

"My dentist was always asking me to do my act before a dental convention. So one day I said: 'Doc, how come I'm always playing benefits for dentists and doctors? Yet, they never play benefits for actors.

"He laughed—a little hysterically, but still he laughed.
On the first of the month, I gol my bill stamped 'paid.'"
RECENTLY Backus' agent urged him to appear in a skit at a Beverly Hills country club party which a studio head was putting on.

"I was there because Keenan Wynn and I were both up for the same part in a movie at the producer's studio. Keenan's agent had dragged him there for the same reason.

"Came curtain time and Keenan refused to go on. He left the place cursing the producer, the agent and even me. Keenan cheated. He read the script first.
"I stayed, The skit was horrible. It's a wonder I didn't end my career in show business that night.

"The producer showed his gratitude by giving the part in the movie to Keenan.

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tramp, the shaggy dog in television's "My Three sons" series, soon will become a papa.

This less than startling news is embellished by the announcement that one of his pups, to be named Tramp Jr., will be given to the boy or girl who writes the best letter stating why he or she wants the puppy.

Don Fedderson, producer of the highly rated series, says Tramp Jr. is up for grabs despite the fact that he won't be born for

another month,

"There has been so much reaction to Tramp from viewers we decided to give one of his pups to a fan," Fedderson explained.

"We've had a good many requests for one of his puppies, but this is the first time he's become a father. But it's only fair that viewers should know Tramp is 100 per cent mongrel,"

HE'S CONSIDERABLY more than that.

At three years of age, the animated floormop stands five feet tall on his hind quarters, weigh 140 pounds and earns $300 a week.
Unlike Lassie, who is really a male collie posing as a female. Tramp makes no bones about the fact that he is all dog, even if he doesn't have a pedigree to match Lassie's.

In fact, he has no pedigree at all.
"We had a lot of trouble trying to male Tramp with a female that looked like him," said Fedderson. "We think he's a mixture of Airdale, Sheepdeg and Shepherd, "Tramp is very good with children, gentle and friendly. One of his pups will make a fine family pet.

"When we cast him for the role in our series, we were as careful as we are with human actors. We could have found another dog that was bigger, uglier and dumber than Tramp, but it wasn't easy.

"ACTUALLY, TRAMP is a tremendously smart dog. He's so smart he knows exactly when to play dumb for the cameras."

Tramp's principal function on the ABC series is to be constantly under foot or lying in Fred MacMurray's chair or serving as a back rest for one of the child stars on the

"We all spoil him," Fedderson went on.
"He has such a sweet disposition, everyone
pets and plays with Tramp when he isn't working."

Youngsters interested in attaining Tramp Jr. should write to Don Fedderson, 780 N. Gower St., Hollywood 38, Calif.

"Letters must be accompanied by a note from the mother or father," Fedderson said. It would be terrible to send Tramp Jr. off to a new home where he wasn't wanted by

We expect the puppy to be born by Dec. I, so all letters should be in by then. We will fly Tramp Jr. to the winner in mid-January, complete with a supply of dog food,

Seattle dogs check new dog food claims

SEATTLE, Wash. -- Local dogs turned out in force re- food tests at Duwamish Head on Elliott Bay. This test, kennel tests in which 2 out of 3 dogs switched to New cently when General Mills held dramatic, informal dog one of several held in West Coast cities, confirmed earlier Surechamp Meal Ticket from their regular dry dog food

2 out of 3 dogs switched to New Surechamp Meal Ticket in General Mills' Kennel Tests

1.00 GUARANTEE OFFERED

One of America's leading food producers, General Mills, has created a new dog food called Surrichamp Meal Ticket with such an appealing and different taste that:

- 2 out of 3 dogs tested switched to it from their regular dry dog food in scientific kennel tests.
- In a series of public feeding tests 2 out of 3 dogs also chose new Surechamp Meal Ticket over their owner's choice of five lending packaged dog foods.
- General Mills guarantees dogs will enjoy the new food and backs the guarantee with the offer of a $1.00 coupon, good toward the purchase of any dry dog food.

The feeding tests, General Mills spokesmen say, gave scientific proof to widely held theories that dogs, like people, welcome exciting new flavor in their diets.

Discoveries about the importance of a combination of ingredients, cooking, shape and texture in the enhancement of dog food flavor produced the taste triumph.

Unique new shape

The product's unique new roll shape is of great importance, General Mills officials say. Kennel tests show dogs are especially fond of this new form And, certain ingredients not only enhance flavor but add vitamins and proteins to an already completely balanced canine meal.

"EATIN' GOOD" GUARANTEE Following are details of the product's guarantee, believed to be the most daring in the history of the dog food industry.

New-guaranteed eatin' good. Your dog will est and enjoy Surechamp Meal Ticket. If he doesn't, send the certificate of guarantee from any package of New Surechamp Meal Ticket and a latter describ-ing your dog's reaction to: General Mills, Inc., Box 37, Minnenpolis 60, Minn. We'll send you a $1.00 coupon good on any dry dog food at your grocer's. Limit, one coupon to a customer.
